Prof. Hugh Sherwood and William Morgan enjoyed a three-day trip to Wahtum lake during vacation. They made their camp at the seven-mile post, at Cedar Swamp lodge, and then made the round trip to the lake from there in one day. At the Divide they found three feet of snow, and two feet at the lake. The hiking from the Locks to the lodge was easy going although on the return trip they encountered some rain.

"That meal went over in great style," said the voyagers as they lined up at the rail.
