

Scenes and Persons in the Current News

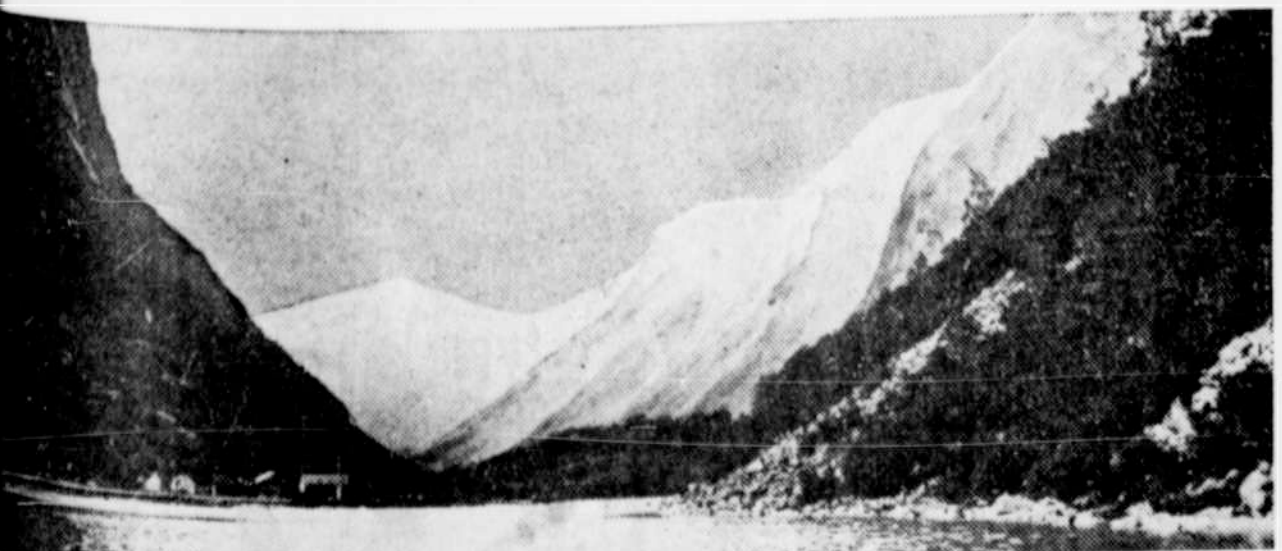

1-Marshals S. M. Budyonny and Marshal A. I. Yegorov of the Russian army watch autumn maneuvers of the Red forces. 2-Premier Leon Blum of France, who has joined Britain and America in going off the standard. 3-Rebel forces and civilians hail the raising of Spanish monarchist flag over San Sebastian, following its capture by the rebels.

Steel Workers Don't Mind Clouds or White Caps

Clouds just over their heads and white caps below their feet are all part of the job to the workers who are building the steel reinforced structure for mighty Bonneville Dam on the Columbia river. This power navigation flood control project financed by the Public Works Administration at a cost of $32,000,000 is being undertaken under the direction of the Army Corps of Engineers.

Where a Norse Avalanche Killed 74

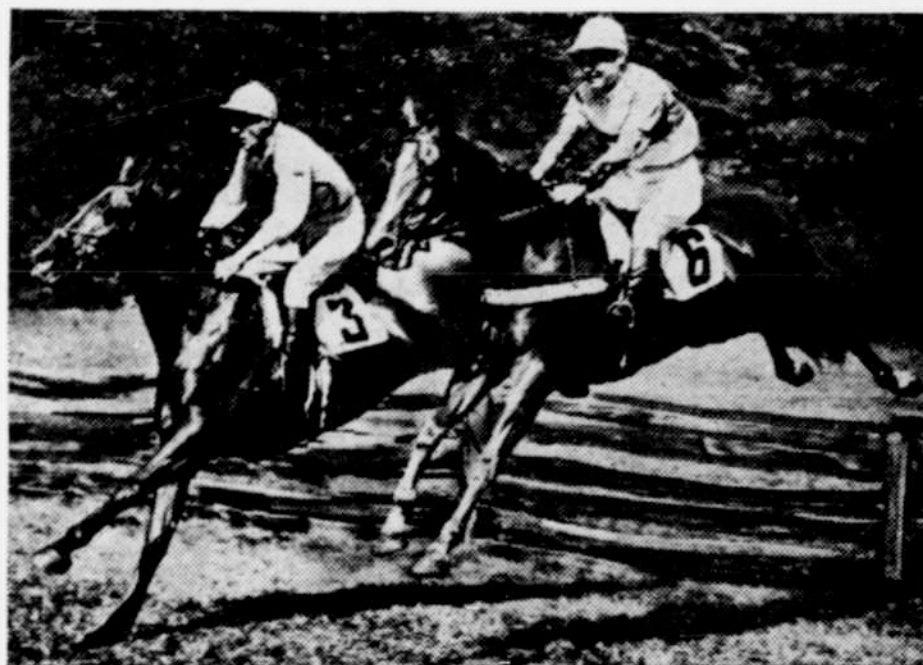

A view of Loen lake, Norway, showing the towering cliffs from which a million tons of rock crashed into the water below, causing a tidal wave that roared through the Goedal valley leaving a scene of death and destruction in its wake. Seventy-four persons are known to have lost their lives in the two villages that bore the brunt of the catastrophe.

Rescued From Canadian Wilds

After spending 30 days on the shores of a wilderness lake in Northern Canada two pilots of the Canadian air force were rescued. Left to right, Joseph Forty and Sheldon Coleman, the stranded airmen and James Hartley, mechanic of the rescue ship. The pilots ran out of fuel and were forced down on the lake. They improvised a shelter to wait for a rescue party.

Crack "Fencers" Compete for Hunt Cup

Hunt clubs throughout America are holding their races these bracing autumn days. One of the oldest of these events is the Meadow Brook Hunt race. It was held recently on the Long Island estate of Ambrose Clark. Justinian II, owned by Stuart S. Janney won the race over a three and a half mile timbered course.

Hitler Views Biggest Maneuvers

With camouflaged machine-guns crouched at his feet. Realm-leader Adolf Hitler of Germany surveys the "battlefield" in Southern Germany during the Reich's biggest war maneuvers since the days of 1914. The battle games were held near Berlin. Chancellor Hitler flew his own airplane to the maneuvers and on several occasions watched the progress of the contending forces from the air. The general staff of the Reich's army thanked the realm-leader for permitting the holding of the maneuvers, declaring that they were the most comprehensive in more than 20 years. At about the same time, the Red army of Russia was holding its annual autumn maneuvers.