HOW DICE ARE MADE.

What a Reporter Saw in the Shop of an Old French Turner.

In a dingy little shop on one of the upper floors of an old building in Ann street, an old Frenchman works day after day making dice. He uses old ivory case heads, umbrella handles, jammed billiard balls and job lots of ivory that he buys for a song. The floor around his work-bench and lathes is littered with the dust, chips and fragments of ivory on which he is at work. He uses a fine saw, which is operated by a treadle, a turning lathe, a buffing or polishing machine and a number of sharp chisels and drills.

The Frenchman has been a turner and carver of ivory all of his life. He works from daylight until dark every day, and frequently uses a dilapidated lamp to light him at his work late at night. He cuts out the little squares of ivory lefty and accurately. The placing the cube in the lathe he borers the requisite number of holes, and inserts small bone plugs in them to make the black spots. The surface is ground smooth by a whirling among wheels, and is then polished with pumice stone. Several sizes of dice are made, but the smaller ones are most in demand. Sporting men prefer hand-made dice to those made by machinery. They are more perfect in shape and are evenly balanced. The machine made variety are often imperfect and have a tendency to throw one side up oftener than other sides. It is an easy matter to bore into one of the spots and put in a plug of lead, causing the opposite number to appear nearly every time.

TRAIN MANAGEMENT.

Lantern Signals, Taken from the American "Standard Code."

A train while running must display two green flags by day and two green lights by night, one on each side of the rear of the train.

After sunset, or when obscured by fog or other cause, must display head-light in front and two red lights in rear.

Two green flags by day and two green lights by night, displayed in the places provided for that purpose on the front of an engine, denote that the train is followed by another train running on the same schedule and entitled to the same time-table rights as the train carrying the signals.

Two white flags by day and two white lights by night, carried in the same manner, denote that the train is an extra.

A blue flag by day and a blue light by night, placed on the end of a car, denotes that car inspectors are at work under or about the car or train and must not be coupled to or removed until the blue signal is removed.

—King Humbert's gift to Emperor William was unique, being a series of models of the remains of the men, women, children and animals in the famous Pompeian museum, taken by the well-known sculptor, Signor Achille Dorsi, who has been engaged several months on the work. These are the first models ever taken of the bodies in the museum.

—Slaver is the name of the man who has succeeded to the position of chief bandit in Bulgaria. He is described as a handsome young fellow, highly educated and a most eloquent orator. Two years ago he was a member of the Bulgarian Skuptschina, but being detected in "hooding" led to the mountains, and now has a very desirable position as boss of the back countries.

—An influential paper of Budapest, Hungary, advocates a reform in the upper House of that country, making titles of nobility descend only to the eldest son, and having House, English fashion. The reason is fanciful enough—that so-called Barons and Dukes have been killing them-

—W. J. Barnwell, a mathematician and organist, of Berkshire, England, has claimed to have squared the circle. He has been at work on the time-honored problem for fifteen years. His solution consists of eight figures, which, in concrete shape, form a perfect cyclo-meter. Mr. Barnwell has laid his formula before the French Academy of Sciences.

—King Oscar of Sweden spends from six to ten hours a day at his history. He says he would rather be remembered as the historian than as the monarch of his countrymen.

Representative Springer will introduce in the House another omnibus bill, providing an enabling act for the admission of Arizona, Idaho and Wyoming. The bill embodies all the features of the omnibus bill recently passed by the House.

Petitions, said to contain the signatures of 14,174,734 persons, were filed in the Senate at Washington last week, praying for the passage of Senator Blair's Sunday rest bill, and all were prepared, bill and all, by the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

The conference on the bill to amend the interstate commerce law upon three amendments of importance were, with the exception that the House members recede from the one requiring the commissioners to adopt uniform classifications for all railroads.

A letter from the Secretary of the Interior in response to a Senate resolution, says there is not on the files of his department anything to show what part the citizens of Washington Territory and Idaho took in volunteer service to suppress the Nez Percés war.

The report of the commissioner of schools of Utah, for the year 1888, says the taxation in the territory for school purposes is insufficient. And that the leaders of the Mormon church are actively pushing the scheme to establish Mormon denominational schools in each county in the territory.

Congressman Morrow says his views on the Samoan affair are positive, and that the statu quo at the time the representatives of the United States, Germany and England met, must be restored, and this would necessitate the replacement of King Malietoa in the position he was so unjustly removed by the German agents sent to the Marshall Islands.

The Canadian lumbermen are rejoicing over a measure which has been introduced in Congress, and claim that it will protect the Canadian forests from American invaders. It is provided that no raft of logs or timber shall be brought into or taken out of any harbor or port of the United States, or brought into or upon any of the great lakes, from any part of Canada.

