

"NASAL VOICES, CATARRH AND FALSE TEETH."
A prominent English woman says the American women all have high, shrill, nasal voices and false teeth.

American women don't like the constant twittering they get about their nasal voices, and yet it is a fact that they are carrying a nasal atmosphere, and the universal presence of catarrhal difficulties.

But why should so many of our women have false teeth?
That is more of a poser to the English. It is quite impossible to account for it except on the theory of diseased stomach action caused by impudence in eating and by want of regular exercise.

Boh conditions are unnatural. Catarrh troubles every where prevail and end in cough and consumption, which are promoted by malnutrition induced by deranged stomach action. The condition is a modern one, one unknown to the ancients who prevailed with abundance of food and regular use of what is now known as Warner's Log Cabin cough and consumption remedy and L. G. Cabin sarsaparilla, two old-fashioned stomach remedies handed down from our ancestors, and now exclusively put forth under the strongest guarantee of purity and efficiency by the world-famed makers of Warner's safe cure. These two remedies plentifully used as the fall and winter seasons advance, together with an occasional use of Warner's Log Cabin rose-cream, to strengthen and protect the nasal membranes, give a positive assurance of freedom from catarrh and those dreadful and neglected, inevitable consequences, "nasal voices," lung troubles and consumption, which so generally and fatally prevail among our people.

Comrade E. H. Fisher, of Salem, Henry Co., Iowa, served four years in the late war and contracted a disease called consumption by the doctors. He had frequent hemorrhages. After using Warner's Log Cabin cough and consumption remedy, he says, under date of January 19, 1888: "I do not bleed at the lungs any more, my cough does not bother me, and I do not have any more smothering spells." Warner's Log Cabin rose-cream cured his wife of catarrh and she is "sound and well."

Of course we do not like to have our women called nose talkers and false teeth owners, but these conditions can be readily overcome in the manner indicated.

ABUSE OF BASE-BALL.
Why Prof. school Ball-Playing is Harmful to the Cause of Physical Training.
Every true friend of athletics must regret the use that is being made of this game in the professional field. It is, of course, a misnomer to apply the term athletic exercise, in its ordinary sense, to a professional base-ball game. The men who manage these games, and those who engage in them, do so without any idea of the physical benefits that may be derived from them. The benefits sought after are financial and not physical; the development of the pocket-book and not of the muscle. The character and aims of the professional ball clubs are very much the same as that of the theatrical troupes traveling around the country. It is the gate-money in the one case and the box-office receipts in the other that constitutes the chief end of respect such a performance. — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

MAN'S TRUE CHARACTER.
In Most Instances It Is Called Forth Only by Great Emergencies.
Great emergencies call forth the great soul. War in the twinkling of an eye turns village drunks and pettifogging lawyers into Generals and statesmen. Love transforms Cymon from the first hundred miles of the track by the power of the Frank Pargoud added to her own, and many steamboat men have ever since regarded the Natchez as the fastest boat of the two, but think she was outgunned in the race by the Lee. There was so much adverse comment afterward by the press that there has been no attempt since to repeat such a performance. — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE HEATHEN CHINESE.
How Discipline Was Administered to a Suspected Celestial Farmer.
Yesterday news reached the officials here of a summary execution which took place at Nyan-tong-hien, one of the towns belonging to the Fu. A farmer in that district named Pa'n (nicknamed "Toh Chao, because he had only a thumb on his left hand") was said to be the head of a secret society numbering several tens of thousands, in this province and Shantung. As he was constantly going to and fro, and was supposed to be plotting against the Government, two military officers, acting under instructions from their superiors, resolved to arrest him the next time he returned home. With this purpose in view, they surrounded his house with a band of soldiers; but on approaching nearer one of the officers was shot dead, and the man broke from the house and fled. He was soon overtaken and disabled by a blow from the other officer's sword, when he was slowly tortured to death by the soldiers gnashing his body to pieces with their knives. They then tore out his heart and hung it up on a pole in front of his house to intimidate his followers. Before attempting to escape from the house, the unfortunate man had killed his daughter, a girl of sixteen years of age, fearing lest she should be assaulted by the brutal soldiers. The surviving officer came yesterday to report the case to the Chinese, the Brigadier General, who lives here. — Pekin Gazette.

THE EARL OF BUCKINGHAM.
The Earl of Buckingham, who by the way, must not be confounded with the Duke of Buckingham, was a fifteen-dollar a month farm laborer in this country some seven years ago. He is then Lord Hobart, and so abominably impudent that he preferred to sink his ruck and seek his living in this country to living in genteel poverty in his own. He is a lineal descendant of the English patriot John Hampden, and on succeeding to the title advertised the family estate for sale. His recent marriage, however, with a very wealthy girl has completely restored the fortunes of his house.

