

Household Hints

A woman reader unusually handy with her needle tells how she made slip covers of burlap. "I needed a new day-bed covering," she says, "which is in use every day. Cretonne covering wears out so quickly, so I decided to try something else. I had on hand a collection of burlap sacks, so I decided to sew them together and dye them. You'd be surprised the sturdy—and attractive—slip covers I have produced in this summer."

If sheets are hung on the line dripping wet the weight of the water pulls them down and removes most of the wrinkles.

Flour and sugar are very sensitive to moisture. They should be kept in covered containers and always kept in a dry place.

When making iron or pot holders, put a layer of leather from an old glove through the center, and the holder will never cause burned fingers.

Wash wooden utensils in slightly soap warm water, rinse well and dry immediately. Letting them soak a long time discolors them.

To prevent eggs cracking in boiling water dip them first in cold water.

No jelly needs to be boiled longer than five minutes after sugar is added. Long cooking darkens any kind of jelly.
