A DOG FIGHT

When a Chicago editor recently stated as his opinion that dogs do not think or plan ahead, he opened a way to get an argument out of any man around the dam who owns a dog. These dog owners want to know how about the shepherd dog that can round up a band of sheep or cattle and drive them into pen or shed? Then, too, what about the St. Bernards, who have been locating and bringing succor to lost travelers in the Alps Mountains for many years? And if that is not enough, how about these dogs trained especially for parts in moving pictures, and who go through their parts as well as any of the human actors and actresses—and a whole lot better than many of them? If the picture hero does not look ahead, behind and to all sides in delicate situations in a manner that most people are incapable of we miss our guess.

FOUND AT LAST

The state of Texas can now proudly boast as being the home of "the world's safest driver." His name is Allen B. Hill. By vocation he is a truck driver, is 55 years old, and was Exhibit A at the recent National Trucking Convention. Hill's record is approximately 1,400,000 miles in 30 years without an accident or an arrest. And that is a record worth hanging up anywhere, and one that should serve as a good example to every driver in Hood River County as he enters a new year full of good resolutions. Hill, now a resident of Corpus Christi, has driven in many states, and drove a truck in France during the World War. And here is his rule for safe driving:

Give all the road you can and take all they'll give you. "I've had to take to the ditch many times to avoid getting hit, but I've found it the best way out. Stay off the other fellow's side of the road."

DON'T OVERLOOK IT

As a general rule most people are so busy along about this time of year trying to get their holiday affairs adjusted and to keeping the home fires burning and the inside of the house comfortable that they are apt to overlook a simple little duty they owe to that army of feathered friends outside who now find pretty hard going. Winter brings much suffering to the birds who elect to spend it around here. With their usual sources of food supply shut off when snow covers the ground, eking out an existence until the return of spring is a difficult job, and one that hundreds of them are not capable of coping with. You know the delight they bring you later on, when insects and fruit and berries are plentiful, and you know their tremendous worth to you in destroying the insects that would make this a bleak old world were it not for them. But you nevertheless are inclined to forget them along about this time of year—the time when they need your help most.

Start today and throughout the remainder of the winter scatter a few crumbs daily to the birds outside your home.

King Midas Had Donkey Ears

King Midas, although the world's richest man, had donkey's ears. So the legend tells us. And his barber, unable to contain the dreadful secret, whispered it into a hole in the ground. And the reeds that grew on the spot, says Science Service, repeated his whisper and betrayed the secret. All of this, declares Prof. Robert Lehmann-Nitsche of Berlin, is simply effort on the part of the Greeks to explain the fact that this half-fabulous Oriental monarch wore a cap consisting of a horse's or wild ass' scalp with the ears and part of the mane attached. Professor Lehmann-Nitsche has found widespread evidence of the wearing of such ear-ornamented caps in early times. Later, when metal helmets replaced the original hide caps, they were ornamented with erect metal ears. And the horse-hair crests that still adorn the fancy dress helmets of some heavy cavalry corps are a last remnant of the mane that hung from the old horse-scalp caps of ancient hunter-kings.

Betsy Ross' Name

Ross was Betsy Ross' maiden name, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. She was the daughter of Samuel and Rebecca Ross. In 1772 she eloped to Gloucester, N. J., with John Ross, an upholsterer, and there married him. It was as the widow of Ross that she achieved fame by her reputed making of the first American flag. In 1777 she married Capt. Joseph Ashburne at Old Swedes church. Ashburne was captured by the British and died in Old Mill prison, Plymouth, England. In 1783 she married John Claypoole.

Marijuana's Origin

Marijuana's origin goes back to 1090 when sheik-dominated tribes in the Orient were introduced to the drug. Sheiks subjected tribesmen to the drug. Finding pleasure in it, they became more subjugated because they wished the opiate and could get it only from the sheiks. Known in the East as hashish, the drug gave its name to a cult or tribe known as Hashishans. Its members were murderous under the influence of the drug and from the name of the cult comes the modern word "assassin." On this continent the plant has the scientific name of cannabis sativa. Commonly the drug is known as "loco weed," "muggles" or "reefer." Used most commonly in cigarette form, it produces a feeling of acceleration and results in high states of irrationalism. Destroying brain tissue, it leads to insanity.
