

CASCADE LOCKS

Fred Anderson's hair is a bit frizzly this week. Saturday morning he was burning some rubbish in his back yard when the wind whipped up a sheet of flame. The fire licked across the top of his head, singed some of the hair off.

Miss Macy Johnson left Sunday morning for Portland to visit her parents for a few days. Then she plans to spend a week at Seaside and other Oregon ocean beaches before returning to the Locks. Mrs. Faye Friendenthal of Portland is taking her place while she is gone.

Ted Hauser has returned to his duties at the Lakeside hotel following a painful bout with tonsillitis. The throat inflammation kept him in bed several days last week.

Ralph Nelson returned Friday from a several-day visit to the Mollala district in his new truck. While there, he purchased 10 head of shorthorn "baby beef" cattle to be used in his Lakeside meat market.

A. W. Foote spent the weekend in Portland to get his car from the shop. The car was struck last week by a truck, necessitating a general ironing and straightening out.

Mr. and Mrs. John Baker and two daughters of Hood River passed through the Locks Saturday on their way to Eugene to visit two other daughters. Mr. Baker is Hood River county prosecuting attorney.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Johnson and daughter, Stella, and son, John, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Bryan of Altoona visited at Jess Glazier home Sunday. Miss Elma Glazier returned home with them after a week's visit.

Ed Glazier from Parkdale, where he is working, spent the weekend at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Hy Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Bybee, Virginia Bybee, Chuck Garble, Jane Geltner and Dewey McDaniels picnicked at Lost Lake Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Amen of Portland visited at the J. S. Miller home Sunday. Mr. Amen and Mr. Miller caught the limit of trout at Dee. Their wives saw the sights at Bonneville.

Howard Harrison's 18th birthday Sunday was celebrated Monday evening at Dew Drop Inn when Everill Glazier brought in a 28-pound watermelon. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Anderson and daughter, Jean, Colin Merrill, Mrs. Nate Davis, Miss Virginia Tissler, Wesley Andrews, Melvin Andrews, Andy Clyde, C. M. Wheeler, Curly Hines, Ired Belliguard, Don Drummond, Jimmy Sheldon, Harold Geitner.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Barnett of Portland visited Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Heggard Sunday. Mrs. Barnett is the Heggard's daughter, married earlier this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Merrill returned Friday evening from nearly a week's motor trip with their children down the Oregon and California coasts as far as Eureka. They encountered fog, cold weather, and had a hard time finding cabins to sleep in, so heavy was the tourist traffic. Merrill reports travel three times as heavy as last year, heaviest since 1929.

To a surprise party given Sunday afternoon by DeEtte Moore in honor of her brother Delmer's 10th birthday, came Robert and Richard Glazier, Carlyle Reuter-skold, Bobby Hyde, Wilbur and Jackie Glazier, Charles Mitchell.

George Herren was called to Albany last week by the death of his mother, Mrs. Rose Herren. He returned after the funeral to his work at Moore's garage.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Palacheck, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Palacheck, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Palacheck, all of The Dalles, and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Palacheck of Hood River, came down to attend the Firemen's ball last Wednesday.

Shirley Moore and Bob Leggett drove to Portland over the weekend to deliver the wrecked Ford coupe that sat in front of their place for a month or more. The driver, registered from Newberg, never came to claim it, sent word it was to be taken to Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Finley and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Finley spent the weekend in Portland.

Glen Blevins spent all last week at his ranch on Baseline road, this side of Portland.

Mrs. Robert Trimble of Portland celebrated her 77th birthday Tuesday by visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Trimble for several days this week.

Miss Ann Rasmussen celebrated her 13th birthday with a party given at the home of Mrs. J. S. Miller Thursday. Present were Dorothy and Marguerite McKinnon, Luella Glazier, Helen Rosenback, Patricia Rasmussen, Eileen Sprague.

PHONE SERVICE INCREASES

Mrs. Manda Collins, Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company's manager at Cascade Locks, is a busy woman. Calls for phone installations have been coming in faster than the company can install them and her board now has 56. Three were connected last week and prospects are coming in every day.

