It represents the column of Trajan in minia ture. This Roman column is adorned with many scenes in sculpture, which tell of the heroic deeds of the Emperor Trajan. On the little needle are pictnred scenes from the life of Queen Victoria, but the pictures are so small that it is necessary to use a magnifying glass in order to see them. The needle can be opened. It contains a number of needles of smaller size, which also contain microscopic pictures. - Public Oninion.

FREAKS OF FORTUNE

A Vonne Retail Clerk Makes a Winning and Quits Work,

Yes, Mac has given up his place and retired," said one, of the floorwalkers of a well-known retail store on Market street to a Call reporter yesterday afternoon, when inquiry was made for the fortunate attache of the estabishment who had made a big winning in The Louisiana State Lottery Company's drawing of last month. For-tune is said to be fickle indeed in her choice of favorites, and as ever, she defies all systematic rules of selection when she casts about her kindly eyes in the search for the object of her

James F. Macklin, the young gentleman referred to above, was conceded to be the luckiest man in San Franeisco on the 13th day of last month It was the day following the monthly drawing of The Louisiana State Lottery Company, and he found himself the possessor of a coupon numbered 11,607, entitling him to one-tenth of the capital prize of $150,000. Young Macklin, scarcely realizing the truth of the glad tidings furnished him in the despatches of the Morning Call of that day, in which the winning num bers were announced from New Orleans, kept his own counsel, and as soon as opportunity offered hastened down to Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Bank, where he presented his coupon for identification and collection. The proceeds of his prize, amounting to $14,850, were handed to him as soon. as an answer was received from the lottery authorities in New Orleans, and he went on his way rejoicing. Mr. Macklin says that he has care fully placed his cripital, and proposed to live on its interest. He has moved from his former residence at 7254 Bush street, and rented an elegant suite of rooms near Powell and Ellis streets, and having resigned his position, proposes to thoroughly enjoy his good fortune. For some time his former fellow-employees were incredu-lous concerning his sudden legacy, and he smiled in secret satisfaction at their individual amazement, until finally the truth leaked out. Macklin has bought tickets off and on for some time past, but never invested more dollar or two in each month. His happy experience has infused a great spirit for wealth among all the retail clerks in the city, and each fortunate possessor of a ticket or coupen anxiously looks forward to the day of anxiously looks forward to the day of the next drawing with the dream and hopes of speedily becoming a Crossus. But there was more than one heavy winner among the San Francisco patrons of the lottery. It is learned that two coupons of ticket 15,322, which drew the third capital prize of $20,000 in The Louisiana State Lottery last month, were presented by two last month, were presented by two fortunate residents of this city to the officials of the Anglo-Californian Bank for collection. A NEW GRANT STORY.

How the General Carrie Late Posses Colonel H. A. Chadwick recently

"In 1864 General Grant was a good deal at headquarters in Washington. He loved a fast horse; and he thought the big chestnut Cincinnatus he then drove wound take the dust from no other in Washington. One day he was spinning along the road on the out-skirts of the town when he noticed a rough-looking grey horse trotting along to a two-wheeled butcher-wagon filled with meat. The General flew past the wagon, but the gray just set back his ears and the way he made the mud fly along that road was just astonishing. He got his nose to the rear of Grant's buggy, he pulled his head up to the hind wheels, and his forequarters were soon pattering along in a swift, never breaking trot near the heels of the great Cincinnatus. Grant got mad and used his whip, the butcher driver laughed wickedly and the meat-wagon jolting and jumping. showered the dirt from its wheels over the General and into the nose of the Monthly.