GREAT STEAMBOAT RACE.
More Than a Million Said to Have Been Staked Upon the Result.
The greatest steamboat race that has ever run in the world was that which occurred in June, 1870, from New Orleans to St. Louis, between the Robert E. Lee and the Natchez. The latter was built at Cincinnati, was commanded by Captain T. F. Leathers, and in June of the above year made the fastest time of 1,278 miles in three days, twenty-one hours and fifty-eight minutes. The Robert E. Lee was built at New Albany during the war and was towed across the river to the Kentucky side to have her engine painted on her wheel houses, a matter that was deemed prudent in those expiring times. She was commanded by Captain John W. Cannon, who died at Frankfort, Ky., in 1882.

There was great rivalry between the boats, and when the Natchez made her great run Captain Cannon determined to beat it. He stripped the Lee for the race—removed all parts of her upper works which were calculated to catch the wind; removed all rigging and outfit that could be dispensed with to lighten her; engaged the steamer Frank Pargoud to precede her a hundred miles up the river to supply coal; arranged with coal yards to have fuel flats awaiting her in the middle of the river at given points, to be taken in low water way until the coal could be transferred to the deck of the Lee, and then to be cut loose and float back. He refused all business of every kind, and would receive no passengers. The Natchez returned to New Orleans and received a few hundred tons of freight and a few passengers, and was advertised to leave for St. Louis on June 30.

In the afternoon the Robert E. Lee backed out from the levee, and five minutes later the Natchez followed her. The whole country watched the race with breathless interest, as if had been extensively advertised by the press, and the telegraph attended its progress along the river at every point. At all the principal cities—Natchez, Vicksburg, Helena, and Memphis—people for many miles were present to see the racers pass, and the time of passing was called to Europe. When Cairo was reached the race was virtually ended, but the Lee proceeded to St. Louis, arriving there in three days, eighteen hours and fourteen minutes from the time she left New Orleans, beating by thirty-three minutes the previous record of the Natchez. The latter steamer had run into a fog and grounded between Memphis and Cairo, which delayed her more than six hours. It is said that 30,000 people crowded the wharf, the windows and the housetops to welcome the Lee on her arrival at St. Louis. Captain Cannon was tendered a banquet by the business men of the city, and was generally lionized while he remained here.

It was estimated that more than $1,000,000 changed hands on the result of the great race. Many of the bets were withdrawn, however, on the ground that the Lee had been assigned the first hundred miles of the track by the power of the Frank Pargoud added to her own, and many steamboat men have ever since regarded the Natchez as the fastest boat of the two, but think she was outgunned in the race by the Lee. There was so much adverse comment afterward by the press that there has been no attempt since to repeat such a performance. — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE CANDIDATE AT HOME.
A Realistic Picture of the Trials and Tribulations of Our Great Men.
"Yes, my dear," remarked the candidate to his wife, as with a weary sigh he removed the wrappings from a large yellow silk pin-cushion with his initials on it, and sent the girl down stairs with $4.82 for the expressman; "yes, I fully appreciate the honor that some of the people of this great and ever-fervent Republic have done me in nominating me for so high an office; but I could wish that they would be somewhat less flippant, as it were, in their method of expressing their esteem and admiration."

He here stopped to replace the cover on the box containing the twenty-year-old rattlesnake that had been sent him by a constituent in Wyoming, an act which he performed just in time to prevent the playful reptile from meandering out and making a light lunch of the baby. This done, he resumed, said: "It must, of course, be highly gratifying to any properly constructed candidate to have an enthusiastic people pouring a perfect avalanche of, if may be permitted the expression, of canoes, cigar-cases, underwear, boasts of assorted sizes and colors, and other useful articles upon him; he can not but feel proud to think that his house is the objective point of every express wagon in town, and that people all over this great and glorious land are sitting up nights and neglecting their business to make rare and curious articles of vertu for him. But in time even this becomes monotonous, and—"

Here the gentleman in a way that another consignment of yellow dogs had arrived, and that the expressman wanted eight dollars more. With a sigh the candidate produced the money, and ordered that the dogs be put down cellar and made as comfortable as possible. "I do not mind dogs so much," he remarked, "but snakes and prairie wolves seem to me in bad taste, and I earnestly deprecate—"

"There's a man down-stairs," interrupted the girl, re-entering the room, and falling over the twenty-pound bundle cut, which a lady in Michigan had sent him for twelve dollars, "and he says that he has just named his two-horns' old baby after you, and thought he would come round and let you know, so that you would not feel whimsical about it."

"This is getting played out," howled the candidate; "I've got no more money to invest in that way, and that settles it. Give him a spoon out of the holder, with my regards, and tell him I'll call round again, kigs the baby as soon as I get time."

PRUDENCE! PRUDENCE!
In medication, as in aught else, prudence should be our guide. Yet thousands read it in the words. Every newspaper finds its job in the hands of the ignorant. Every school has its lesson in the hands of the ignorant. Every man is a student of the ignorant. Every woman is a student of the ignorant. Every child is a student of the ignorant. Every man is a student of the ignorant. Every woman is a student of the ignorant. Every child is a student of the ignorant.
