YOUR COUNTRY AND MINE

One hundred and fifty-two years ago our learned forefathers saw the need of establishing this nation under the banner of democracy and for the love of liberty and justice, not for one but the privilege of all men blessed by the rights of American citizens. Sometimes we fail to consider the significance of the day in our more natural desire to consider how and where to spend it. As isolated as some folks may be in regard to habitation they cannot be unaware of the strife and distress in the majority of nations due to fights for liberty and civil rights. Many of our own people at one time called these nations their home.

We live in the shadow of a tri-colored flag beset with stars and realize the meaning of democracy. We have the privilege of developing our intelligence and our business. We pray to keep our homes, our churches and schools, public welfare institutions and our God-given right—the ballot-box, all of these going to make up our measure of freedom. The Fourth of July, the birthday of the greatest nation in the world! History shows us that there is a constant struggle on the part of millions of men and women merely for the right to earn a decent living. Of course we have national problems and there are discrepancies in government we may criticize, but that always holds true in matters of state. There are certain rights we maintain through Declaration of Independence that are unquestionable and will be supported by all of us who call this nation home. People around here pledge again their support of "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." This government of free people has grown in wealth and power since the signing of our independence and will continue to do so. It was John Adams who said, "We shall make this a glorious, an immortal day. When we are in our graves, our children will honor it. They will celebrate it with thanksgiving, with festivity, with bonfires and illuminations. On its annual return they will shed tears, copious gushing tears; not of subjection and slavery, not of agony and distress, but of exultation, of gratitude and of joy."

THE FISH HOG

Now that their brothers have retired to fall and winter quarters, the fish hog is left on the scene by the absence of the road-hog, and no power on earth can rid the human race of him. When the fish hog, who slaughters just to see how many he can catch, or refuses to throw back those of illegal size, will retire from the scene, on one can tell. Fishing is probably the most popular of all our outdoor sports, and is entitled to greater protection than it ever had. As the conservation forces must now operate they will continue to be imposed upon. About the chief hope right now, we are told, is that a few sparks of sporting decency find their way to the hearts of the fish hogs and that they return to the days of good old honest sport, and fish clean. And even that seems too much to hope for.

We read of Willis Mahoney, Democratic senatorial nominee, meeting this one and that one in Washington. Can it be that he overlooked the lad in the Democratic National Committee who holds the campaign purse strings?—Oregon Journal.

Love is said to make the world go 'round—but for that matter, so does a bum grade of liquor.

Since you have to look close nowadays to tell whether a girl is wearing stockings or not, what difference does it make if she's not?

Home is still a boy's idea of the best filling station, and he patronizes it three times a day.

When you are fishing for compliments it is always best to bait your hook with compliments.

More than one man around this town has earned a reputation for wisdom just by keeping quiet and saying nothing.

The luckiest man around here this year is the man who hasn't any daughters and whose wife got a new coat last summer.

Have a fire guard put over the lower part of your screen door to protect it. The greatest wear comes on the lower screening of the door.