ROCK INJURES BACK

L. A. Baxter of Cascade Locks was taken to St. Vincent's hospital in Portland Friday with a back injury suffered when hit by a falling rock while at work on the dam.

CHARGER INSTALLED

Ben Scott last week installed an automobile storage battery charger in his Standard station at Cascade Locks. The charger can accommodate four batteries at once and Scott promises efficient charging as swiftly as possible.

FLEGEL & RICH PAINT UP

Flegel & Rich's Richfield service station at Bonneville will soon gleam with a new coat of yellow and blue paint.

Arrangements for the painting, in Richfield oil colors, were completed this week by Paul Flegel and Jim Rich. The owners also plan to put siding on the grease rack to enclose it for the winter.

R. O. Wall, office manager for Columbia Construction company, spent Tuesday and Wednesday in Tacoma, Wash., on business.

The dam reservation fire truck is now manned 24 hours a day. Due to the extreme fire hazard, one man is kept on duty at all hours.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Myers are new residents in Dodson, having moved in over the weekend in the house formerly occupied by Guards Whitsett, et. al. Myers is a USED inspector.

WIFE TORTURES HIM WITH JEALOUS LOVE; GRANTED DIVORCE

Judge Issues Warning to Other Wives; Limits Duration of Alimony.

Milwaukee, Wis.—She was a woman of the kind romantic lovers dream of—thinking of him every moment of the day, jealous at the mere suggestion of a rival, suffering agonies when he left her only an hour. Her jealous love was more than James M. Hopkins, forty-four years old, could stand, and sympathetically, Judge August Braun granted him a divorce.

The judge at the same time set up what may be considered a precedent and a warning to jealous wives, an encouragement for long-suffering husbands. He held that Mr. Hopkins under the circumstances was not to be tied down with alimony for the rest of his days, and that his payments at the rate of $10 a week were to terminate at the end of two and a half years.

Wife Questions Court.

Interposed Mrs. Myrtle C. Hopkins, thirty-seven, the disappointed wife:

"And what am I to do after the two and one-half years. I have my mother to support and I don't know whether I ever will get a job again."

"You might have thought of this before and treated your husband as a wife should who has the right conception of marriage," cut short the judge. "If you had trusted your husband," the court continued its lecture, "if you had not tortured him with your jealousies, he wouldn't have started this divorce action. He bravely bore up for five years, virtually the entire length of your married life, until he could do so no longer and rebelled."

Several of Mrs. Hopkins' women friends in the courtroom gasped audibly when the judge, with a reference to Mr. Hopkins' occasional indulgences in a glass or two of beer, concluded that "probably it was Mrs. Hopkins' conduct that drove him to drink."

On "a Breath of Beer."

"A breath of beer on a man is not enough to suspect him of overindulgence," Judge Braun declared. "If the court accepted that argument not a marriage in the city would stand up."

Testimony on which the judge based his finding of cruelty by means other than physical violence, "in an accumulation of trivial things, as in the Cudaby case," depicted Mrs. Hopkins as a woman who was most unhappy if she could not contact her husband at any moment.

"When I went to the barber shop and came back after half an hour with a haircut and shave she wanted to know where I had been so long," Hopkins said. "I might be out in the sticks somewhere at the top of a telephone post, and upon calling my office be advised my wife had called up. I thought maybe her mother was dying, and upon rushing home would find everything peaceful except my wife, who merely wanted to know my whereabouts."

"One night I came home and she told me to look in my coat pocket. I looked and found a couple of hairpins. She wanted to know how they got there and I couldn't tell her. Then she told me somebody telephoned her to look in my pocket when I came home. Looks like somebody played a practical joke, but my wife couldn't see it that way."

Use of Jams and Jellies

Either the English have more of a sweet tooth or Americans make more of their own jellies, for studies show that America uses only one and one-half pounds of manufactured jams and jellies for each person, compared with twelve pounds for each Englishman.
