

WEST SIDE TELEPHONE.

McMINNVILLE, TUESDAY, JULY 6, 1886.

THE STATE VOTE.

Following are the majorities received by the state officers at the June election, except governor, the vote for that office being opened and counted by the legislature:

Congress—Hermann, 1635.
Secretary of state—McBride, 260.
Treasurer—Webb, 1778.
Superintendent of public instruction—McElroy, 1306.
Printer—Baker, 988.
Supreme judge—Strahan, 234.

There were 54,954 votes cast in the state. Kinney, prohibition candidate for secretary of state, received the highest vote of any candidate of that party, the number being 2,775.

Following is the vote of the third judicial district for judge and prosecuting attorney:

As Americans we have enough to do to attend to our own affairs and not pretend to meddle in the political contests which are now agitating European monarchies. Our own people have burdens to bear which need immediate remedy, and to accomplish which will require our united energies. The opening of the Columbia river is of greater importance to the people of Eastern Oregon, says the Times-Mountaineer, than a change of government in Italy, Germany, Russia, Bulgaria, Greece or England, and to that end we should use every effort. Our grain shippers and producers have to suffer under a burden of heavy and unjust tariffs which are more detrimental to our industrial development than all things else, and as patriots—as citizens of the greatest republic which has ever existed, we should use every effort to free our producers from unjust discriminations, which are impoverishing our people and placing them on a level with European paupers and serfs. The most gigantic frauds of the century have been perpetrated in America upon a free people by monopolies, and it is a burning and lasting shame that every petition for redress to a national legislature—the members of which have been elected by our suffrages—is met with dilatory action or treated with such indifference that amounts to the most contemptuous scorn. For years the people of Eastern Oregon and Washington have been handicapped by wagon road and railroad grants, and the future bears as gloomy an aspect as the past. Is there no relief from the control of monopolists, or must the settlers of this fertile section patiently bear the burden and pass under the yoke like the conquered slave?

The state legislature at its last session appropriated $250 toward erecting a monument to the memory of Senator J. W. Nesmith, whose death occurred a year ago. A number of citizens of Polk county have organized themselves into a committee and are soliciting funds to be added to the state's money so that the monument erected will be worthy of the man whose memory it is to commemorate. Nesmith is buried near Dixie, Polk county, in a beautiful spot in a grove of fir trees, on the south bank of the Rickreall, which overlooks a fine stretch of country. His body lies within one hundred yards of the place where he was married to Miss Pauline Goff, in 1847, and the grave is unmarked by any stone. Nesmith selected this resting place years ago, and often when he was entertaining visitors at his home he would become serious and tell them of the future solemn use of the beautiful spot.—Salem Talk.

In the east an organization called the "Law and Order League" now steps to the front with a membership of 17,000. Included in the membership, it is said, there are many laboring men, engineers, conductors and Knights of Labor, who express firm allegiance to the league in preference to any other order. Its principal object is to prevent labor disturbances and discontinue strikes. The latter come in for particular condemnation, a committee of the league being appointed to investigate all boycotts, and where employers are found to be unjust, to let them alone, but where an employer has given no cause for such extreme measures, then to go to his assistance.

If the Northern Pacific road had fulfilled all its obligations it would have been entitled to 42,000,000 acres of land, which, at $4 an acre, the average price realized by it for lands sold, would have bought $168,000,000 in cash. As the completed road has cost only $75,000,000, the balance in favor of the company, provided it is allowed to retain the grant, figures up a handsome sum for the "benefactors of the people."—Hillsboro Independent.

Five years ago last Friday, president James A. Garfield received his death wound.

CALIFORNIA AND OREGON.

