THE MODERN GRANDMA

If you are one who remembers Grandma as a sweetly wrinkled old lady in lace cap who sat by the fire and knitted on winter evenings, and rocked and fanned herself on the porch in summer, then you are just another old-timer. The activities of a Grandmother's Club recently organized in Chicago will give you an idea how vastly Grandma has changed. The club boasts a membership of 39 grandmothers. One of its members is a candidate for mayor; another employs 300 people in her candy factory; a third heads the B. & O. women's department; a fourth manages a $3,000,000 estate; a fifth (with 13 grandchildren) manages a gravel pit. Like younger folks, these grandmas play as well as work, listing their favorite exercise swimming, horseback riding, bowling and gardening. Mister, you certainly don't know what you are talking about when you suggest pulling out the rocking chair for Grandma of this day and age.

The recent action of congress in appropriating $50,000,000 with which to operate the 1501 CCC camps throughout the U. S. for another year is one federal expenditure which, regardless of a man's political leaning, is pretty apt to have his whole-hearted approval. As viewed by the average taxpayer, the kind of tax spending for which the whole country gets something in return is represented in the CCC. It's the kind of tax paying which makes for a better country in the future because it builds a better citizenship of the material now on hand.

Glance at these interesting figures, issued in connection with the CCC appropriation and you'll better understand why this is true. Started slightly less than five years ago as the nation's first recovery project, the CCC has given employment to more than 2,200,000 persons at various times. The program carried out has included the following: 1,255,262,000 forest trees planted; 64,231 miles of telephone lines erected; 41,133 bridges constructed; 44,475 major type buildings completed; 3,982,720 soil erosion dams built; 2,098,307 acres of forest land improved; 16,722,021 acres cleared of plant disease and insect pests; 120,310 miles of roads and trails built; 4,130,500 man-days spent in fighting forest fires. Of the $30 a month paid to each enrollee, $25 has gone to aid dependents at home, so it is estimated that more than 10,000,000 persons have been aided by the CCC Program.

Give the average taxpayer something to show for his money, and you will hear little protest from him. But give him something that makes a better man of his boy at the same time it is building a better country and you'll hear none at all.

POT-LUCK

And what more wholesome, more enjoyable form of community entertainment could be concocted! Families gather bringing one or two dishes, slightly more abundant than they would consume at home, put them together and the result—a bounteous repast consisting of the finest delectable culinary concoctions that could be put together. For each cook usually prepares her favorite dish, tried and proved through years of recipe experimentation.

Ordinarily at a pot-luck dinner, the wives merely bring a hot dish, a salad, or a dessert with coffee provided by the committee in charge of the dinner. Menus are not drawn up by finicky dieticians or foods chosen to fit some little-appreciated color scheme. What matter if on some occasions there are forty pots of beans submitted and two apple pies are cut into sixty pieces, or at other times forty-five hungry mouths are fed with 30 potato salads, two fried chickens, three cakes, and 20 meat loaves? The beans are the Valley's finest and the potato salad possesses a toothsome quality that cannot be equalled by the best cooks in bon-ton cafes.

Occasionally a little style is lent to a pot-luck dinner by calling it a "covered-dish luncheon," but the matchless food is there nevertheless.

About the only thing we get out of being acquainted with some people is a chance to hear them say disagreeable things about other people.

The fact that pigs would live longer if they didn't make hogs of themselves ought to be a warning to all little boys not to eat too much.

"The early bird gets the worm," asserts Uncle Jeb of Pine Grove, "but he usually gets it from some old bird who doesn't come home from work until along about 9 p. m."

A woman's first duty is to her home, then her hair—and then she can mix up in anything she pleases.

The old-fashioned, broad-minded man who believed there were exceptions to all rules now has a grandson who believes there are violations for all laws.

"It beats all how quick that does it!"

The sheriff's right! Just about the shortest line there is between you and your objective—the inn where you'd like to stop tonight, or the resort where those big fish are said to be waiting—is a telephone line! For accommodations, for a meeting with friends, for saving time and miles—telephone ahead!

HARD TIMES

When time seems to drag and there's nothing to do,
Don't blame the whole world, for it mostly is you,
Don't fold up your hands and try to shirk,
Just roll up your sleeves and get in and work.

Don't stand 'round and kick with your back to the wall,
Just paddle your canoe and hit the ball.
For time is too precious, just wipe off your chin
Just get in and rustle, and the dollars roll in.

Don't shout hard times, say there's nothing to do,
It isn't the world, it simply is you.
