A country clergyman thinks the horse that does six hard days' work during the week deserves to have an undisturbed rest the seventh. You cannot afford to wear good horses out by making plow horses of them through the week and buggy horses of them Sunday.

Officers of humane societies have had occasions to arrest farmers for cruelty in leading untrained cows, and some expensive law suits have grown up from such treatment of animals. All of this might have been avoided by a half hour's leading of the animal when a calf.

An old farmer being asked the secret of his large crops, replied: "I tell my men to harrow the ground until they think it is harrowed twice as much as it ought to be and then tell them it is not harrowed half enough." Few farmers properly appreciate the value of a thoroughly mellow soil.

RAPID MILKING.

Rapid milking is an advantage, says the Live Stock Journal, if it is done without hurting or irritating the cow and she is milked clean. If not milked in a reasonable time, the cow refuses to "give down." If made to feel comfortable, she just stands and pours out the milk. The rapid milker has the advantage. How long ought it take to milk a cow? Ordinarily about six minutes. A good milker, with good cows, having no impediment in the way of rapid milking, ought to milk ten cows in an hour. Some cannot milk over eight, while others can milk twelve.

Spokane Falls Review: The Old Diminon sends forth ore as fast as the teams call for it. There are two car-loads at the depot, representing three weeks' accumulation. The last two shipments went as well as could be expected, realizing $240 and $275 a ton.

Young men from Mayville, Gilliam county, who were out on prospecting tour discovered gold on the South Fork of the John Day, about 20 miles from Canyon City, and a large party will go there in a short time to test the value of the discovery.

Jacksonville Times: The miners of Foot's creek are cleaning up, with favorable results. Most of them have done better this season than for several seasons past. . . . Shepherd Bros., who are working the ledge on Sugar Pine gulch, two miles south of the Swinburn ledge, have had some rock tested and $40 to the ton is reported. . . . The placer mines of Southern Oregon have generally gone into summer quarters. Much more gold dust has been taken out during the past season than for several years past. . . . Prospects at the Hope ledge on Wagner creek, owned by Bragdon, High, Garrett, Alford and others, are of a favorable nature. They have sunk a shaft 30 feet deep, where the ledge is over 4 feet wide and yields ore containing considerable free gold. . . . Messrs. Castel and Nelson are making excellent headway in Jacksonville Milling and Mining company's tunnel, although they have been working in solid rock much of the time. A number of ledges have been tapped by the tunnel, the ore from some of them looking well. . . . Brown & Co.'s mill in the vicinity of the Swinburn ledge is doing good work. The stamps purchased of N. DeLamater, of Kerbyville, are being used and prove much more satisfactory than the grinding apparatus heretofore used here. There are said to be endless quantities of decomposed quartz, which is easily worked and pays well. Several hundred dollars have already been realized.

MODEL SERVANTS.

Two Excellent Rules For the Management of Green House-Maids.

To make domestic servants efficient and attractive five rules must be strictly observed, viz:

1. Patience.
2. Kindness.
3. System.
4. Never accuse servants unless you have proof of guilt.
5. Never reprove them when you are angry or in the presence of others.

First of all comes Patience—with a big P. In dealing with servants a finer quality of that article is required than the legendary Patience that sat on a monument, for in this case you must smile, not at grief, but at many errors and often gross carelessness or worse.

I was careful in selecting my servant to get a young woman, for I thought she would be more willing to adopt my ways, and in this I was correct. I went into the kitchen and taught her every thing from scouring the tins to making cake. I then taught her the most approved methods of doing the family washing. My next step was to teach her to clean the dining-room thoroughly, polish the silver and glassware, and set the table; now she is an efficient servant. I guess some of my readers will say: "Oh, I would not take all that trouble!" It was trouble, but I am amply repaid for it now, not only in the satisfaction of every-day life, but when I have company I have only to tell her how many to expect and she will have every thing perfectly arranged.

