THE DAILY NEWS, PORTLAND DEBUTIVE AND POLK COUNTY OFFICIALS.

In replying to the slanderous article in the Daily News of the 29th ult., it will be necessary to refer to a little article in the same paper, headed "Many Lynchers Known." In this article, the News scored a strong point in favor of the people.

After the law's delay, yes, there is the sticking point; and we may further add the law's perversion of justice. And, we need not say in regard to the article referred to that it was as false as it was malicious. False, for the people of Polk county prayed it by the course they took on the day of Blackburn's preliminary examination. And who is this Samavel Perimmon who takes it upon himself to blazon forth to the world that the sturdy yeomanry of Polk and Yamhill counties are a lawless mob.

The Central Pacific railroad managers have decided not to show to the Pacific railroads investigating commission the books relating to the various side show companies which have absorbed the earnings of the Central Pacific to the weakening of the hen of the United States government for its claims. These companies constructed the Central and Southern Pacific and all the branch lines and feeders and it is believed it was all done with the money of the Central Pacific and that therefore the government should have a lien upon those properties also for its debt.

If it is a question about which many serious disputes can be made by adroit argument the investigating commission will probably get left before the Railroad Barons' court. The fate of the Mussel Slough settlers shows the folly of bucking against the railroad power of California. The Commission would better do as shrewd lawyers for the defence used to do before a Portland justice of the peace; file an answer make no fight let judgement go and appeal. It was a great saving of time and pointed the moral of the inadequacy of justice in those institutions as then constituted.

The Oregon Central Military Road Co., one of the greatest impostors now leeching the public, is harassing several of the settlers of Klamath and Lake counties, some of whom have deeds to their land from the State or Federal governments. The country has no use for such unscrupulous monopolies, and they should be legislated out of existence. They have a just right to only a small portion of what they claim, and should be allowed to hold no more.

A civil service examination will be held in Portland Friday August 19, commencing at 9 A. M., under the supervision of John T. Doyle, of Washington. Local members of the examining board are H. P. Stephens, superintendent of letter carriers, and Douglas Ladd, chief mailing clerk.

And as the lynching season has fairly set in; Samavel must be very careful lest he take a drop too much. And now a word to the mourners, we mean those Polk county officials who failed to bankrupt the county. Take consolation from the following quotation. "That man's but a picture of what you might be." For, however much in vogue lynching may be at the present time take consolation in the fact that "there is always a calm after a storm" You are all safe at least for the present. And it must not be forgotten that the law is made for the people and by the people, and not the people for the law. And a man cannot reasonably think, when he is a servant of the public, that the public is indubitably bound to bow to his authority, when he falls short of performing his duty as an honest official. The Law as it is at present administered in the United States is like a dark monument behind which Chicago anarchists may hide with safety, where the abodes of vice may be securely wrapped from "just vengeance" by its sable pall.

The vicious administration of the law is what attracts to our shores the vile and dregs of other lands, who hunted from their own countries like wild beasts find this country a harbor of refuge. No sooner do they come here than they begin to sow the seeds of sedition, and their only delight is in anarchy, robbery and bloodshed, and we say to them once for all "Vox Populi," "Vox Dei." The News says "that the majority of the lynchers came from Yamhill county." We challenge it to prove this assertion.

THE RAILROAD BARONS' COURT.

The Central Pacific railroad managers have decided not to show to the Pacific railroads investigating commission the books relating to the various side show companies which have absorbed the earnings of the Central Pacific to the weakening of the hen of the United States government for its claims. These companies constructed the Central and Southern Pacific and all the branch lines and feeders and it is believed it was all done with the money of the Central Pacific and that therefore the government should have a lien upon those properties also for its debt. This proposition is stoutly contested by Stanford & Co., and their witnesses refuse to produce the books. The commission decides to adjourn the question of their right to see the books into the United States court at San Francisco. If it is a question about which many serious disputes can be made by adroit argument the investigating commission will probably get left before the Railroad Barons' court.

The Salem Statesman (anti-prohibition) sometime since assured its readers that there were 200 saloons in Leavenworth, in the prohibition State of Kansas. To make sure of its correctness it sent for information to that city. It received the encouraging reply: "Our saloons were closed up a month ago." It had to suggest they had gone into drug stores—but drug stores are under law now.

A civil service examination will be held in Portland Friday August 19, commencing at 9 A. M., under the supervision of John T. Doyle, of Washington. Local members of the examining board are H. P. Stephens, superintendent of letter carriers, and Douglas Ladd, chief mailing clerk.

ON GOD AND HOME AND SALUTE Mrs. M. E. K. EDWARDS, President and Superintendent.

SELF-SACRIFICE TRIUMPHS.

It should be borne in mind the temperance reform commenced in self-sacrifice, has been upheld by the same means and is advocated on the same principles. Not a single man at this time pointed out who as a leader and advocate of temperance principles has ever made himself rich by his advocacy of total abstinence. If there is a single exception to this rule it is in the case of John B. Gough who it is well known made most of his moderate fortune by his elegant and interesting lectures on other subjects. On the other hand it is well known that hundreds of lecturers and editors have spent thousands of dollars acquired by other means in promoting the cause of temperance. We have known men in this state, who never sought or obtained notoriety, who we are assured have spent hundreds if not thousands of dollars of their own hard earnings in sustaining temperance publications and paying the expenses of lecturers on this coast, and we are satisfied that the cause has been built up to its present magnitude by these self-sacrifices.

Now is it too much to call on all capable of helping forward the great work of emancipating our state and nation from the greatest curse under which we labor to come to the help of the Lord against the mighty hosts of King Alcohol, the destroyer of souls and bodies of men, women and children all over the land? There is no question that if it was asked any one if they believed that the use of intoxicants tended to make any one better, if they believed it made a single one more happy, respected, prosperous or healthy, but the answer would be most emphatically no. Even a distiller, liquor dealer, saloonist or moderate drinker, if honest, would be compelled to answer in the negative even if they condemned themselves in so doing. This being undeniably true what is to hinder the triumph of prohibition except the lukewarmness of its advocates, the wits who pretend to be its friends. When funds are freely contributed for the circulation of temperance papers, documents, tracts and leaflets, when men can be found willing to devote their time and talents to canvassing every city, town, village and camp in the state in the interest of home an "country," we shall see the cause march on to victory, a victory that instead of tears of sorrow will cause tears of heart-rejoicing to flow from hearts that are oppressed with a sorrow that is sapping the very springs of life and destroying all hopes of the future. Let us in the words of Wellington cry to our warriors in this battle for humanity: "Up guard and at them and conquer as they did.—Gal. Voice."
