The train men were engaged in dividing up a freight train, and Donahue rushed out of his office alongside the track as a portion of the train was passing. He was run over by eight cars, cutting off both his legs and severely wounding him on the head and lower part of the abdomen.

A patent has been obtained by a gentleman of San Francisco for what is claimed to be a fire and collision-proof railway car. It is made wholly of iron and steel, and the weight will range from sixteen to twenty tons for ordinary passenger coaches, and from twenty-two to twenty-five tons for sleepers. The floor is a single sheet of metal, and the roof also a single sheet. The beams are of rolled steel to bear the weight of resistance in case of a collision, and owing to the novel and peculiar construction and adjustment, the inventor is confident that the telescoping of cars would not in any event result. Estimates show that the cost of construction will be materially less than the cost of building wooden cars of the same size and weight.

Major-General O. O. Howard, commanding the Division of the Pacific, has submitted his annual report to the adjutant-general, for the information of the lieutenant-general commanding the army of the United States. Referring to means of defense against possible invasion of the Pacific coast, Gen. Howard says: "The forts are not in order. They are not manned with guns of the proper caliber, and what is worse there are no guns of the right size and power in the whole country to bring here. There should be a plant on this coast and speedy preparation for making suitable guns, and other means of defense ought not to be delayed. Shells could easily be thrown from the neighborhood of the Cliff house, outside the harbor, to every part of San Francisco, and without exceeding the modern range could be dropped into Oakland. I therefore recommend that a good torpedo defense may be planted; that a fleet of torpedo boats be constructed, and that the guns now around the harbor be properly mounted; that two floating batteries be built and anchored, as suggested by the board of inspectors appointed under act of congress of March 3, 1885." Gen. Howard, in his annual report, recommends the abandonment of Forts Halleck, Nevada and Klamath, Oregon.

Dispatches from Virginia City, Nev., announce the failure of L. B. Frankel & Co., the oldest stock-broker firm in Storey county. The liabilities foot up $915,600. The assets are nominal. The list of creditors includes the most prominent men and operators on the Comstock. Following are the names of the heaviest sufferers through the suspension: S. L. Jones, superintendent of Crown Point and Belcher, $205,000; Gen. Keating, superintendent of Savage and Hale & Norcross, $50,000; Col. E. D. Boyle, of the Alta, $20,000. The list includes the names of scores of miners and clerks, with a liberal sprinkling of young ladies and matrons. L. B. Frankel, the senior partner in the firm, retired from active business pursuits several years ago. He is reported to be a millionaire, and as his name still appears on the sign over the office, the creditors have a faint hope of recovering at least a portion of their losses. The three younger brothers, Sol, Louis and Jacob, departed from the city on foot. Great excitement prevailed in the community at the failure, and if the members of the firm had not slipped out, unpleasant consequences might have resulted. The brothers are supposed to have secured an ample fortune by holding nearly every cent in coin deposited with them since the rise in shares began. Their business was enormous, the receipts in a single day sometimes footing up $60,000 deposited for the purchase of mining shares.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

A Column Devoted to the Interests of Farmers and Stockmen.

If seed corn is not already selected, the best opportunity has passed and conditions henceforth will become more and more unfavorable.

Gather all burdocks and burn them, taking care to get every burr. In this way reasonable security may be had against the spread of the weed next year.

If every person tilled his land as well as he knows how, the increase of crops would be very great, and production would be very much cheapened, without doubt.

It is said that in packing apples for shipment the fruit should be filled two inches higher than the head of the barrel, so that when pressed down it will not shake by rough handling in the cars or in being delivered.

Sheep husbandry is steadily declining in France, the present number of sheep and lambs being less by 11,000,000. Mutton is imported from Germany, Algeria and Eastern Europe, and sells 20 per cent. higher than beef.

Never change the location of hives after the bees have commenced their labors for the season, as before they ally forth to the woods and fields they mark well their surroundings and are bewildered and often lost if their home is removed during their absence to another spot.

O. H. Miller, in an article on the management of orchards on warm soil, correctly says the orchardist who neglects to care for his trees and feed the soil has no more right to expect permanent good results than the stockgrower has who only occasionally feeds his live-stock.

The farmers of South Carolina have concluded that they can no longer raise rice with profit. It is very difficult to obtain reliable labor for the rice fields. During the last few years several other cereals have come into use in the place of rice, and the demand for it has decreased.

