

WEST SIDE TELEPHONE.

McMINNVILLE, TUESDAY APRIL 5, 1787.

The Portland Daily News comes to us now with a complete telegraphic report, second to no paper on the Pacific coast. Its dispatches are complete and reliable.

Jehu Baker, Morrison's successor, is a mystery in Washington. His queer actions there are regarded by his friends as a "little off." He takes his meals at a chop house, and sleeps, no one knows where.

The result of the election in Michigan, yesterday will be watched with great interest by the temperance people of this state. If the prohibitory amendment is lost there, the result may be disastrous to the cause in our own, and other states.

S. W. Wall, the Tacoma correspondent of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, attempted to kill Editor Harcourt of the Tacoma News, last week. The trouble originated through a newspaper controversy. Two shots were fired and no one seriously hurt.

The Chicago democrats are trying hard to find a candidate for mayor. The managers have searched earnestly for several days for some one to accept the nomination, but without success. Friday night when the convention met Carter Harrison was nominated by acclamation, but he could not accept. Finally a committee of five was appointed to confer with the citizens' organization and agree on a ticket if possible. It seems a pity there is not one among the hosts who is fit to hold the office.

While the railroad officials are in daily consultation in relation to the regulation of "long and short hauls," on freight rates, their passenger trains are making "short hauls" of human lives to death. If these officials would pay more attention to their rotten bridges, defective car wheels, broken axles and mud roadbeds, there would be no daily report of hundreds dead or dying. State inspectors of rotten railway bridges and railway coaches, without roadbeds, would have a tendency to save our cemeteries from being populated by hundreds of new victims conveyed there from one of these horrid rotten bridge railway disasters, as reported every few days.

An election was held in Michigan yesterday to vote upon the prohibition amendment. The excitement over the election reached a pitch not equaled by any state election for years. Mass meetings have been held all over the state and much work was done by parties from outside the state, in aid of the amendment. The liquor interest worked quieter, but less earnestly in some quarters. It is said the antiprohibitionists indulged in threats. From the present situation it appears that the majority, either way, will be small. The republican ticket for the supreme court judges and regents of the university will probably be elected, as the greenbackers did not pull with the democrats this spring.

Governor Penoyer has appointed the members of the railroad commission which was created by the last legislature. He had before announced that it was his intention to appoint as the democratic member ex-Senator J. H. Slater, but who was to be the republican nominee was a matter of the merest speculation. But the question is now settled, and George Waggoner, of Benton county, is the man. Mr. Waggoner, although not widely known, is a good republican, and a prominent farmer of Benton county. He has not been very much of a partisan, and being an honest granger, has for the most part eschewed politics. The extent of his political career was his election to the lower branch of the legislature of 1880. His appointment will give general satisfaction to republicans who were afraid that Governor Penoyer might appoint a man, who wouldn't be "republican enough to hurt."

The action of the trustees of the M. F. church south, regarding the Corvallis Agricultural college has been ignored by the building association. The college building association, which is a corporation organized to erect a college on a farm near Corvallis, in performance of the conditions in the act of 1885, permanently locating the agricultural college there, met Saturday night. A contract for 600,000 brick was authorized to be executed, the delivery to be made, half on July 1st, and the balance August 15th next. It was determined to proceed in the work without regarding the action of the Methodist trustees. A committee consisting of the lawyers of the board, John Burnett, J. R. Bryson and M. S. Woodcock, was appointed to confer with the state board of education with reference to the action of the church trustees. An assessment of one-third of the amount subscribed was levied upon the subscribers to be paid by May 1st. Mr. Job informed the board that Col. T. E. Hogg had sent a check for his subscription of $1000 in full. It was discussed whether to call a meeting of citizens to give expression to the public feeling about the church's action, but it was finally thought best that such a call ought to come from the citizens rather than the board. Such a meeting will no doubt be held this week.

NOTES AND NEWS.

John G. Saxe the eminent writer is dead.

John Cahill was run over by the cars at Albina last Tuesday evening, and almost instantly killed.

Henry George is out with an essay on "How to dissipate riches." He probably learned how running his newspaper.

It is said of a great man, just dead, that "he began life a bare-footed boy." Come to think we boys all began that way, and bareheaded, too.

Dakota will vote on a local option and prohibition measure in November. The question of dividing the territory will be voted on at the same time.

Wiggins, the Canadian prophet, now says that he predicted the recent earthquakes. If the last trump should sound, above the uproar of a crashing universe would resound the voice of Wiggins, crying out, "I told you so."

A warning to theatre goers comes from Polk, Austria, where the fine Roman amphitheatre, on the Adriatic suddenly collapsed Sunday, and fell into an immense chasm, which opened on the site. From this chasm vapors are emitted.

The appointment of Mr. Fairchild to the Treasury Department, as announced Friday, has for so long been a foregone conclusion that it will occasion little comment. As the new secretary is a student disciple of his predecessor, no material change of financial policy may be expected.

Another attempt was made on the life of the Czar Tuesday. While he was exercising in the park connected with the Gatschina palace he was fired upon by an officer of the army, the ball passing quite close to his person. The officer was immediately seized by the Czar's attendants and imprisoned.

The $93,000 secured in the civil appropriation bill will be applied to the erection of a first order light house either at Cape Mearns or Cape Lookout, as the United States engineers may determine. The money will be available July 1. The sum of $7,000 is also appropriated for hydrographic work on the Oregon coast.

The house of J. B. Bolin, at Cedarville, was burned, Friday night and with it three boys, children of Mr. Bolin, aged, respectively, 7, 10, and 15 years. Bolin was absent at the time. His wife was severely injured in trying to rescue the boys. She is in a precarious condition. Mr. Bolin's two daughters, who were in the house when the fire broke out, escaped uninjured.

Kissane, the mysterious man who has created such a sensation in California, has been unearthed by the California Democrat, a German paper, and proves to be Col. Wm. K. Rogers, whose reputation is tainted from beginning to end. It is stated that he was a principle actor in the burning of the Martha Washington in 1851 whereby many persons lost their lives. The public is watching developments.

The Murry Sun says a stream of footmen is pouring in from the railroad, via the Thompson road, many of them being without a dollar. The Sun thinks it will be well for all those looking for work to avoid that camp for the present. In the gold belt the snow is still too deep to do anything for several weeks, and in the silver districts the labor market is already overcrowded. Prospectors and capitalists, however, will find the camp ripe for a good turn.
