If you want a happy ending to the story told over the radio, just turn the dial a turn.

Lena Genster was sitting on the davenport with her new boy friend. At length he worked up sufficient courage to steal a kiss, and quickly slid away. "That's a feather in my cap," he boasted. Lena smiled. "Come back and I'll make an Indian chief out of you."

Percy Whiffletree was a white-collar man. That is, he was until his wife started doing up his collar.

Tennis Wyers once was attorney for a business man in a case, who had to leave on a journey before the trial was completed. He left instructions to be informed by telephone of the result. After several days Mr. Wyers sent the following message: "Right has triumphed." At once came the reply: "Appeal immediately."

The real power of love is not really appreciated until it holds up traffic on a crowded highway.

Mrs. Whiffletree: "What an absurd idea! I'm sure I'd see my children's faults, if they had any."

The law may give a pedestrian the right of way, but makes no provision for flowers.

It might be true that up in Seattle last Sunday a newspaperman went to church, and when they passed the collection plate he flashed his press badge.

And it has been noted that the number of auto accidents goes up as the booze goes down.

Sure things are getting better. Checks now are coming back marked "No Funds," instead of "No Bank!"

Mrs. Whiffletree: "When do I give it to him?"
Doc.: "You don't. Take it yourself."

WORKER KILLED IN ODD ACCIDENT AT POWERHOUSE

In one of those queer and unexplained accidents which sometimes occur, Albin Olson, about 59, fell from a low scaffold at the powerhouse Friday afternoon, and plunged through a narrow opening into a hole and to his death, 35 feet below.

Olson, who has been working as a carpenter for General-Shea, was conscious when picked up, but died the next day. When rescued by fellow workers he looked up at his foreman and said, "I'll never hammer any more nails for you."

No one saw the accident and Olson was unable to explain it. The hole was covered with boards, except for a small opening only two or three feet square. In falling he is believed to have turned and probably slipped some distance, for the aperture was several feet from the spot where he was employed and had not been considered dangerous.

Olson lived at 1422 S. W. Third avenue in Portland and had been running back and forth to work at the dam. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Leona Olson. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon in Portland from the Finley chapel. Interment was in Riverview cemetery.

ENDS LONG HIBERNATION

In the summer of 1934 the Rebecca Lodge entertained with a dance at Merrill's Pavilion when the pavilion was nothing more than a floor with a railing around it. Mrs. Manda Collins, Cascade Locks telephone operator, attended that function. Friday, for the first time since then, Mrs. Collins came down town again. She has been too busy to leave the house.

KITZMILLER HONORED

Perry Kitzmiller, secretary of the local Eagle lodge, was appointed secretary of the Eagles' northwest district convention, held in Oregon City over the weekend.

ARMY OFFICER'S BRIDE

MRS. ROBT. M. MacDONNEL

With Rev. Father Kelly, of Portland, officiating, Miss Harriet Burks and Lieut. Robert M. MacDonnel, U. S. engineering corps, were married Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parent's Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Burks, on the reservation in Bonneville.

The wedding, culmination of a romance which began when the young army officer, fresh from West Point, came to the dam for training, was attended by relatives and close friends of the family. Among those present was a group of young army officers, who came down from Fort Lawton, in Seattle, where Lieutenant MacDonnel is now stationed.

Following the reception after the wedding the young couple left for a trip down the Oregon coast. They will be at home in Seattle after November 28.

Not satisfied with the results of their first trip, Al and Bert Stewart have gone up to Boardman to shoot ducks again. Friends are accusing Al of potting a bunch of wood decoys, but he indignantly denies the yarn.

Walter Penn And Mrs. Geer Married At Church Service

In the presence of a large number of friends the marriage of Mrs. Kathryn Will Geer and Mr. Walter Gray Penn was solemnized at the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church in Hood River, Wednesday night. The service was read by Rev. Mr. Vincent.

The bride was attractively attired in a wedding gown of white satin with new finger tipped veil and carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. The bridegroom was attired in formal evening wear.

Mrs. Laura Ingleright, mother of Mrs. Geer, gave the bride in marriage. Mrs. Zara Peterson, in a gown of Eleanor blue satin, and carrying a bouquet of King Edward roses and baby chrysanthemums, was matron of honor. Mr. Penn was attended by E. W. Holstad, superintendent in charge of stations for the Standard Oil company.

