To Dog Owners .- Marshal Kaufman wants it distinctly understood, that he will have no foolishness in regard to dog tax this year. The ordinance plainly states that the tax must be paid before the 1st of February. There are only a few days left, and unless the license is paid by the above date your dog is liable to come up missing. And this is not all. The ordinance in regard to dog tax is very stringent, and owners of dogs are liable to arrest and fine if said dogs are found running at large without having first been properly licensed. In order to avoid trouble it would be well for all owners of dogs to read the ordinance, which can be found at the recorder's office, and satisfy themselves.

It is a very neat little sheet issued in pamphlet form. This issue contains several interesting articles from different writers. It will certainly prove of great benefit to the students of the college in enabling them to get an insight into journalistic work.

THE WHEAT MARKET,-Wheat was yesterday quoted at 72 cents, the same that it has been for the past two weeks; but it is probable that the next few days will see a declination in prices. That is dependent, however, on the condition of the market in California, which has fall-en three cents in view of indications of rain, after a long drouth. If it does not rain then, the price, other things being equal, will remain the same.

Temperance in all its forms is demandfessional men! There will be a meeting ed of the students of the present day. at the council chambers, Monday, the Strong drink is the only evil he must 24th inst., at 8 o'clock p. m., for the forego. It is true that alcohol is the most deadly and immediate in its results. And what makes the influence of alcohol so much to be dreaded, is the fact that its effects are permanent. The mind once suffused with ardent spirits can never be clear and vigorous as it might have been without the spirits. Among the physical effects is the hardening of the tissues of the brain. In fact, there is scarcely an act of the body which does not in some way reflect upon the soul, and there have its influence in forming a habit or disposition. The emotions, which are the most evanescent of all bodily sensations, have their influence. Every sorrow is written on the un-read tablets of the soul. Each joy is recorded in a way that makes the soul more and more easily moved in that direction. A fit of madness may derange the digestive organs, and cause the person ever after to be morose. If these things be true, it be morose. If these things be true, it is very important that the young should be careful to avoid influences which will be careful to avoid influences which will weaken the mind's powers. Avoid imposing upon the soul simply for the sake of a few fleeting bodily pleasures. No one would willingly take bodily poison; then why poison both body and mind?

The third term of school began on Wednesday of this week. We have heard of several who intend to come this term. There is still come though every term. There is still room, though every desk in the academy is occupied.

The literary society is having unusually interesting meetings this year. The debate was omitted last week, in order to allow the society to adjourn and attend the revival meetings.

The students meet at noon in a prayerneeting. These prayer-meetings should be made an important part of college life. What the boy is in college he will likely be in the world. College influences never cease to act upon the life.
