GIVE THANKS TO MAN

Though identified as a post-harvest festival and invariably linked with good things to eat, Thanksgiving could well be a time of gratitude for other things than material satisfaction.

We wouldn't assert that we should be thankful that sad lots have not befallen us. Naturally we are glad we don't live in China or in Spain, or that our locality hasn't been visited by floods or tornadoes—thankful that at least things are no worse than they are. That is what one speaker referred to as "Pollyanna Piffle."

We are obviously thankful that our material needs have largely been met, that we are housed, clothed and sheltered, thankful for our mountains, our hillsides, and our resources. But while we are thinking of these things, why not go a step farther and thank the man next door, the neighbor down the street, the family over on the next road. For, after all, one of the greatest attributes to happiness is that group of invaluable humans known as—Friends.

So let us be thankful for the congenial neighbors who bear with our faults, for the radiant personalities that drop in and help cheer our firesides, for the sacrificing community workers who make our service institutions go—those institutions largely manned and perpetuated by unremunerated personal effort. Let us be thankful for friendly nods, pleasant smiles, hearty handshakes. In short, at Thanksgiving, let us not forget to be thankful to our fellow men.

A WORD OF WISDOM

timely one. Before being tempted to answer the alluring mail-order ads offering Christmas gifts or holiday goods, they should wait a little while and see what local merchants will have to offer. Many local stores have already begun displaying holiday goods, and in another week their whole display will appear with all the green and red trimmings.

Local merchants will probably have the same type of goods as advertised in the mail order circulars and most of the local merchandise will be far superior in quality. Buying here, a customer can see what he is getting. The customer doesn't order from the local store-keeper wholly from an illustration and description. "Buy your Christmas Merchandise Right Here at Home," could well be the slogan for the Dam Area residents this year.

PEDESTRIANS, BEWARE!

Alert driving, good tires, adequate brakes, chains . . . how many precautions warn the motorist during winter months of the hazards that face him in manipulating his automobile. But strange it is that so little warning has been issued the pedestrian, except the ever-present and ever-vital advice to walk against traffic rather than with it on the highway.

Particularly in winter are the pedestrians in danger. Accustomed to having cars stop for them as they proceed nonchalantly across streets, many walk on unmindful that the approaching driver may apply his brakes, but because of wet or icy pavements, may skid and plunge into the unsuspecting street walker.

Furthermore, fogged windshields are not uncommon and the driver's vision is always somewhat impaired in rainy weather. Yet it seems to the motorist that pedestrians instead of being more careful, grow even more careless in wintry or rainy weather. It behooves motorists, of course to be wary, but our advice to pedestrians is—watch out for the cars.

In United States Public Health Service research Dr. Edward Francis convalesces from his fourth purposely-contracted disease, relapsing fever. He allowed himself to be bitten by a brown, eight-legged tick. Getting close to microbes, he gets close to knowledge.

A judge says there is too much cooked-up testimony in divorce cases. And most of it is also too raw.

A diplomat is a man who can make his wife believe that she would look fat in a fur coat.

Maybe the magazines you find in a doctor's office were put there to indicate how long he has been practicing.

Churches

BONNEVILLE COMMUNITY CHURCH

Tracy Manley and Ralph Swanberg arrived on the train last Sunday morning. These two young men have come to fill the vacancy created when the Reverend Mr. Aschenbrenner was summoned to Prineville about three weeks ago. Their presence here is a result of the efforts of the Council of Churches to maintain regular church services in Bonneville. In accordance with this purpose, the usual Sunday School and church worship were held. Furthermore, there was a new spirit of enthusiasm in the young people's evening meeting.

Tracy and Ralph are both students in the Western Baptist Theological Seminary in Portland. Both are youthful enough to be vitally interested in our young people's work. On the other hand, they each have had experience in pastoral work. From our brief acquaintance with these friends, we feel that they are worthy of our fullest support. Tracy and Ralph will be back again Sunday with their enthusiasm and plans. Come to church and show these young men that we welcome them and appreciate their efforts. We'll be seeing you Sunday.

School News

CASCADE LOCKS GRADE SCHOOL (By Helen Rosenback)

Miss Jeffries is over the feeling of being double crossed. She has at last found the reason why the chalk erasers in her room have been wet every morning. She located a leak coming through the roof.

Miss Buche's room is beginning to practise their part of the entertainment for the Christmas play, to be held December 17.

Shirley Matson, former pupil of the Locks school, has returned to start school here again in the 4th grade.

The 7th and 8th graders have decided that winter has come to stay so they have moved their nasturtium flower box indoors.

CORBETT HIGH SCHOOL

Monday evening, in the Home Economics room of the high school, the Home Economics II girls gave a turkey dinner for the home economics II boys—the Bachelor's club. Among those attending were George Price, Harrell Kanzler, Johnny Teerink, Jeanne Bradley, Lester Nelson and Jean Hawkins.
