THE DEADLY CIGARETTE. The Latest Victim of the Pernicious Little Paper-Covered Tube. Of all the forms of using tobacco the small paper-covered tube known as the cigarette is the most deadly. There are many reasons for this. In the first place the eigarette smoker has no assurance that the tobacco is any thing more than rubbish which can not be used in any other manner. Secondly, The charge was the paper is well known to be exceedingly poisonous; not more so than genuine tobacco, probably, but there is a wild hilarity whic's follows the smoking of paper that speedily breaks down the strongest nervous system. Thirdly, the cigarette is an insidious evil. It is happened that they have been brought so mild, and so handy, and so cheap, into court, or into the presence of peomore of them than he has any idea of The other 997 reasons need not be given said that they had not been out of the house before for months, sometimes for here, as they have been at the four times discussed in the public press, and so great has been the influence of these exposures that eigarette smoking has incruased over 500 per cent. during the last four years. Yet there are people who scoff at the power of the press! is only necessary to show conclusively that a certain thing is very harmful, in order to get thousands of people to them shut up at home. The recent case of Mr. John W. Stebbins, of Wyoming, will do much to open the eyes of the users of the vile weed in its vilest form. It will pain many good people to know that the cigarette has insinuated itself into the rural simplicity of Wyoming. Hitherto the inhabitants of that Territory have been a bined that each multiplies the virtues of guileless pastoral people who occa-sionally indulged in scalping, cattle guileless pastoral people who occa-sionally indulged in scalping, cattle raids and bad whisky, onlivened by a murder now and then, but never has their worst enemy charged them with smoking cigarettes. Now, alas, all this is changed. It is no uncommon sight to see a gang of cowboys peated bly returning to camp after sacking s village, each with a cigarette in his mouth. True, some of the most noble of the cowboys stool out against the of the cowboys stood out against the growth of this habit and shot a few of the smokers, but although this method of argument seemed to be conclusive in individual cases yet matters of policy prevented its universal adoption. So in spite of the best intentions on the part of the opponents of the vice it continued to among the unsophisticated people of the plains. Stebbins fell easy victim to the cigarette and smoked incessantly. The effect of the habit on him was not noticed-until one day he fired at a tenderfoot from the East, three times in succession and missed him every time. This alarmed his friends and they besought him with tears in their eyes to abandon a habit that was doing so much to undermine his usefulness and influence on the plains. Stebbins himself felt rather shaken and consulted a physician, who told him that if he did not give up eigarette smoking he would not live six months. Stebbins agreed to quit-next week. This is a peculiarity of the cigarette smokers. They are al-