Housekeepers, as a rule, expect too much of servants, and give them too little sympathy in failure. Household work should be systematized. My servant knows what hours and days all her duties come, so everything runs smoothly, and I do not make anybody miserable by it either, as some over-zealous house-wives do. My husband says I have the best managed household in town, and that is stimulant enough to keep me going. Remember this—good mistresses will have good servants. They have joys and sorrows just as we have, and we can sympathize with them without losing one iota of our dignity. Interest them in the family affairs, and they will prove loyal. My servant thinks what ever I have is prettier than anything possessed by any other person, and is exceedingly proud of every thing connected with our home.

As excellent a servant as she is now, when I first hired her she was not strictly honest, and I must relate how I cured her of the habit of stealing. On one occasion we had baked chickens for dinner. One of them being untouched, I told her to make hash of it for breakfast. When it came on the table I saw at a glance that all of it had not been brought in, but, remembering my fourth rule, I said nothing. After breakfast I went into the kitchen to get a pan, and selected one on a distant shelf. As I raised it I saw that it covered a smaller pan almost full of chicken hash. Turning to the servant I asked quietly: "What are you going to do with this hash?" She replied: "Nothing."

I replaced the pan and left the kitchen without another word. All that day I pondered over the question how I was to reprove her for the theft, and during many hours of that night the pros and cons were still floating through my brain. By morning I had arranged them to my satisfaction. Going into the kitchen I said very gently, but firmly: "I wish to speak to you about the hash you took yesterday. I have known for some time that you were stealing from me, but I could never prove it before this. I am very sorry that this occurred, for you are too good a servant to allow such a habit to grow on you. I wish you always to feel at liberty to ask me for any thing you may want, and I will give it to you, but you must never steal any thing from me again." She was crying bitterly before I was half through, and seemed much humiliated. I do not think she was ever guilty of the offense again.

If housekeepers will cease to talk so much about the faults of their servants and the neighbors and talk more to the servants about them, and teach them how to overcome them, there will be many more good servants and fewer women looking careworn and aged before their time.—Mrs. Maud C. Murray, in Philadelphia Call.

—An old lady read a paragraph in one of the papers the other day describing how a grindstone burst in a saw-mill and killed four men. She happened to remember that there was a small grindstone down in her cellar, leaning against the wall; so she went out and got an accident insurance policy and then, summoning a servant, and holding a pie-board in front of her face, so that if the thing exploded her face would not be injured, had the stone taken into the road, where twenty-four pails of water were thrown over it, and a stick was stuck in the hole bearing a placard marked "Dangerous." She says it is a mercy the whole house was not blown to pieces by the thing before this.—Wood and Iron.

Neuralgia and kindred diseases, promptly yield to the immediate action of St. Jacobs Oil, the pain-conqueror.

The harmful and painful results attending the use of cough mixtures containing morphine, opium and other poisons, are daily becoming more frequent. It is for this reason that Red Star Cough Cure has received the unqualified endorsement of physicians and Boards of Health everywhere, as a purely vegetable compound, entirely free from all narcotics. Price, twenty-five cents.

KEPT OUT OF SOCIETY.

Thousands of ladies in this land are continually prevented from enjoying the society in which their beauty and education fit them to shine by a most provoking and painful headache. Sometimes it possesses a neuralgic character; at others, it is a dull but continuous soreness. The Home Treatment of Compound Oxygen supplied by Drs. STARKKEY & PALMER, 1829 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa., is a useful Arch street in such a dilemma. It will not induce an acute case of headache in a few minutes, but if taken regularly for a short period, will prevent the recurrence of the malady. Send for a free pamphlet and inform yourself of the wonderful merits of Compound Oxygen.

Treatment will be filled by H. A. Mathews, 615 Powell Street, San Francisco.

The A. S. N. company's steamer Lyon Moon was wrecked at Greenpeace light-house, on the Australian coast, on the second day out from Melbourne, with a loss of seventy-one of eighty-six passengers and members of the crew on board. The captain and third officer of the steamer are now at Sydney, awaiting trial on charges of manslaughter in connection with the loss of the vessel.

THE LATEST AND GREATEST DISCOVERY.

