TARIFF REDUCTION.

Below will be found the comments of some prominent papers on the subject of the revision of the tariff. The almost unanimous voice of democratic papers is in favor of a reduction on the necessities of life, while the republican press and a few democrats are in favor of abolishing the internal revenue tax on tobacco and whiskey. All agree, however, that something should be done to relieve the burdens of the treasury and of the people.

The Pioneer Press believes that the next republican campaign for the presidency cannot be fought out on the lines laid down by Mr. Sherman and Mr. Blaine without greatly endangering the success of the party, certainly in the northwest. Whether these lines shall be abandoned by next June for the more advanced positions demanded by the growing sentiment of a large and constantly increasing section of the republican party, it is certain they will be abandoned before the next succeeding presidential election, and the Pioneer Press has much greater hope of a sound and conservative but progressive tariff policy from the younger generation of republicans, who are rapidly coming to the front, than from the party who has always used tariff reform as a catch word, and has never done anything in thirty years to make good its hypocritical professions.—St. Paul Press (Rep.).

If Mr. Sherman means that his speech in pamphlet form shall produce the greatest effect of which it is capable he should cut out the passage in which he recommends such crazy schemes and jobs as the dependent pension bill and the Blair education bill. However much the people may differ among themselves as to the best method of preventing a surplus and reducing taxation, there are not many of them who will take the monstrous position that the way to avoid a surplus is to waste on extravagant and unnecessary measures the proceeds of taxation. Whether there is a surplus or a deficit the duty of congress to be as economical in expenditure as is consistent with good administration remains the same. And here is where Mr. John Sherman makes his mistake.—New York Sun (Dem.).

Western farmers have been raising wheat and corn and southern farmers cotton at a loss, and a bounty of 25 cents a bushel on wheat, 10 cents on corn, and $5 a bale on cotton would be a great relief to them. It would help them to compete in the markets of the world with the wheat of India and the cotton of India and Egypt, both raised by the very lowest priced pauper labor. Besides, raising grain or cotton is just as commendable and patriotic a vocation as raising sugar or catching and curing codfish and mackerel, or making thread and undershirts, and there is not a patriotic consideration in favor of the one that will not apply to the other.—St. Louis Republican (Dem.).

To sum up in a word, the effect of the wool and woollens tariff on the two industries it was designed to foster and protect is this: It has not prevented a decline in the production of wool and a decline in the prices obtained by the grower. It has not brought prosperity to the wool manufacturing business. But it has enabled the foreign manufacturer to debar us from the world's market and even to get a strong footing himself in the American field. Words are not so eloquent as facts in showing the need of tariff reform.—Providence Journal (Rep.).

The price of western farm products is fixed in the world's markets, and the producer is beginning to claim the right to buy the world's markets. It is not reassuring to see the great mass of northwestern farmers adopting an attitude of hostility not only to the protective tariff, but toward the sections that are chiefly benefitted by it.—Springfield, Mass., Republican (Ind.).

An attempt to commit the Federation of labor against any changes in the tariff and in favor of free tobacco and whiskey was a flat failure. The New York Tribune says "the free trade printers of Ohio defeated the resolution." The printers are a level headed class.

The only way to amend the civil service act is to wipe it out. It is a fraud.—Portland News.