Timber screens may afford enough protection to cultivated lands to repay their cost in a single year, with like benefits to be received through successive seasons, the trees at last worth for mechanical uses more than every cost of planting and care, including interest on the expenditure.

A successful apiculturist will take one strong swarm, and by fall have four or five colonies from it, and all with honey to spare. By the old system of swarming, only one good swarm would be hoped for. If a second or third came forth, they were weaklings and not worth saving.

A Vermont farmer made a net profit of $43 50 from the produce of a hen turkey during the past season. This is equal to 100 bushels of wheat in Kansas at 43 cents per bushel, with this difference: It would cost as much to raise and harvest the wheat as it would bring, while the proceeds of the turkey were gain.

E. W. Stewart says, in his book on cattle-feeding, that many flocks of poultry may be found that will not eat potatoes, barley, rye, millet or buckwheat, simply because they never learned to eat these foods. Yet they are all good foods for poultry, provided they are given in due proportion, having regard to the several food elements they contain.

The French, who export more pears than any other nation, cover the inside of boxes with spongy paper or dry moss, which absorbs the moisture. Each pear is then wrapped in soft paper and placed in layers in the boxes, the largest and least mature in the bottom, filling all interstices with the dry moss. Thus they will keep a month or more. They are so closely packed that, though they cannot touch each other, all motion is prevented. If one decays the others are not harmed.

Of the more than 400 species of trees found in the United States there are said to be sixteen species whose perfectly dry wood will sink in water. The heaviest of these is the black iron-wood of Southern Florida, which is thirty per cent. heavier than water. Of the others the best known are lignum vitae and mangrove; another is a small oak found in the mountains of Western Texas and Southern New Mexico and Arizona, and westward to the Colorado desert, at an elevation of 5,000 to 10,000 feet.

A writer in the Gardeners' Magazine says: "It is admitted that in the act of crowing a bird stands up and then stretches its neck to its full extent. A small lath loosely suspended about eighteen inches above the perch will obviate this. It in no way interferes with the bird's roosting, but the moment chattering commences a nuisance the swinging lath comes gently into contact with his comb and effectually stops him. I have a dozen birds, and none of them presume to crow till the hour that I let them out."

A London paper says: "Two years ago the Queen sold the well-known Hereford bull Conqueror to Professor Herford of Ontario for £600. The beast is now so much missed in the royal herd at Windsor that an attempt is being made to repurchase him as it has not been found possible to obtain a sire of equal merit in England. Conqueror is a son of the famous Lord Wilson, and he comes from a grandly bred dam. The Queen takes a great interest in her herd of Herefords, which was only started a few years ago."

JUSTICE IN CHINA.

Torture of a Prisoner by the Order of a Mandarin in Canton.

As I entered the court room two stalwart jailers were roughly bringing in a prisoner accused of the crime of piracy. Around the neck of the prisoner was an iron collar to which an iron chain was attached. One of the jailers was dragging the prisoner along by the chain and the other was aiding him by pushing and kicking. The accused was taken before the Mandarin's desk, made to prostrate himself on the floor and the trial commenced. The accusation charging the prisoner with piracy was read and then the Mandarin asked him through the interpreters to confess the charge. This the prisoner refused to do, claiming that he was innocent. This seemed to anger the Mandarin and he instructed the lictors to strike the prisoner with their leather whips. This they did, striking him a number of times on the face with a leather strap two inches wide and a foot in length. This falling to bring the desired answer, the Mandarin then ordered the jailers to prepare a torture. An instrument of torture resembling a common bench was then brought in and placed in position on end. From the upper legs of the bench dangled four stout cords, and near the top of the plank forming the seat was a cloth band about two inches in width and attached to a winch at the back of the board. The prisoner viewed these preparations with a dogged and sullen look. The lictors then seized the prisoner and forced him to kneel with his back against this frame and quickly fastened a cord to each of the four legs of the foot, and, bending the arms, fastened the other two cords to his thumbs. The cords were now tightened until the prisoner's knees were raised clear of the floor. The hand was then placed around the forehead and tightened with a few turns of the winch. The position of the body naturally threw the weight forward and made the pressure on the forehead fearful.