DR. J. DE PIERCE'S HAMBURG FIGS—a crystallized fruit cathartic. A discovery of the greatest interest to the Medical Profession. A boon to every household. A most delicious laxative or purgative, prepared from fruits and vegetables. So perfectly harmless that they may be administered with entire safety to an infant. So efficacious to adults that a single dose will prove their value, and so elegant a preparation that it needs only to be presented to the public to become a necessity in every household throughout the land. For liver complaints, habitual constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia and piles, they are a specific. To travelers by sea and land they will be found invaluable; they are positively an antidote for cholera, and this is the only medicine ever offered to the public that is acceptable to the taste, and so pleasant that children will eat the figs as eagerly as candy. For sale by every Druggist throughout the world. Price, 25 cents a box. J. J. Mack & Co., Prop'r, 9 and 11 Front Street, San Francisco, Cal.

"The lprous distillment, whose effect holds such an enmity with blood of man, that, swift as quicksilver, it courses through the natural gates and alleys of the body. And causes the skin to become "barked about, most lazar-like, with vile and loathsome crust." Such are the effects of diseased and morbid bile, the only antidote for which is to cleanse and regulate the liver—an office admirably performed by Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery."

Three convicts were shot and killed while attempting to escape from the Arkansas penitentiary.

LOST FAITH IN PHYSICIANS.

There are innumerable instances where cures have been effected by SCOVILLE'S SARSAPARILLA, OR BLOOD & LIVER SYRUP, for all diseases of the blood. And that they have been given over by their physicians. It is one of the best remedies ever offered to the public, and as it is prepared with the greatest care, as a specific for certain diseases, it is no wonder that it should be more effectual than hastily written and carelessly prepared prescriptions. Take this medicine for all disorders arising from impure blood. It is endorsed by leading professional men.

Volcanic eruptions have caused great loss of life and property in New Zealand.

Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" permanently cures those diseases peculiar to females. It is tonic and nerve, effectually allaying and curing those sickening sensations that affect the stomach and heart, through reflex action. The backache and "dragging-down" sensations all disappear under the strengthening effects of this great restorative. By druggists.

CONSUMPTION CURABLE AT EVERY STAGE.

In a review of the English translation of a work by the justly celebrated Faculty of Medical Pathology to the Faculty of Paris, M. Jaccoud, entitled "Curability of Consumption," etc., it is announced "the curability of pulmonary consumption at every stage is now a well-established fact." The author's conclusions are as follows:

To sum up what has been stated, pulmonary consumption is curable in all stages. This is the prolific notion of the present, and which should unceasingly inspire and direct all medical action. Incurability proclaimed by Laennec, his immediate successors is disapproved by pathological anatomy and clinical observation. None should, therefore, allow themselves to be influenced by such a denomination, which is but a historical souvenir. When the existence of tubercles in the lungs is recognized, it should not be deemed to be doomed to death, the sequence of their presence. Should they be found that the tubercles soften as cavern forms, it should not be believed on this account, that all is lost. It is a mere question of time, and the natural tendency which tubercles have to fibrous transformation—that is, recovery—should not be forgotten. Being discouraged, the physician should search and examine incessantly, until the patient in such conditions, for such favorable evolution to occur. All hope of absolute recovery must be abandoned, a relative cure should be wrought, and every exertion be made to place the patient in such conditions, that he can live notwithstanding the lesion which are now irreparable; in a word, plan adopted should be to strive to survive always, with the unshaken confidence which may be drawn from the best medical authorities, that the enemy can be conquered. This is the idea that should engender and sustain every effort. It is certain that this conviction is the first condition of success, since it is absence of faith in the possibility of a cure which prevents the adoption of all therapeutic treatment.

Among the latest additions to the remedial agents that of Professor Dr. J. de PIERCE'S HAMBURG FIGS, which lead the cure of pulmonary consumption. Part of this remedy is not by medicines which act themselves to cure, but by so invigorating and strengthening the system as to enable nature to effect this fibrous transformation from which alone can a cure be effected. It acts by enabling nature to replace the unhealthy by healthy tissue, and by supplying the elements of the body sustains and invigorates the system. Dujardin's Life Essence offers the best means of restoration to health. Edinburgh Medical Journal.
