The action was taken to place that city in line to benefit from Bonneville power when transmission lines are built to Eugene. Superintendent J. W. McArthur said nothing final would be done about securing the power until the city had definite figures on power rates.

The Bonneville men's volleyball team, composed of Carlton, Reimer, Neiss, Miller, Winslow, Richen and Marcus, came up with a well earned three-out-of-five victory, and a women's team, composed of Mrs. Torpen, Mrs. Carlton, Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. Lautman, Mrs. Skinner, and Mrs. Hughes, duplicated the performance of the men's team in five very well played games. Reed proved superior in Badminton and defeated the Bonneville basketball team, 34 to 28. The seventh grade history class has an interesting display of history projects on the Colonies. A great deal of time has been spent by individual workers outside of class to display a typical representation of his colony. There is an interesting representation of William Penn trading with the Indians, of the type of government desired by the early Carolinas, of a southern plantation, of the early city of Salem, of the harbor of early New Amsterdam, of the feeling displayed toward Georgia, of the colonists leaving Massachusetts and going into Connecticut, etc.

Later in the spring the children expect to make a display of these projects and invite the public to see them.

"Lake Bonneville" Leads in Straw Vote

Votes for the lake-naming ballot being conducted by the Sun and the Bonneville Dam Chronicle continued to come in this week, with Lake Bonneville still leading. The vote is being taken to determine public sentiment as to what the new body of water being formed by Bonneville Dam should be called. Nine persons have been found who prefer that the name should remain "Columbia River," though the body of water will be a comparatively still pool. Advocates of naming it a lake argue that any lake is nothing more than a still body of water wider than its inlet and outlet.

Tabulations received to date are as follows:

Lake Bonneville	59
Columbia Lake	30
Lake Waucoma	19
Lake Cascade	17
Lake Roosevelt	12
Lake Oregon	9
Cascadian Lake	4
Lake Chinook	3
Lake McLoughlin	3

Truly a "Winter Wonderland" will be the setting of the Legion-Auxiliary dance which takes place at Legion Hall on January 22nd. Dancers will glide beneath a deluge of snow flakes and icicles, frosted windows will enclose them. Even the orchestra will be surrounded by snow and ice. Fluffy little snow birds will huddle on a wierd glittery blue tree. Blue-frosted bulbs will lend the effect of winter-light.
