WELCOME, JACK

This week Jack Flaucher serves his first assignment as the new council member of Cascade Locks.

Jack is relatively a new-comer to our community but he has fast assimilated the spirit of Cascade Locks. He has visions for the future great things that will be accomplished by progressive, businesslike methods.

"I am happy to be in the position as a councilman of Cascade Locks to do my part in the building of a great city where now stands our community. The only way this can be accomplished is to keep our eyes open and temper our enthusiasm with good common sense," Flaucher stated shortly after being elected.

More power to you, Jack, that's the kind of talk we like to hear.

TRAVEL ON THE RIVER

Stories of 30 years ago come back to us as we watch the river travel on the Columbia plod its slow, sure way up and down this downstream with gasoline, oil, groceries heavy equipment and all manner of other material heading upstream.

Wheat, wool, logs, sand, gravel—heading mighty stream.

Boats in broad daylight! Ships in the night!

The quiet motor of the diesel-driven Inland Chief. The rhythmic chug of the stern-wheeler, The Dalles.

Boats floating gracefully on moonlit-still waters off Weeman Bay! Fighting huge rollers and a heavy wind off Shell Mountain.

The river is open again and men and ships of the river are happy.

Business is not rushing but these boats are on the river again, fighting for their share of the transportation business.

PRAISE DUE CLUB LEADERS

With attention of the boys and girls of the county being focused on the annual school fair, it is enlightening to view the list of clubs and club leaders who have made 4-H work in Hood River County a dynamic endeavor, the magnitude of which is almost astounding.

There are numerous types of work being carried on by the boys and girls of the county and a list of 60 leaders supervises this work. The self-sacrifice and genuine hard work accomplished by the leaders has resulted in far more than will be in evidence at the year's crowning glory when exhibits are put on display at the Hood River Junior High School grounds August 31-September 1.

The 60 club leaders have had a part in building manhood and womanhood and their efforts will reap rewards through the years to come.

NOT OUT OF THE WOODS

The danger season is by no means past as far as the summer's forest fires are concerned. Though humidity readings are not so low as a few weeks ago, and the hazard in general is not so great, it behooves all who visit the forest to continue to use caution, lest the red demon, which so far has spared the Mt. Hood National Forest, breaks out to inflict his damage.

Following is a list of recommendations published by the Forest Service, stating how the general public can help to prevent forest fires:

1. Smoking: Smoke only while stopping in a safe place, clear of all inflammable material; never while traveling in the woods.
2. Matches: Be sure your match is out. Break it in two before you throw it away.
3. Tobacco: Be sure that pipe ashes and cigar or cigarette stubs are dead before throwing them away. Never throw them into brush, leaves, or needles.
4. Making camp: Before building a fire scrape away all inflammable material from a spot 5 feet in diameter. Dig a hole in the center and in it build your camp fire. Keep your fire small. Never build it against trees or logs or near brush.
5. Breaking camp: Never break camp until your fire is out—dead out.
6. How to put out a camp fire: Stir the coals while soaking them with water. Turn small sticks and drench both sides. Wet the ground around the fire. Be sure the last spark is dead.
7. Brush burning: Never burn slash or brush in windy weather or while there is the slightest danger that the fire will get away.
8. Extinguish any small fires you can. Report all fires to the nearest warden or ranger.

INTERESTING, EFFICIENT AND ECONOMICAL

It is obvious there is no advertising service more alive, more effective and more economical than the want-ad section of a country weekly. In it is reader interest, human interest and business interest. With the use of these columns, houses are rented, farms are sold, the wants of humanity are satisfied, swaps are arranged, persons are contacted, merchandise is disposed of, available services of tradesmen are made known.

Radios, national periodicals and sign boards speak of advertising in the thousands and hundreds of thousands of dollars. Want-ad customers usually can transact business with the Chronicle if their ads are less than 25 words in a sum less than a quarter.

FOR RIGHTS

As a nation we believe in rights in religious and civil actions. There is nothing that so stirs us to indignation as to hear about a foreign nation becoming so powerful and domineering that they can interfere with the lives and customs of an under-dog people forced to bow to tyranny. But while we are clucking out tongues at such goings-on in countries beyond the waters, right here in our own boundaries a certain religious group of thrifty, conscientious citizens have been forced to carry an appeal to the Supreme Court regarding whether they might not keep their children in schools which they maintain, or must be forced to send them to schools built of borrowed money from the government.

These people are self-sustaining and one of their principles is to carry on by means of their own power, to rely on their own resources, and depend upon their God and his aid to carry them through. They are quite successful, inasmuch as they farm the richest country in the United States, and are a debt-free people.

They support themselves without the aid of state or government and consequently they dislike going against these principles and sending their children to schools supported on borrowed finances.

This nation is a nation of free people, and however we may feel personally about such matters as these, whether we agree with the sentiments of these others, let us at least be as tolerant in our own country as we criticize other countries for not being.

When a man doesn't advertise, and his business is poor, why is it he always insists on blaming it on "hard times?"

KEIR'S ADD TO STAFF

Household Hints

Place your left-overs in your empty fruit jars and conserve on space in your ice box. You can cut meat into pieces and put gravy over it. Put the vegetables that are left and maybe a portion of a dessert that is better heated. Keep the lids on the jars until ready for use. By putting a roaster or deep saucepan half-full of water, then setting the jars in this water, in ½ hour after the water boils, your entire dinner will be heated and ready to serve without extra pans to wash.

During the season of canning fingertips will probably become rough and stained. It is not necessary to scrub. Simply rub a piece of pumice over damp fingertips. Bleach hands with a lotion of half a lemon. Cream hands well at night and wear a pair of loose cotton gloves and the canning will disappear from the hands.

Newspapers stitched together can be made into fine moth-proof bags to hold stored garments, out of season. Moths are not fond of newspaper. These bags will be found economical and useful.

If fashion has anything more freakish in styles than these new "doll hats," the women folks are wearing, she better trot them out now, for she will be a long time finding a generation as crazy as this one.

The fact that this country is busily constructing dams throughout the nation doesn't get away from the fact that the greatest water power on this earth is a woman's tears.

Talking about teaching fish how to swim is no more foolish than the school Washington is planning where they will teach housewives how to make speeches.
