G. N. Hesgard returned home from Portland Tuesday after a week's stay in the city. Mrs. Hesgard came up with him for a few days' visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Jens Herman left this week for a two weeks' vacation (Continued on Page Twelve)

At The Roosevelt

A diverting mixture of mystery and comedy, the Universal film, "Mysterious Crossing," is due Friday and Saturday at the Roosevelt theatre. It is entertaining screen fare that combines drama with a light touch of the humorous; mystery treated in the modern manner which has proved so popular.

The picture centers around a roving reporter, played by the popular James Dunn, whose nose for news leads him to New Orleans' biggest story of the year. He is crossing the Mississippi on a railroad ferry, on his way to the Southern city, when he hears a splash near where two men have been standing. He thinks it is a case of murder rather than of double suicide. When it develops that only one passenger is missing, and that he is the city's most prominent banker, the news man is positive that it is murder. Landing a job on one of the local papers, he goes to work on the case and finally turns the slayer over to the police with absolute proof of his guilt.

Jean Rogers has the feminine lead. The romance between her and the reporter stirs increased interest in the picture. Others who give excellent performances are John Eldredge, Hobart Cavanaugh and Herbert Rawlinson.

Much of the picture was made right in New Orleans and along the Mississippi. It shows many interesting scenes, including the huge ferries which carry railroad trains across the river, the famous French quarter, colorful, busy Canal Street and the Roosevelt hotel, where the late Senator Huey Long made his Louisiana headquarters.

New Musical

Gay and sprightly with laughter and song, "Stage Struck," the latest of First National's mammoth musical comedy spectacles, is scheduled Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the Roosevelt theatre.

In story and characterization, in sparkling dialogue, lilting music and prodigious dance numbers, in lavishness of production and setting, this picture is a worthy addition to First National's long list of musical comedy hits. In addition to its rollicking humor, it offers an interesting romance, with thrills and dynamic drama, and plenty of catchy music.

It is enacted by a cast of real stars, including Dick Powell, Joan Blondell, Warren William, Frank McHugh, Jeanne Madden, the Yacht Club boys, a score of other principals and hundreds of extras.

There are three spectacular dance numbers with more than a hundred of Hollywood's most beautiful chorus girls in each and a specialty number set in a replica of the New York Aquarium where Powell and Miss

Madden warble their love songs with the seals and fishes and other sea folk as eager listeners.

The songs sung by these two film players were written specially for the production by the famous lyrical team of E. Y. Harburg and Harold Arlen. Two other catchy airs are rendered by the Yacht Club Boys, who wrote their own music and lyrics. This famous quartet also stage some remarkable numbers with mad-cap antics that will bring down the house.

A sparkling modern romance, woven about a young millionaire's efforts to induce a girl to marry him for himself and not for his money, is pictured in "Smartest Girl in Town," starring Gene Raymond and Ann Sothern in the new photoplay at the Roosevelt theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

Following their recent success in "Walking on Air," the Raymond-Sothern team contributes an even more riotous performance in the new vehicle. Raymond, as the wealthy young man, has experienced a series of unpleasant situations which cause him to shy away from girls with a gold-digging complex. Hence when Miss Sothern mistakes him for a poor photographer's model like herself, Gene continues the masquerade, especially when he learns that she is centering her affections on an afflu-

Raymond's ingenious schemes to cross Ann's romantic path with his attain ludicrous extremes, but the mirthful, rapid-fire results promise to leave audiences weak with laughter.

Helen Broderick, Eric Blore, Erik Rhodes and Harry Jans comprise the featured funsters in "Smartest Girl in Town," an RKO Radio Picture.
