

GRANT.

[Oregonian, 23.] To-day is the anniversary of the death of Grant. When the whole world a year ago hung anxiously over the great soldier's pillow and read the daily record of his hopeless death struggle it was facile said of him in the words of Keat over the dying Lear: "O, let him pass!"

The romance of Grant's career was completed in that last sad chapter when he faintly tasted of death and then was transiently restored to have his heart cheered by eloquent words of love and praise that are seldom spoken in the ears of the living. In those four months of respite his dying hours were soothed by the knowledge that the nation, north and south, sincerely admired and respected him out of a larger knowledge of his simple strength and kindness of his character than it had possessed before.

Below we give the latest prices from principal markets of the United States: San Francisco—Spot market firm at $1.27 1/2@1.29. Futures active; buyer season, $1.33@1.32 1/2; buyer year, $1.22 1/2@1.22 1/4; July, $1.27 1/2 bid.

Both postmasters on this river are republicans.

Lee in defeat; to Hancock, when he sent in his name for promotion with a warm endorsement, on the heels of a personal rupture between them. As a husband and father he was tender and true; as a friend he was loyal to the verge of fanaticism. In his early military career in Oregon he was reported to be intemperate; if this is true, it is also true that in his after life he rose above this infirmity and bore himself with dignity and self-restraint. Called a silent man, because he was not a platform or after-dinner orator, he was a man of superior powers of conversation; as a writer, he was a master of clearness and simplicity of statement. He was so generous a man always to the widows, daughters and sisters of his old comrades in arms, that he left the White House with less property than when he entered it. He was a vigorous, honest hater, but never a mean unmanly foe. Gen. Hawley felicitously applied to him Beattie's lines:

Patience, calm, serene amid alarms, Inflexible in faith, invincible in arms, When his long agony and weary vigil ended a year ago, and Grant went where wounds of body and soul cease from troubling, and the pain-raught soldier and statesman was at last at rest, every battle-battered soldier who followed him to final victory, or marched valiantly with Sherman singing his way down to the sea, mourned sincerely for the great commander who blew the bugle call of rally at Shiloh and was a rock of resolution in the Wilderness.

THE WHEAT OUTLOOK.

The following is from the Cincinnati Commercial: "Suppose the entire crop should be modified to 425,000,000 bushels. With 85,000,000 bushels of surplus (including flour) of previous growth, representing 50,000,000 which can be made available for movement, the position would be an available supply of 455,000,000 bushels, from which home requirements would call for 355,000,000, leaving 120,000,000 bushels for export purposes for the year—25 per cent. more than such movement the last year. We believe in higher prices for wheat the coming year than have been obtained for the last crop, but this is based upon the presumption that values in the early part of the season will remain at a point that will of a good export movement of the surplus, and the avoidance of the great visible supply which bore so heavily upon speculative markets the past year, at home and abroad.

Hors.—Latest advices bring about new complications, buyers seeming to hold back and growers wanting extreme prices. If anything is being done here just now, it is on the quiet. At New York common hops sold late last week in large quantities from 20@24 cents. Lots which sold three weeks previous at 7 cents were sold at 24 cents, and choice could not be had below 28@30 cents.

The Denver Times says: The Chicago & Northwestern railroad will not rest at the town of Douglas, in Wyoming, which will be reached about September 1st. It has during the past week prepared plans and specifications and let a contract for grading the main line—the shortest route from the Missouri river to the Pacific coast—150 miles west of Douglas. Contractor Treat, who is now grading the Douglas division, and is fully prepared for rapid work has the contract. This does not mean an alliance with the Central Pacific at Ogden. In the Northwestern programme there are no entangling alliances. It means a direct line from Chicago to the Pacific coast with a system of feeders to be developed hereafter.

President Cleveland is evidently a good penman—especially on the "veto" system. He has made it a point to set down heavily upon all pension bills presented to him, and now it is thought he will do the same with the river and harbor bill. Surely mugwumps must feel proud of their president.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—A letter has been received from Senator Logan by the republican alliance, in response to the invitation sent him to address the republicans of San Francisco on his arrival here. He writes: "My trip to the Pacific coast will necessarily be a hurried one, and not intended as a political one in any sense. I had not thought of making political speeches, and would rather not do so, but when I arrive in your city it will give me great pleasure to confer with your committee."

A new butcher shop has just put in an appearance, and is owned by the parties running the shop at Dallas. "A long felt want supplied."

Steel for the narrow gauge.—The undaunted, the first of three vessels containing the rails and fastenings for the P. & W. V. narrow gauge railroad, arrived in San Francisco Friday. This vessel contains 1000 tons of steel rails etc., are to be transhipped and will arrive here by steamer within the next ten or twelve days. The other two vessels on the way are the Abner Coburn and St. James, and are expected to touch at San Francisco daily, whence they will go for Portland at once with the remaining railway material. The road from Dundee Junction to Elk Park is graded, trestled and bridged, and will be ready for the rails on the first shipment. Track laying will be pushed forward with energy to complete the road to move the fall crop to Portland.—Portland paper.
