WHOSE SKELETON ARE YOU?

They say there's a skeleton in everyone's closet, although most people succeed in keeping it from public knowledge. But some times the old bones rattle, the closet door swings creekily open, and lo! some one is placed in a very embarrassing position.

This introduction leads up to a story we heard this week concerning a former county judge of Prineville, whom we will call Blackstone. The WPA offered to tear down an old school house in that city, and although it seemed a very worthy project, Judge Blackstone fought the move tooth and nail, and without giving any very definite answer. People asked each other, "What's the matter with the old boy?"

Well, the judge lost out, the school was torn down, and as is customary, the corner-stone was opened that its contents might be known. As very old timers might have remembered, the judge was at one time long ago involved in a Central Oregon land scandal. If they remembered they didn't tell. But now the old skeleton is in full sight of every one, for in the corner-stone was a newspaper, and emblazoned across the front page of the paper was the black headline: "Judge Blackstone Sent to Prison."
