Harvard Student Upsets Girls' Hoop-Rolling Derby French Babies Protected From Gas Attack

Edward C. K. Reed of Villanova, Pa., president of the Harvard Lampoon, disguised himself as a girl and won the traditional Wellesley senior class hoop-rolling contest on the college campus in Wellesley, Mass. Reed is shown emerging from icy Lake Waban where he was tossed by the angry girls. The ducking occurred after Reed coyly accepted a bouquet of sweet peas and bashfully pointed out another Harvard youth as the "fiancee" he would soon wed. Traditionally, the winners of the hoop-rolling race will be the first of her class to marry.

In the event of war and threat of gas attacks, French babies under two years of age will be protected by means of a respiratory device which is connected with the gas mask of the mother. Not strong enough to open the air vents in a regulation gas mask, they are protected by this means. The baby's covering is made of fireproof silk. Professor Le Mee, left, invented the device.

Newsmen View New Low Priced Car

A new low-priced, two-cylinder car, designed for a top speed of 50 miles per hour and a fuel consumption of 50 miles to the gallon, was recently previewed by newspaper men at the Indianapolis speedway. The car, which will sell for a $350 top price, is only 10 feet long, weighs 925 pounds, has a gas tank of four-gallon capacity and the crankcase holds only two quarts of oil. The engine is of a light aviation four-cycle type, while an aviation-type suction blower, part of the flywheel, provides air cooling.

BACK TO THE SEA

Here's a novel idea for sun bathers which should certainly catch on, or rather stick on. The transfer of a boat or seascape is applied to the back, and as the wearer moves, the picture takes on quite a realistic appearance.

JUNGLE STYLIST

Osa Johnson, famous African explorer and producer of wild animal films, is shown demonstrating a high-powered elephant gun which she will carry on her next safari. Mrs. Johnson's clothes are especially designed for use in the dense jungle.
