

We are constantly told that if the "workingman" wants not to be reduced to pauper wages, he must vote against Cleveland and Thurman. What "workingman" is meant? It is not pretended that the wages of any "workingman" is raised except those working in the protected industries. But how many workingmen of that sort are there in Oregon? To raise the wages of these few, all the laborers in all other lines of industry must contribute. The wheat raiser in this valley makes the biggest contribution. His earnings are not increased but decreased, and he must find, not a "home market," but a foreign market for his grain. Supposing it to be true that the protected workingman does get higher wages by reason of protection, the argument to him would have force, but how should it be with the workingman who is not only not protected, but who has to pay for the other's protection? The appeal to the protected workingman to vote the republican ticket ought to be equivalent to an appeal to the unprotected workingman to vote the democratic ticket.—Benton Leader.

The Oregon Pacific railroad is the people's friend. Before this line was completed from Corvallis to Yaquina bay wheat brought the farmer of Yamhill county about five cents per bushel more than was realized by his brother in Benton county. Now in consequence of the competition wheat sells for more all over the Willamette valley than before this road was built, and the farmer of Benton county receives from two to four cents per bushel more than is paid in other counties. The roadbed from Corvallis to the bay is in first-class condition, and with the steamer recently purchased, which is now on its way out from New York, the company will have ample facilities for handling all the grain that may offer. Work on the extension east of Albany is being prosecuted with all possible speed, and the contractors are advertising for 500 more graders. They expect to reach the summit of the Cascades this fall.

Europe will need more wheat than she can raise this year. Russia is the only country having a good yield. The cold weather has affected both the amount and the quality. The estimated deficiency in France is 156,400,000 bushels, in Great Britain 28,000,000 bushels and in Germany 10,000,000 bushels. India will exceed the yield of 1887 by 20,000,000 bushels and Russia by 15,000,000. No great demand is expected at once, but higher prices must come.

Work on the jetty at Yaquina bay will commence again in a few days, and will be carried on as long as the weather will permit. It is a large undertaking, and one that will be of great value to the state when completed.

The state election in Maine will be held next Monday. This is the last state except Georgia to vote before the November election. Georgia will elect governor and legislature October 3d.

Charles S. Voorhees was nominated by acclamation for re-election to congress by the democrats of Washington territory at Spokane Falls this week.

President Cleveland has nominated Charles E. Boyle, of Pennsylvania, to be chief justice of Washington territory.