As the cords and bands tightened and the weight of the body was thrown on them, the victim began to show evidence of extreme pain. His breath came heavy and labored, and a deep groan occasionally escaped his lips. In this position he hung for a couple of minutes, and was then again asked by the Mandarin if he was guilty of the charge of piracy. He refused to confess. The perspiration was starting out all over his body, the cords were beginning to cut into the flesh, and the muscles were becoming knotted. The Mandarin gave an impatient order to the lictors, and the winch was given a couple of turns tightening the bands around the forehead until the prisoner's eyes seemed to start from their sockets and the flesh on each side of the band was puffed and discolored. Again he was asked to confess and again refused. Another turn of the winch was ordered. The eyes of the suffering man had now rolled back until only the whites were visible; the muscles of his face began to twitch and knot, and froth was collecting around his lips. His groans and writhings were horrible. It seemed as if human senses could stand no more. A few more turns of the winch and the band would crush in the skull. The muscles of the arms and legs stood out rigid and knotted from the weight of the body. Once more he was asked to confess. This time he hesitated and then shrieked out that he would confess anything they desired if they would but take him from this horrid rack. The Mandarin, therefore, ordered the lictors to release him from the rack. This they did much in the same manner as a stevedore handles sacks of grain. They untied the cords and loosened the band, allowing the prisoner to fall in a heap on the floor. The tortured man's face had lost the semblance of a human being. Distorted by the pain and agony endured, with set staring eyes and open mouth, it presented a grinning, unnatural, hideous aspect. The arms and limbs were rigid and cramped, all muscular power seeming to have left them, and the perspiration was rolling from his body in streams. The lictors now hastily throwing a cloth over his face to hide its hideous grinnings, roughly straightened his limbs and set him up against the rack from which he had just been released. His toes and thumbs were bleeding from the cuts made by the cords, and the band had left a deep red mark around his forehead. The suffering of the man was horrible and his groans sent a thrill through my blood.—Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

A German Sewing-Machine.

A remarkable step in advance in simplifying the sewing machine has been made by a German gentleman, and the practical nature of the invention was recently demonstrated. The new machine has not a wheel in it, and may be described as the working parts of a good sewing-machine deprived of all extraneous details, and condensed within the smallest possible compass. It measures only eight inches high by about two inches wide and one inch deep. It is fitted at the foot with a screw clamp, by which it can be fixed to the edge of a table, and fairly worked by a child. The working motion consists of a vertical plunger pressed downward by the finger from the top, the plunger being returned into position for the next push by a spring. It makes a perfect lock-stitch, and will sew all kinds of fabrics, fine or coarse, within certain reasonable limits. Beyond its efficiency it possesses an advantage which appeals to all—namely, that of economy in price. So small is its cost that it can be purchased for about five dollars.—London Times.

Some one has discovered that one side of the body tends to outwalk the other; with the eyes shut a person invariably walks to the right. If this be true it might be a good thing for bank cashiers to always keep their eyes shut. But it is always well for the directors to keep their eyes open.—Shoe and Leather Reporter.

LIFE'S BRIGHT SIDE.

Sam Johnson once said that the ability to look at the bright side of life was worth to any man as much as the addition to his salary of one hundred pounds a year, and when he wrote that sum meant a great deal. It is as true to-day as then. But many of those who are in the possession of a fine horse, or find it difficult to change the color of the landscape before them. Several of the letters written by patients of Doctors Starkey & Pallen say that the use of Compound Oxygen has enabled them to see everything clearly. Melancholy is gone; the disposition to be morose and disagreeable has somehow vanished; and "I feel like singing all the time," and "I can skip and run like a child," are samples of the expressions of cheerfulness. Dyspepsia was what was the matter with most of these patients, and a little timely treatment eliminated that disturber, and caused to be seen in an entirely different light. If you would like to understand Compound Oxygen—its mode of action and results—address Drs. STARKEY & PALLEN, 15-19 Arch Street, Philadelphia, and you will have mailed to you free a volume of nearly 300 pages which afford very interesting reading.

Orders for the Compound Oxygen Home Treatment will be filled by H. A. Mathews, 615 Powell Street, San Francisco.

The anti-missionary outrage at Chung King has been settled by the payment of $12,000 by the riot-students, the money to be appropriated to restoring the Catholic chapel. The troops have been withdrawn.

A VALUABLE MEDICAL TREATISE.

