L. W. Miller fished the waters of the Deschutes river over the weekend.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Colby M. Myers have returned from their vacation, spent touring the country to Paulina and Crater lakes.

Chester Ross, dammaster with the U. S. engineers, is back from his vacation at Diamond lake, reports fishing good.

While Dave Marvin, chief clerk of the U. S. engineers, sticks to his desk, Mrs. Marvin and their daughter, Marjie are enjoying a vacation in southern California, principally around Los Angeles. They are expected back in about two weeks.

Robert Cole of General-Shea was hopping mad Saturday noon. Bound for the big city, he missed the bus by seconds.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Phillips drove the loop road around Mt. Hood Friday, report the road fine, the scenery better than ever.

Paul Hohberger, popular reservation jeweler, spent Friday to Monday morning at Seaside and other beaches, showing the country to his sister, who is in Oregon from her home in Iowa.

Frances Grouer was driven to Portland early Saturday morning by Sid Phillips to have her ear lanced to relieve a serious infection. She is recovering. Miss Grouer takes care of the Phillips' baby.

Although Dr. Stanley E. Wells has been transferred to Portland on meningitis research work, he and Mrs. Wells are seen around the reservation frequently. They usually spend their weekends in their home in the permanent quarters.

All democrats of the dam area are invited to the state democratic picnic August 11 at Blue lake park. Postmaster Henry Edlund at Bonneville is on the reception committee.

A stereopticon lecture will be given Sunday evening in the Bonneville auditorium under the auspices of the Bonneville community church. The lecture will be illustrated with beautiful pictures and should be entertaining as well as helpful, according to the Rev. Stanley Trefren, pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Linton drove to Corvallis Monday to attend the wedding of Mrs. Linton's sister, Miss Alma Sandwick, to Ray Garrison, recent graduate of Oregon State college. Frances Linton was flower girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Goff have returned from their two weeks' vacation spent on the Washington beaches.

Marvin Lambert's chipmunks are a source of amusement to visitors at the View point. Lamort runs the Recreation center's stand there. Using an ice cream cone (without ice cream) as bait, he captured seven chipmunks, built a cage for them on his counter. Five escaped the other night but for the other two. Lambert is constructing a cage with a wheel to give them exercise.

Mrs. Katy A. Cook, mother of Archy Cook of Tyrrell's tavern, is spending a few days in Bonneville this week. She came out from Portland Friday with her son.

Rudy Bagby, new Community center manager, spent Monday morning in Portland on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred McGee were hosts Monday night at the old Hill mansion to the Dam Hill Billies, old-time orchestra now being formed with dam employees as members. C. O. Hubbard sang a solo. The band practiced, talked over plans for the future.

Excavation for the fishways that are to cross the reservation between the permanent houses and the new auditorium is now under way. Dirt and rock are being dumped at the reservation entrance to build up the new railroad grade.

A desk marker, hand carved from a section of a small Oregon yew tree, now sits on Dr. S. E. Wells' desk. The marker is varnished, showing the natural color of wood and bark, is the work of Lawrence Espinosa of the forest service at Eagle creek.

Visitor at the dam last week included Frank Lindely, who hails from South Africa. Lindely was on his way home, via New York and London, from a tour of the United States. He had just come from the San Diego exposition.

A demonstration in first aid was given dam employees Thursday when the George L. Baker first aid car from Portland spent several hours in the area just west of the USED hospital. Captain Roberts of the Portland fire department gave the demonstration.

A. H. Farmer has leased ground, is starting to build himself a home across from the reservation entrance.

Paul Flegel spent Friday and Saturday in Portland inspecting a service station with an eye to purchasing it to add to the firm of Flegel and Rich.
