EARN HIS SALARY.

The Onerous Duties of China's Ambassador to the United States.

It is not—at least it may not be generally known—there are a great many things that had'n't ought to be generally known; if I do not fail to make myself clearly understood, bear in mind that the discussion relative to the uselessness of English grammar as she is taught, is a great strain upon the nerves of a literary man; but what wazzawassan (that's volapuk) is, that it may not be generally known that the Chinese Government some years ago sent an ambassador to this country, whose sole duty is to go to a city as soon as he hears that the construction of a cable road is in contemplation.

When the first car makes its trial trip, this Celestial ambassador is required by his Government to look at it in amazement and say: "No pullee front end; no pushee hind end; no mulee, no horsee; runnee likee (T) allee samee!" It most sorely grieves a sensible Chinaman to talk in this idiotic way, but the Imperial Government compels this official to do this, in order to keep the American people in a good humor. He said it first in San Francisco; then he said it in Chicago; then Kansas City, then Philadelphia; then Los Angeles, Oakland, and last winter a son of old Sam Adams (proprietor of the Adams House), who was burning kibosh, as a sort of incense, before an elm tree on Boston Common, told me that the Chinese said it there. "But," I said, "you have no cable cars in Boston." The Pilgrim turned his quid of cutt in his cheek—all the Pilgrims are great cutt chewers—and said, haughtily: "What of that? There is a Chinese professor in Harvard College." That struck me as a great and beautiful truth and it impressed me profoundly. I didn't exactly see what he meant by it, but then I have to accept so much that I don't understand, in order to be able to believe any thing, that the swallowing of the incomprehensible and unknowable is now accomplished by me with no effort more painful than a spasmodic gulp, accompanied by stentorian breathing and slightly accelerated heart action, with falling temperature and mean barometer.

lar life finds as profound a check to health as the haughty disdain of one who perhaps overestimates his admiration.

There is no armor like a sweet dignity. It seems to be one of the best qualities of woman, and it teaches her intuitively how to bow, how to smile, how to receive her friends and how to dismiss a bore.

A gentleman comes up to a lady at a crowded watering place and claims an acquaintance, if she has no idea who he is she should bow and frankly tell him her dilemma and ask his name.

A Hostess at Times. The woman who can truthfully be said to lead a narrow life in the sense of being a neighbor is she who passes all her time between the four walls of her home—

It sometimes occurs the comely which exists in families—that is, the reciprocal sentiments that pass between parents and children.
