ALL SET TO START

Here's the first call for the bucket and mop brigade, the rake and shovel regiment, the paint and whitewash corps and the hatchet and saw recruits. The spring push is about to get under way. The entire nation is arming for its annual war on dirt and rubbish, soot and disease-breeding dumps. It's a mighty army that is now getting set for its annual campaign, and it behooves everyone in the dam area to promptly fall in line.

There's no way of estimating the benefits that arise from a clean house, clean yard and a clean community as a whole. It not only means more comfortable living conditions, but it assures health and prevents epidemics that might easily claim a heavy toll of death. Starting early means more time for other duties, too, and serves to lighten the jobs that come along later in the season.

It is well to remember that no better beautifier and no more effective sanitary agent can be procured than whitewash. Use it, as well as the raw, unslacked lime plentifully about your premises. But get on the job now, for once you start your neighbors will follow your example, and everyone will be encouraged to clean up and brighten up the premises. Roll up your sleeves, whistle if you can't sing and help make the home town shine like the noonday sun.

The World

With newspapers telling of rains and typhoons, And rumors of wars and the fate of the goons— It seems that the average news-reading person Forgets about Ghandi and Aimee McPherson.

The Wife

The wise husband is the one who buys such expensive china that his wife won't trust him to wash the dishes.

The Weather Prophet

Prophets and prognosticators who pronounce and proclaim they possess the privilege and prerogative of predicting precipitation on plateau or planet may be pretinent and perhaps passable in part. But published promises of prophets is permeable and not perplexing if a person perceives his presumptuous perspective and how persistently he predetermines precipitation.

OUR HELPING HANDS

Once more the shades of evening fall,
And I'm at home again;
I sit me down in my little nook,
And wield my favorite pen.
I take my letters in their turn,
And try to do my do;
This Sunday night, I'm going to write
A letter just to you.
I'm happy, today, yes, quite, and well,
There's sunshine every day,
There's a lot things I'd like to write,
A heap I'd like to say.
The Helping Hand is still on earth,
This you can plainly see,
You ought to see the cheering notes,
That each mail brings to me.
Each added member makes one more—
Our club, it still expands,
Our chain of friendship is getting long,
With good old helping hands.
My friends are loyal to the core,
Yes every one and all;
For they have pledged their kind support
'Till sun and moon shall fall.
As long as waves shall beat the shore,
On time's eternal sands,
They promise they will stay by me,
And be my Helping Hands.
—I. N. Bradford

(Mr. Bradford is not only a poet, but the author of a New Recovery Plan, and he tells us that several of his friends have advised him to enter it in Dr. Townsend's "Better Plan" $500 contest, soon after the contest is open to the public.)

Townsend News

Well, well, farmers, how do you like the new farm control bill? How do you like to have administration agents, advisors, superintendents and overlords, each having a secretary, coming to call on you, telling you what to plant, how much not to plant, what you must pay your help and so on? And that isn't all; sooner or later you will pay all these people who control you, in added taxes. They must have a job you know.

Be sure the cow, or horse, or hogs, or chickens do not get on the land not cultivated or eat any of the crop you have raised, or another agent will camp on your farm and watch you day and night. You might have to feed and lodge him. They do in Germany. The government fixes prices for you too. If you don't believe it, get a copy of the law. It will be good reading anyway. If that is too much trouble, read the article by Villard in the Sunday Oregonian, February 13. Now all of this is done to keep the production down to the level of consumption. Would it not be much better to give the hungry and ragged better jobs at good wages, that they might buy all you farmers produce and be able to pay you decent prices? Can't you see it is the huge lack of buying power in the common people is the reason you are having such a struggle?

You say the Townsend Plan is not practical. It won't work. How about the plans and experiments that have been tried? Have they worked? More people out of work than last year and more suffering and fear everywhere. What will happen if this condition continues? Where are we drifting? I shudder when I think of this terrible condition and the silly proposals to help. You who oppose the Plan, come out to hear our next speaker. —A Loyal Townsendite.

The Church Serves the Community

(Following is the second of a series of articles prepared by local ministers and church leaders as a part of the lenten program of the churches of the county.)

THROUGH RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

Religious Education is one of the main functions of the church. That the church realizes the tremendous importance of this task is shown by the great amount of time and energy, and the number of organizations devoted to accomplishing it, a far greater proportion than is given to any other phase of the church program.

The aim of Religious Education is the development of persons of all ages into growing Christians; and to make Christ more real in the life of our church, our homes, our community and our world.

The usual agencies thru which our churches work to accomplish this purpose are Christian homes, the Sunday School, young people's meetings, week day Bible school, Summer Daily Vacation Bible School, Leadership Training Institute and the reading of Christian books and magazines.

The Church seeks thru these means to give an understanding of our Christian heritage, an understanding of the Bible, the personality and teachings of Jesus, the lives of great men who have followed Him and to apply this to our present day life. It strives to give to us a sense of our dependence on God to make better citizens of all, to give our children and all of us, higher personal standards of life, and a willingness to sacrifice personal pleasures for the good of others. The training in loyalty, leadership, service, honesty and reverence, helps to develop growing Christians and a more Christian community.

These Religious Educational agencies of the church seek to help persons, young and old alike, to think through critically the life situations and problems which we face as individuals and groups. In a world whose standards are very much confused, it teaches us to interpret life in the light of Jesus' spirit and teachings and to learn to act in the most Christian way.

The extent to which Christian ideals are put into actual practice in personal living and as citizens of the world, is, of course, the final test of the Religious Educational program. Churches today are seeking through better trained teachers, better equipment, and better teaching methods to help all ages in more practical application of the Christian ideal in life. The "old time" Sunday School methods of "pouring in" stories and precepts and expecting perfect Christian conduct to result is not adequate in such a confused world as our today. (Religious Education has developed along lines of up-to-date personal application to life's problems and current methods of teaching.) Daily vacation Bible school and week day Bible school have an important place in augmenting and supplementing the Sunday School. These offer a better setting for a more practical life application and more time for real Christian study not possible in the Sunday School hour.

The church, then, makes a distinctive contribution to the life of the community that, no other agency is doing or is equipped to do. The importance and value of this work cannot be measured by physical or material standards. It is a work indeed worthy of our time, an energy and full support.
