USEFUL MICROBES.

An Earnest an Authoritative Plea for These Persecuted Animalculæ.

A great deal of ill-feeling has been excited anent these unfortunate animalculæ, whose size should have insured them protection against contumely and insult. There is scarely a disease, scarcely a mishap, but what they are inveighed against and condemned without a hearing, and often, indeed, without being even called upon to put in an appearance. As an independent journal we feel it our duty to protest against wholesale and often unfounded denunciations by individuals not unfrequently formulated more with a view to self-aggrandizement and notoriety that from any positive ill-will toward these humble little beasts. We will not deny that a few of them have gone astray. When they engage in the elaboration of the virus of typhoid, small-pox and measles, to say nothing of hydrophobia, and a variety of other uncomfortable visititations for mankind, it is only natural that we should retaliate by calling them opprobious names in dog Latin, and by poisoning them wholesale when and where we can bring our animosity to bear upon them. They have manifestly violated the statutes in such cases made and provided. But on the other hand, we will assert, with the courage and independence that is our wont. that if there were no microbes there would be no mankind, and our disnutes would be silenced in death. As' an American contemporary points out, there are about a thousand species busily engaged in the destruction of wood, and, were it not for their intervention, that all the trees that grew would be standing to-day, living, or it may be dead, but in any case as solid, as sound and as firm as when they ceased to grow, and all life must have been choked out ages since. Fire alone would have relieved mother earth of the incubus thus weighing upon her, but only with the result of leaving every patch of land a parched and ash-covered area, inadequate-at any rate, for some time-to the maintenance of life, even if we ourselves had not at the same time been prematurely scorched off the face of the earth. They are accused of contaminating our water, but it is equally certain that were it not for their ceaseless activity all the water in the world would be a concentrated solution of excrementitious and noxious products, the disintegration of which is due to these little organisms. Our very digestion depends upon them to a great extent, and if they were withdrawn from the *•*irculation we should very shortly become painfully aware of the fact. No. let there be no class distinctions; every community has its black sheep, and these should very properly be branded with the mark of infamy. The existence, however, of these misconducted atoms will not justify our extending the anathemas to the countless millions of their species in whom, and with whom, we live, and move, and have our being.-Medical Press.

A SUGGESTION TO THE TRAVELING PUBLIC.
Tourisis, emigrants and mariners find that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a medicinal safeguard against unhealthful influences, up-on which they can implicitly rely, since it pre-vents the effects of vitiated atmosphere, unac-customed or unwholesome diet, bad water, or other conditions unfavorable to health. On ong voyages, or journeys in latitudes adjacent to the equator, it is especially useful as a preven-tive of the febrile complaints and disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, which are apt o attack natives of the temperate zone so-pourning or traveling in such regions, and it is an excellent protection against the influence of extreme cold, sudden changes of temperature, soposure to damp or extreme fatigue. It not only prevents intermittent and remittent fever, and other diseases of a malarial type, but readicates them. COMMON SENSE AS APPLIED TO MEDICINE.

It is a well-known fact, and one that appeals to the judgment of every thinking person, that the physician who devotes his whole time to the study and investigation of a certain class of diseases, must become better qualified to treat such diseases than he who attempts to treat every ill to which flesh is heir, without giving special attention to any class of diseases. Men, in ail ages of the world, who have become famous, have devoted their lives to some special branch of science, art, or literature. By thorough organization, and subdividing the practice of medicine and surgery in this institution, every invalid is treated by a specialist—one who devotes his undivided attention to the particular class of diseases to which the case belongs. The advantage of this arrangement must be obvious. Medical science offers a vast field for investigation, and no physician can, within the brief limits of a life-time, achieve the highest degree of success in the treatment of every malady incident to humanity.

"I have though" said Karsky, drawing a crumbled paper from his pocket, "I've got a Louisiana lottery ticket here and that is a coupon of ticket 73,987, and I want to sell it." Mrs. Cohen, however, would have nothing to do with the coupon, Karsky insisted and the argument went on until Mr. Cohen impatiently shouted from the sitting-room to take the coupon, give the man a dollar and let him The ticket and Mrs. Cohen's dollar changed places and Gabriel pocketing the piece went on his way in the quiet contentment of small profits.

On the 16th of February the list of prizes was published in the Chronicle, and Mrs. Cohen looking over it with mild curiosity, saw with amazement that ticket No. 73,987 had drawn the first capital prize, and that her coupon was worth $15,000. She collected the money through Wells, Fargo & Co's bank, and remembering the circumstances of her purchase, sent Karsky $100.

This was not the only sudden fortune that came to San Francisco from New Orleans last month. Another tenth of the first capital prize was drawn here; $2,000 came in a lump to an old woman who held a coupon of ticket No. 14,105, and two young men with Murphy, Grant & Co., have become $5,000 richer by holding a con-pon of ticket 45,151, which drew the second capital prize.-[San Francisco] (Cal.)
