SCHOOL NEWS

HIGH SCHOOL

The high school suffered its most number of absences in five years the past week, 55 per cent of the students being away from their classrooms. Most of this is attributed to the measles epidemic which is sweeping the town. Those who were absent were: Jean Anderson, Laurie Brink, Buster Helvogt, Clara Achord, Norva Jenkins, Faye Douville, Ida Glazier, Dave Johnson, Marguerite McKinnon, Doris Jamison, Bob Miller, Jim Stubblefield and Gladys Neff.

The school's first annual ping-pong tournament will get under way late this week, with Al Jenkins in charge. Prizes will be offered to the winning boy and girl in the ladder play. A special exhibition will be arranged for the night of finals between Principal Vern Henderson and ex-student Harry Cramblet.

Miss Catherine Walker's health class was shown motion pictures of correct posture, disease given by flies, etc., last week through the courtesy of the Oregon State Health Association.

The high school's play was postponed for at least another week because of the sickness, which has robbed the cast of many of its leading performers.

Helen Christenson, Locks student last year, has been given the leading part in the Stevenson school's class play, "Growing Pains." It was learned here recently.

In answer to the usual number of inquiries which arise at the end of the school year, Principal Henderson wishes to make it plain that the Locks school is a standard prep institution. It requires 32 credits to graduate and graduates may attend any college in the country, provided their grades are high enough.

Miss Catherine Walker, teacher, has decorated her classroom with one of the finest flower boxes in the district, and already has many flowers sprouting.

Due to the continued illness to Dave Johnson and the California trip of Faye Douville, Locks high will not take part in the American Legion's oratorical contest, to have been held in Hood River this month. Topic was value of the Constitution to the country.

Students will, however, take part in the Legion's annual poppy poster contest, entering the county competition. Those who plan to make posters are: Lois Merrill, Russell Huff, Jean Anderson, Earl Johnson, Doris Jamison and Jane Geitner. Winner will be announced some time in April.

The social problem classes, provided they can gain the permission of County Superintendent Gibson, will tour the social institutions at Salem within the next two weeks. At present the class is closely following the works of Jacob Riis, German emigrant, whose books on the tenement sections of the big cities have gained national mention.

GRADE SCHOOL

Weather permitting, a practice game has been scheduled between the grade school's two baseball teams, the Dubs and the Mutts, for Friday afternoon. Both nines are made up of players seeking positions on the grade school team. Chet Woodward and Jackie Todd have shown well in practice, as have Bob Costanzo, Harry Wade and Elmer Glazier.

Frederick McGarrigle has entered the grade school, coming from a private institution in Portland.

Despite the many cases of measles reported in town, the grade school attendance is better than at any other time during the school year, percentage of those present being well over 90 per cent.

Evelyn Huff's foul shot in the last ten seconds of play, gave the girls' basketball team a 16-15 win over the boys' second team Tuesday in the gym.

The Camp Fire girls of the grade school will honor Miss Wilma Eddy, their guardian, at a party Friday in the home of Mrs. Richard Morris.

The annual show, held by the students of the grade and high schools, will be staged sometime in May, it was announced. Exhibits by the students in every department of the two schools will be displayed.

LAY PLANS FOR NEW ROAD CONTRACT

With Parker-Seram starting to work on its $61,650 government contract, which includes filling and grading for the new permanent road system around the new civic auditorium and administration building, engineers began to lay definite plans for the finished project.

The roads will be covered with crushed rock, just as they are now around the engineers' homes, and then rolled down, so that they may be covered with an asphaltic concrete surface at a later date, if desired.

At the present time several things point toward a finishing contract not being let until July or August. These are completion of the Tanner Creek viaduct arch, under which the main entrance gate runs, excavation yet to be done for the west ship canal and the annual stretch of bad weather.

Some portions of the present temporary road will be used, and the main entrance grading is complete, but the major portion of the project is yet to be done.

According to plans the road will pass between the auditorium and the administration building, then branching, with one road leading to the business district and the other to the new swing bridge across the locks to the powerhouse. Side branches will be to the permanent homes, to the view point and around to the old executive buildings.

WATERFALLS APPEAR OVER RAILROAD GRADE

Orino, Bell and Malcolm completed its heavy excavation work on the 5,000 foot railroad grade west of the new Tanner creek viaduct last week, far enough ahead of contract schedule that the finishing touches can be added almost at the company's leisure.

Of unusual interest to residents in the past week is the sudden streams of water which have broken through along the cut in numerous places. Many have felt that these were a result of the heavy blasting.

In reality they are natural streams, seeping down the face of the bed rock formation from the hills far above. Some of these have always been present, others are a result of the heavy March rains.

In any event, they offer nothing more than inconvenience to the workmen, who have set up a fine safety and efficiency mark on the project. Portions of the cliff as high as two normal houses standing on top of one another have been torn away by the heavy blasts, which throw rock half way across the river.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Steele and children Elaine and Billy of Portland, were visitors at the L. E. Ostberg residence Sunday.
