

Odd Occupation

In New York city, Clarence E. Willard, 61, has for an occupation, the "stretching" of men who need added height to help them pass civil service and police examinations to obtain employment. Willard's ability to stretch his own height seven inches has given him the name of "India rubber man." He is 5 feet, 10 1-2 inches high, normally, but can stretch this to 6 feet, 5 1-2 inches at will and can maintain this height for hours even while walking, swimming, etc.

He declares his ability to stretch has been one of the prime factors in maintaining his good health. "Animals stretch for the same reason," he says. Are we in for a new health fad?

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

The Fair Sex

BOHEMIAN GROVE, CALIF.—Up here in the Bohemian club's grove where, during the summer encampment, no women are allowed either at large or on the leash, I've been thinking about their little peculiarities.

If two women were cast away on a desert island with just each other for company, and after, let's say, ten or fifteen years, the rescue steamer arrived, they'd both be half way up the flagplank before either remembered the really important things she'd been intending all along to say to her companion; and no matter if the tide were falling and the wind rising, they'd stop right there in their tracks and thrash it all out.

If you doubt this, see what happens when a pair of them are swapping good-bys, after an all-day conversation, on finishing a long chatty motor trip together. If they can find a narrow doorway where they'll block traffic, that's where they'll halt, always.

It's a curious sex, any way you take it. But we men keep on taking it and liking it. I don't know whether we're dumb—or numb. Must be one or the other.

CELEBRATING his fifth birthday the other day, my small grandson and namesake met another gentleman of like age who bragged that his nurse brought him to the party in a car.

"Can your mama drive a car?" inquired the guest.

"No," answered my descendant, "but I'm going to teach her. All you do is start off and keep going till you have to stop, and then you say, 'Damn those red lights.'"

It would appear that Cobby has been listening to his grandfather.

Praising King Edward.

IF HE was a Communist, of a breed who are usually half-baked mentalities, it was only to be expected that his effort to murder King Edward should be—thank heavens—a fizzle.

If he was a lunatic, then he's the kind of lunatic who should spend the rest of his days behind high walls. If he was a deliberate assassin—well, at least he gave a gallant monarch a chance to show how gallantly monarchs can behave in the face of danger.

Any man, given the royal background and an open path to the throne, can be a king, but not every king is a man. This king is—he proved it and this part of the

The Troubles of Europe.

WE MAY have our own troubles, including so many mounting taxes over the land and so much mountain music over the radio, but what with Spain rent by internal war, and France having strikes which almost approximate war, and Poland threatening revolt against Nazi control of what, laughably, is called the "Free" City of Danzig, and the rest of them pretty generally stewing in their respective political casseroles, we're lucky.

In fact I can think of but one thing the European nations have which we could use, but, alas, will never get, needless to say. I refer to the money they owe us.

Dummy Cops

Hungerford, England, has handed a jolt to the transport officers of large cities by the simplicity of the plan it has adopted to slow traffic at a dangerous curve.

Hungerford's chief traffic problem is a stretch of the main road from London which has a particularly bad bend, where traffic pours past in both directions.

So two dummy policemen, in regulation uniform, are to be placed, one on each side of the dangerous bend, where all motorists can see them. The wax officers are expected to persuade traffic to slow down in taking the bend.