After the ceremony at the church Mr. and Mrs. Penn departed for Portland, where a wedding supper was served at the Heathman hotel. From Portland they expect to go south on a wedding trip which may take them to Mexico City.

Mr. and Mrs. Penn, who have a wide acquaintance up and down the coast, are the owners of Penn's Tavern, a mile east of Cascade Locks. Following their wedding journey they will return to Cascade Locks to make their home.

CITY PURCHASES 3 WATER SYSTEMS FOR TOTAL $7,250

With the purchase Tuesday night of the three private water systems which serve Cascade Locks the municipality opened the way to construction of the $50,000 city water system, which is being built with money obtained from the federal government.

The council closed with the Independent Water company, the Cascade Water company and Delbert Elliff at a price which will permit the three systems to be taken over at a cost of $7,250. The price is within the limitations set by the head of PWA in the state and permits of the expenditure of 15 percent of the total cost of the municipal system for the purpose of satisfying all existing claims and rights under the law.

On two or three different occasions it looked like the private water companies would decline to trade, but the owners of the three utilities kept dropping in price until an agreement was reached.

The Independent Water company sold for $4,500; the Cascade Water company sold for $2,000 and the privilege of reclaiming any pipe which the city does not take over; and Elliff sold for $750. The owners asked something like $15,000 when negotiations were first opened by the city.

Rights-of-way are yet to be obtained through the Haskins property and the Alger property, south of the highway where the main pipe line comes down to the highway from the mountain. When these deals have been closed the city can start construction work. The pipe line crosses a stretch of J. B. Laber's property. He has promised a right-of-way.

At the regular meeting of the council Monday night efforts were made to pass an ordinance which would have compelled Laber to dedicate streets in his unplatted tracts of ground, but it was defeated four to two, with Julius Carlson and Seth O. Clodfelter voting in the affirmative.

After the proposed ordinance was killed the council agreed to go ahead and lay mains and laterals across Laber's properties, with the understanding that the owner of the real estate would give the city the necessary rights-of-way. Laber declined to put his proposition in writing, but insisted that his word was good.

None of Laber's property has been platted, nor are the streets dedicated, except in the sense that roads used over a long period of years cannot be closed. Sponsors of the move to force Laber to dedicate streets before laterals are laid declared there is nothing to protect the city in event Laber, or future owners of the property, decide to build on lots which are now vacant.

"A Full House", amateur play at the auditorium, Bonneville, has been postponed until December 3 and 4.

DEER ESCAPES COUGAR IN LEAP OVER CLIFF CAT AFRAID TO FOLLOW

Torn between fear of man and a desire to eat, a hungry cougar lost its dinner last Saturday when a deer it had chased down from the mountains leaped across the state highway at Bridal Veil and plunged off the precipice to the mill below.

In its leap to escape the cougar the deer struck a large belt in the sawmill yard. The belt saved the animal's life. Stunned, the deer lay on the belt for a half hour, with the cougar looking down upon it, but afraid to follow its prey. When employes of the mill saw the cougar they hustled about for a gun, but the big cat slunk away. After lying on the belt for 30 minutes the deer staggered to its feet and walked away.

WALTER PIERCE TO VISIT LOCKS DECEMBER 4TH

Congressman Walter M. Pierce, who has been enjoying a vacation at his home in Eastern Oregon, is coming down to Cascade Locks December 4, to speak to the people of the community under auspices of the Democratic club.

The talk will be preceded by a dinner, which is open to the public. Plates will be sold at 50 cents. The dinner is scheduled to start at 6 o'clock and will be followed by the speaking at 8 p. m.

Congressman Pierce, who not only represents his district in the house of representatives, but is Democratic national committeeman as well, enjoys more power in the naming of political appointees under the Roosevelt administration than any other Oregon democrat. He has a wide following in Hood River county and by reason of his position as national committeeman commands influence throughout the state.

Dinner will be served at Merrill's Tavern. The tables will be set either in the dance pavilion or in a smaller room, depending upon the demand for tickets. The tickets are being placed on sale at a number of business houses in Bonneville and Cascade Locks.
