

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mary Magdalen, the fair sinner with her penitential tears, who has been a favorite theme of the painters for centuries, gave the word "maudlin" to our English vocabulary.

It is said that the streams penetrating the Gogebic iron range near the south shore of Lake Superior are so black with discoloration from the ore that fish can not live in them.

Geranium green is a new color that seems to have found immediate favor. It is said to be "trying," but nobody will care very much about that so long as it is fashionable.

A professional palmist says a person can never tell a lie with his hand shut. We know people who can tell a lie with both hands shut and tied behind their backs.

A man can "get high" by going to Denver. It is 5,175 feet above the sea level, and the highest State capital in the Union.

A Missouri sheriff went home in disguise in the evening to see if his wife would scare. She fired three shots at him so promptly that he dropped his experiment and began looking for the end of one of his fingers.

A Chicago woman who was attacked by a desperate highwayman and robbed ran after him, captured him and turned him over to the police. This is indeed a feat which every Chicago woman ought to be proud of.

A man in society: "I beg your pardon, miss, but I don't admire your last name." She—"Great heavens, man, haven't I done every thing in my power to change it? Must I knock a man down with a club?"

The number of dwellings in Jerusalem has doubled in twenty-five years, the schools are open five days a week, and Paris fashions are common.

Street railways run past Queen Anne cottages. Bethlehem has had its streets repaved. Nazareth is a good oil market.

Such things still happen in Mississippi, it appears, as whipping negroes to death, for at a place called Kosciusko the mayor has bound over four white men for that business, and held four others to bail.

Strong influence was brought to bear to prevent a prosecution, but it has no effect upon the officers, who are determined to put a stop to this species of lawlessness.

William Schaefer, a farmer near St. Louis, had in mind to fell a large elm on his land, when he met some city sportsmen out after rabbits.

He made fun of such small game, and said that coons were the things to hunt. They wanted to know where coons could be found.

He told of a nest in the big elm. Thereupon the St. Louis boys borrowed axes and went at the tree. They cut it down, encouraged by Mr. Schaefer, who seemed greatly surprised that no coons were found.

Mrs. Lina Swaffield, of Beverly, Mass., who has recently been taken to Florida by her husband, who hopes that change of scene and climate will restore her to sanity, is the victim of a practical joke.

A few weeks ago her husband joined a hunting party. On the way home one of the party hurried in advance and told Mrs. Swaffield that her husband had been shot and killed.

She fainted, remained unconscious for several hours, and when she regained consciousness was insane.

A farmer's daughter during the rage for albums handed to Willis Gaylord Clarke, an American poet, an old account book ruled for pounds, shillings and pence, and requested a contribution.

He happily utilized the columns as follows: This world's a scene as dark as Styx. Where hope is scarce worth a tear. Our joys are borne so fleeting hence. That they are dear at last. And yet to stay here most are willing. Although they may not have.

HOW A COLORED BOY BECAME RICH. Of course a majority of our citizens are opposed to gambling, but there is considerable pleasure when you try it to know that you are going to play a game that is fair.

Clifford J. Tweedy, the colored boy who was the lucky holder of the one-tenth of ticket 23,899—the second capital prize of $50,000—received about a week ago his one-tenth, or $5,000, and our readers would perhaps like to know something of this colored boy's life, and how he won the prize, and what he has done and intends doing with his money.

Clifford is a likely colored boy, about twenty-one or twenty-two years of age and was raised by Mr. Henry T. Peay, with whom he has been for the past sixteen years. At the time of his drawing the $5,000 he was in the employ of Mr. Peay, getting $8 per month. He has retained his position with Mr. Peay, and does his work as faithfully as ever.

After receiving his $5,000 he deposited $4,000 in the Georgia Railroad Bank, and took $1,000 and divided a portion of it amongst his poor colored relations. Be it to his credit too, he did not forget his employer, Mr. Peay, to whom he gave a present of fifty dollars.

He says with the four thousand dollars that he has deposited in the Georgia Railroad he intends to buy Augusta real estate, another sign that he has a level head. In answer to the question how much he had invested before winning, he replied that he had bought a ticket regularly every month for the last fifteen months, and it was the fifteen dollar that did the work.

HEROIC GARIBALDI.

Physical Strength, Bravery and Magnanimity of the "Liberator."

What impressed me most about Garibaldi was the immense triceps or shoulder muscles he had. They were just like two half coconuts sticking up underneath his white Mexican mantle.

From Heenan and Morrissey to Mace (Sayers had a remarkably small arm) I never saw any thing like it. It would have made two of theirs. And the saber he used! Two of the Life Guards' blades forged into one would just have made it.

Many a time have I seen that awful saber sweeping right, left, right, left, like clockwork, as he mowed down the enemy like grass, seated on his old white charger, leaving a "lane" (that is the only word for us) who followed him closely.

"Avant! avant!" rang from his lips all the while, and his trumpet voice rose high above the loudest artillery fire. His strength was simply Herculean, and was only surpassed by General Dunne.

As an instance of Garibaldi's enormous strength, I remember late one night leaving the Caffee di Europa, in Naples, with some brother officers, and seeing the General just passing on foot with only one attendant. We followed him, as he was going toward an unlighted and dangerous part of the city, which swarmed with Borboni—ex-soldiers, sbirri, lazaroni in the pay of Francis II.