San Francisco, July 1.—Matters at the railroad front on the California and Oregon wear a promising aspect, and there is little doubt that rail connection between this city and Portland will be an established fact before the close of another year. According to latest reports the advance guard of the right of way men have completed their labors in Northern Shasta county, and have passed into Siskiyou. The pot-hole men are near Bailey's, and several gangs of graders are close behind them. The culvert builders are at Big Castle creek only a few miles from the northern boundary of Shasta county. The bridge at the tenth crossing of the Sacramento is completed, and the track has been laid to the eleventh. The main force of bridge builders is now at work at the twelfth and thirteenth crossings. A depot is about to be erected at Hazel creek. The California & Oregon stage company has moved its southern terminus from Slate creek to Gibson, to which point through passengers and freight trains are now running. It is expected that October 1 will find the track completed to Lower Soda Springs, as the company is increasing its force daily. The engineer corps is now at the Upper Soda Springs. It is thought that two tunnels will be necessary between Strawberry valley and Big Shasta. The engineers are having trouble in finding a practicable route through the valley. Land speculators and tourists are flocking to the newly developed region in great numbers.

It is not definitely known what action the Oregon & California railroad Co. will take with regard to the proposition to extend its line south from Ashland, Or., to connection with the California & Oregon. The condition of affairs of the Oregon road is such that further construction is hardly deemed advisable, although stockholders are anxious to see the original project of completing the road to the state line fully carried out.

There is a fair promise that before the end of the year the stage road mileage between the terminus of the two roads will be reduced to 80 miles. It is now about 110.

The people of Yreka have not given up their hopes of rail connection through the medium of the California & Oregon, but the engineers of the Southern Pacific company say that the steep approaches to the town will hardly permit the construction of the line to that point.

PRESS WARNING.

The Herald—The "Little Joker" in Mr. Randall's tariff bill is just what we supposed it would be. He proposes to sacrifice $26,000,000 of internal revenue from tobacco in order to render impracticable any genuine reduction of tariff duties on the necessities of the people.

The Journal—For vetoing bills which have no merit, and some that he has vetoed did not have merit, the president is to be commended. He is equally deserving censure for vetoing bills which are designed to relieve persons in distress who have honest claims based upon injuries received in the faithful discharge of duty.

The Globe—Unfair critics of the administration have tried to make a point on the conduct of the pension office by Gen. Black. The facts are that Gen. Black has followed to a dot the course pursued by his predecessor, Commissioner Dudley.

The Tribune—In vetoing in a few months nearly as many bills as were vetoed by his predecessor in all the history of the government, the president appears to have discovered that his office is not the "essentially executive" place that he thought it was when he was nominated. Indeed, he now seems to think that it is more legislative than executive. What will be his next discovery?

The Sun—The country can get along perfectly well without any river and harbor bill this year. The house should not yield as it usually does to the senate. The reputation of the democratic party for economy must not be sacrificed in weak-kneed conference.

The World—When Gen. Black was called to the head of the pension bureau the whole country endorsed the appointment of the gallant soldier. If the president chooses to side with the enemies of his party who are clamoring for the scalp of a faithful official, nobody will question his right, but will he strengthen his administration thereby.

ANOTHER FAMOUS FOLSON.

A telegram from Washington, D. C., conveys the following interesting information: The Folson family has been brought into prominence by the presidential marriage. Some of the ladies of the Folson family contracted well-to-do alliances, although none of them quite so distinguished as the Buffalo young lady. There was Amelia Folson, who lived at Keokuk, Iowa, who wedded a prominent man who will live in history quite as long as Cleveland. Amelia Folson is a cousin of Mrs. Cleveland's mother. She went to Salt Lake City some years ago, where she met saints of the Mormon church. It is said that in face and form she much resembled the lady now in the white house. She was much admired by Brigham Young, the Mormon bishop, and consented to become his sixteenth wife. Brigham Young and Amelia Folson were joined in celestial marriage in the temple. She was followed in the succession of marriages by Ann Eliza, seventeenth wife, who has since become famous by renouncing polygamy and revealing the secrets of the church.

A dispatch to the Oregonian from Pendleton, dated July 4, says: "State treasurer elect G. W. Webb's house and contents burned to the ground last night at 10 o'clock. Nothing was saved. It was caused by a lamp explosion."