The edition for 1887 of the sterling Medical Annual, known as Huestetter's Almanac, is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, to all druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the United States, Mexico, and indeed in every civilized portion of the Western Hemisphere. This Almanac has been issued regularly at the commencement of every year for over one-fifth of a century. It combines with the soundest practical advice for the preservation and restoration of health, a large amount of interesting and amusing light reading, and the latest astronomical calculations, chronological items, &c., are prepared with great care, and will be found entirely accurate. The issue of Huestetter's Almanac for 1887 will probably be the largest edition of a medical work ever published in any country. The proprietors, Messrs. Huestetter & Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

Mix stove polish with vinegar and a teaspoonful of sugar.

"CONSUMPTION CURE" would be a truthful name to give to Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," the most efficacious medicine yet discovered for arresting the early development of pulmonary disease. But "consumption cure" would not sufficiently indicate the scope of its influence and usefulness. In all the many diseases which spring from a derangement of the liver and blood the "Discovery" is a safe and sure specific. Of all druggists.

White spots upon varnished furniture will disappear if you hold a hot plate from the stove over them for a moment.

DANGEROUS TRIFLING. It is not only foolish, but dangerous, to trifle with constipation, indigestion, piles or liver derangement. Take the proper remedy as soon as possible, and avoid all danger incident to delay. HARRIS' FIGS are a specific for these affections. 25 cents. At all druggists. J. J. Mack & Co., proprietors, S. F.

The Wholesale Druggists of San Francisco will supply the trade with Irish May Flower.

ANOTHER LIFE SAVED. Mrs. Harriet Cummings, of Cincinnati, Ohio, writes: "Early last winter my daughter was attacked with a severe cold which settled on her lungs. We tried several medicines, none of which seemed to do her any good, but she continued to get worse, and finally raised large amounts of blood from her lungs. We called in a family physician, but he failed to do her any good. At this time a friend who had been cured by DR. W.M. HALL'S BAL-SAM FOR THE LUNGS, advised me to give it a trial. We got a bottle, and she began to improve, and by the use of three bottles was entirely cured."

INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS. Hon. Edward A. Moore, Member of Assembly from Richmond County, New York, writes:

"Some two weeks ago I was taken with inflammation of the kidneys. The pain was intense. I applied as soon as possible an ALCOCK'S PAINFUL PLASTER over each kidney. Wonderful to say, the pain and inflammation began to abate in three hours. In two days, I was entirely cured. I always take great pains in recommending ALCOCK'S PLASTERS; they are certainly the best external remedy known. I used them as chest protectors, and found them most efficient."

The standard medicine, Irish May Flower.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

IDR. DARRIN'S RETURN FROM EUROPE.

A Generous Offer—Advance in Medical Science.

The science of magnetism, wonderful as it is and fruitful in good works for the afflicted, has passed through many progressive stages, and yet it may be said that it has now reached that degree of perfection which is most desirable and satisfying. The reasons for this are possibly be found to exist largely in the various new forms of disease constantly arising. In the ordinary case, constant even a large practice it is scarcely possible that the physician will become practically conversant with every form of disease, if he does, the instances are so rare as to render it difficult for him to become thoroughly familiar with their pathology and treatment. He must, therefore, familiarize himself with the symptoms and more really understand the cause, and give rise to them, and thus be enabled to apply himself directly to the exact nature of the trouble. Realizing the importance of this fact, Dr. S. I. Darrin, of the Darrin, 113 Stockton street, determined early in the present year, to visit the principal cities of the East and West, the better to familiarize himself for the agencies of a very large practice, and has with this object in view, as well as to obtain much-needed rest, traveled quickly in the United States and Europe, and in an absence of seven months he has returned to this city, having gained a vast amount of information that will be of great aid in his practice, and which must be of inestimable value to his numerous patients, who will be correspondingly benefited. He will immediately resume practice at the location above mentioned, where the afflicted will be sure of intelligent and skillful treatment on the most liberal terms that have heretofore characterized these celebrated physicians, who have never yet failed to thoroughly and permanently cure almost every ailment curable by light under their care. His office hours are as follows: 9 A. M. to 12 M., evenings, 7 to 8 o'clock Sundays, when the hours are from 10 A. M. to 1 P. M. All classes unable to pay treated free of charge from 9 to 10 A. M. daily. Examinations free.