He was going to visit one of his dying soldiers, a boy of seventeen. We had not long to wait; like lightning two men sprang at him, right and left, simultaneously, knife in hand. Ere their blades, raised to strike, could fall, Garibaldi had each one by the throat, raised high in air to the full extent of his arms.

He then knocked them together two or three times and let them drop on the stones. You may guess that our swords were out. But no! The great hero said: "Leave them alone; the poor fools have had their lesson." That was the kind of man—the demi-god—that he was; just as he was when the tyrant Rosas, in South America, hung him up by the thumbs in face of a blazing tropical sun for four mortal hours.

That night Garibaldi escaped. In two days he had Rosas in his power, and when some of his men, many of whom were vaqueros and bull-fighters, drew their long navajas, and were actually—such is their brutified nature—proposing to skin Rosas alive, Garibaldi not only furnished him with an escort of his own body-guard to the frontier, but even collected together every horse, bullock and single article that had been looted from Rosas, amounting in specie and jewels alone to several thousand pounds, and had him and his immense wealth conveyed to a place of safety.

The Neapolitans realized this side of his character to such an extent that I have seen whole battalions of them actually kneel down in the dust as "The Liberator" passed. He had only one formula for them, roaring out: "Rise! that is the attitude of slaves, not of freemen!"

MIMETIC INSECTS. Butterflies Whose Leaf-like Wings Imitate the Foliage that shelters Them.

There is a certain butterfly in the Malay Archipelago (its learned name, if any body wishes to be formally introduced, is Kallima paralela) which always rests among dead or dry leaves, and has itself leaf-like wings, all spotted over at intervals with wee speckles to imitate the tiny spots of fungi on the foliage it resembles.

The well-known stick and leaf insects from the same rich neighborhood in like manner exactly mimic the twigs and leaves of the forest among which they lurk; some of them look for all the world like little bits of walking bamboo, while others appear in all varieties of hue, as if opening buds and full-blown leaves and pieces of yellow foliage sprinkled with the tints and molds of decay had of a sudden raised themselves erect upon six legs and begun inconspicuously to perambulate the Malayan woodlands like vegetable Frankenstein in all their glory.

The larva of one such deceptive insect, observed in Nicaragua by sharp-eyed Mr. Belt, appeared at first sight like a mere fragment of the moss on which it rested, its body being all prolonged into little thread-like green filaments, precisely imitating the foliage around it. Once more, there are common flies which secure protection for themselves by growing into the counterfeit presentation of wasps or hornets, and so obtaining immunity from the attacks of birds or animals.

Many of these curiously mimetic insects are banded with yellow and black in the very image of their stinging originals, and have their tails sharpened, in terrorem, into a pretended sting, to give point and verisimilitude to the deceptive resemblance. More curious still, certain South American butterflies of a perfectly inoffensive and edible family mimic in every spot and line of color sundry other butterflies of an utterly unrelated and fundamentally dissimilar type, but of so disagreeable a taste as never to be eaten by birds or lizards.

Among the causes which produce brittle hoofs in horses and cattle, is standing on rotten manure heaps or in pools of liquid manure. Standing in such decomposing organic matter is still more injurious when the animal is confined in a stall, for here the injurious effect of inactivity is added to the other conditions.

—He (to Pittsburgh heiress)—"Do you know Miss Wandergrift, whose father is reported to be so very rich?" She (glass and pig-iron)—"O, no, indeed! The Wandergrifts do not belong to our set at all! They are so new, you know! Their money comes from natural gas."

—Pack.

In Lancashire, England, a gentleman having observed that a tramp was searched by policemen at the station for begging, at once sent for the policeman to arrest two ladies who applied to him for a jubilee offering.

TROUBLE AHEAD. When the appetite fails and the sleep grows restless and refreshing, there is trouble ahead. The digestive organs, when healthy, crave food, the nervous system, when vigorous and tranquil, gives its possessor no uneasiness at night. A tonic, to be effective, should not be a mere appetizer, nor the nerves to be strengthened and soothed by the unaided action of a sedative or narcotic.

What is required is a medicine which invigorates the stomach, and promotes assimilation of food by the system, by which means the nervous system, as well as other parts of the physical organism, are strengthened. These are the effects of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine whose reputation is founded firmly in public confidence, and which physicians commend for its tonic, stomachic and other properties. It is used with the best results in fever and ague, rheumatism, kidney and uterine weakness and other maladies.

By the late earthquakes in Mexico it is estimated 150 lives were lost.

HOW TO GET STRONG. Dumb-bells and horizontal bars, Indian clubs and the trapeze are valuable under certain conditions, but they are detrimental rather than beneficial if the blood is poor and thin and poisoned with bile. Use of the muscles necessitates waste as well as induces growth. If the blood does not carry sufficient nutritive material to repair the waste, loss of strength necessarily follows, and growth is out of the question. Purify and enrich your blood with Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" and then exercise will develop and not consume your physique.

SPINAL WEAKNESS AND LUNG TROUBLES. 53 PRINCE ST., NEW YORK, March 25, 18 4.

Having been troubled with pains in back and chest during the last winter I was compelled to remain at home unable to attend to business, until I was advised by a friend to try one of ALCOCK'S POREUS PLASTERS. After applying one to my chest and one to my back, in three hours I found relief which I had not got in over three months. I cheerfully recommend them to persons having spinal weakness and lung troubles. HENRY J. GALLAGHER
