

Hunters Charge Discrimination

Local hunters who saw the pheasant season close October 15 and the duck season and geese season open, October 16, have been loud in denunciation of Oregon's 1938 hunting laws.

The pheasant was two weeks too early, the hunters declare, coming at a time in this county when fruit was still on the trees and orchards were crowded with fruit pickers. Had the pheasant-hunting period been delayed a couple of weeks, they say, conditions would have been much more satisfactory for the hunters and those whose lands the hunters traverse. It would have been to the advantage of everyone but the pheasants.

Local hunters also feel they have been discriminated against in the duck and geese season. While other counties in Oregon may fire at these migratory birds a full six weeks, from October 15 to November 28, in Hood River, Wasco, Sherman and Gilliam counties only 13 days are allotted: Sundays and Wednesdays of the same period.

Shooting of ducks is limited to between the hours of 7 a. m. and 4 p. m.

Open season on deer closes October 25, according to the game laws.

Silo Silas Sez . . .

One of the saddest sights around Hood River Valley is to see a horsefly light on a radiator.

The man who is wise won't tell his wife his favorite dish. If he does chances are he will wind up having it three times a day.

When you know that more than 200 women hold responsible positions in the executive service of the United States Government, and that more than 50 of these women receive salaries of $5,000 a year or more, you wonder if the woman's place is in the home after all.

Coal, says a scientist, keeps on improving in quality with age. Which gives us a good opportunity to quip, with apologies to wood dealers, that there is no fuel like an old fuel, if you will pardon us!

Our personal idea of a hero is the man who would rather get soaked to the skin than to walk down town carrying his wife's green silk umbrella.

Don't worry about the next generation being soft. Just look at the bond issues it will have to pay off.

If everybody who says he prefers to live in a good neighborhood could get in, it wouldn't be a good neighborhood any more.

Boss (to office boy)—"Johnny, you're fired."
Johnny—"What for? I haven't done anything."
Boss—"That's just it. I'm getting a boy who will do something."

Mother (on train)—"If you're not a good boy I'll slap you."
Junior—"You do and I'll tell the conductor how old I really am."

Contract Bridge A Cinch, Says Expert

Contract bridge is a cinch, according to Sam Gordon, The Kibitzer, in Hood River for a three-day series of contract bridge lesson-lectures on October 20, 21, and 22, sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's Club.

He says that the only aim of two partners in a game is to tell each other how many tricks they expect to take, what is their final best trump suit, if any; and that's all. And to give that information, he says, a player need not be a civil engineer, statistician and a clairvoyant rolled into one.

The subjects to be covered by Mr. Gordon are all that any player needs to play a good game with anybody. The afternoon and night subjects of the same day will be the same. In this manner, the holder of a ticket to the series receives the complete course of subjects by attending either the night or afternoon sessions. And anyone who attends both sessions each day gets a complete review.

His method of counting tricks is the natural way any player would use if he were not confused by experts. You merely total up your aces, kings and queens and the tricks you can trump. All other departments of the game are treated in the same vein of simplicity.

The afternoon and night subjects of the same day will be the same. In this manner, anyone attending either the night sessions or the day sessions will receive the full course. A three-session series ticket holder however may come to all six sessions and thus receive a review of all subjects without extra cost.

Son (entering office)—"Well, dad, I just ran in to say 'hello'."
Father—"Too late my boy. Your mother ran in to say 'hello' a few minutes ago and she got all my spare cash."