It is stated that a proposed company of capitalists has offered to the government a plan to defend the entrances to the harbors of the water petroleum to the lake at the bottom, and through pipes laid at the bottom, and igniting it with a burning bomb, thus creating a sea of fire through which the enemy's fleet must pass. An experiment is soon to be made, the necessary apparatus being now ready.

Germany's views on the Samoan middle and the Zanzibar question, causes distrust in English admiralty circles. Mysterious silence is maintained regarding Germany's naval preparations. Among leasants that in Washington the idea prevails that the present trouble between the countries will have a tendency to cause Congress to vote sufficient money for the proper protection of our coast cities and towns.

He went to Honolulu, but returned a few days ago, and was recognized by the police and warned to leave. He was arrested Thursday night on the charge of drunkenness, and is now in the city prison. The police will ask Governor Waterman to revoke Wilkerson's pardon.

AGRICULTURAL.

A PLAN FOR THE RECLAMATION OF PEAR AND PEACH TREES.

The Effect of Too Much Pepper in the Fowl's Food—Blauphide of Carbon as an Antiseptic—A Model Barn-yard.

The flower-bed for the next year may be made very rich by scattering the sweepings of the poultry-house over it. Soapuds may also be well utilized by throwing them on the flower beds.

If the bulbs of certain flowers start to sprout while in the cellar it indicates that they are kept too warm. They should keep cool enough to remain in a dormant condition until spring. Sprouting injures them.

Potatoes are a drug in the market at Colfax, Wis., owing to the enormous crop raised in that section. The best price that can be realized is ten cents a bushel.

The object of the farmer in feeding animals through the winter should be for profit. Feeding stock to gain a profit from it is a nice point, and requires study and attention. It is not enough to feed a sufficient quantity, but the feed must be of such a nature as is best for accomplishing the object of feeding.

Bisulphide of carbon is one of the best and cheapest antiseptics and insecticides. Already more than 8,000,000 pounds of it are used annually to check the ravages of phyloxera, the scourge of European vineyards. Bisulphide of carbon has an extremely offensive odor, and is highly inflammable and explosive.

Feeding pepper often to fowls as a regular appetizer is a bad practice. Although a very little will do no harm, yet the continued use of the condiment is liable to cause liver complaint. Warm feed tends to have the same stimulating effect without possessing the injurious qualities of the cayenne.

The only way to make roots is to make them on a movable frame, that may be taken out of doors, there to be scalded with boiling water in which is a little crude carbolic acid. Make the roots all on a level and not more than two feet high, thereby preventing much quarreling and the bumble foot.

Why more men do not make the dairy pay is because they refuse to believe that there is any study or investigation needed in regard to the care, treatment and management of the dairy. If they chance on a success they call it luck, and if they fail they never investigate the matter to see wherein they fail, so as to steer clear of a repetition.

The kind of feeding that keeps a lot of pigs or stockers from three to six months without grain is a total loss of grain; also, a loss of time in the maturing of the animals. That is, saffless feeding that carries a lot of hogs through winter on one class of feed. The need of variety brings them to the honeyland when grass is almost in sight.

A farmer with considerable experience who has siloed clover for two years, says it should be left to wilt on the ground for two hours after cutting, and each day's filling of the silo be allowed to heat before the fresh cover is added, and the sides, not the center, kept thoroughly tramped, the clover will come out moist and green, and the cattle will relish it as thoroughly as summer pasture.

To make pullets trot along toward maturity with a wonderful accelerated pace, give them every morning a warm feed of bran and shorts and ground oats mixed up with milk, or meat stock in which is a little salt. At noon give a feed of meat, and at night let the wheat they will eat and a little left to scratch for the next day. In addition to this provide green food, crushed bones and pure water, and give each day one heavy feed of broken dishes; they will be eaten with avidity.

Freezing of the food and water will be one of the difficulties this winter as usual. The troughs become ice-bound and the soft food freezes rapidly when the weather is severe. In such cases it is best to water the stock at intervals rather than to keep water in the troughs. If you have no arrangement for warming water, try the plan of a Western farmer, who heats stones and drops one in the trough when the water is pumped in. It is better, however, to warm the water, using a boiler or steam-pipe, and if there is a large number of animals it will pay to do so.

A person who has some old pear trees that have about run out, asks advice of Popular Gardening and receives the following: Try the plan of digging a shallow trench, say one foot deep, six to eight feet away from the body of the tree, and throwing into this a liberal supply of soda, leaf mold, ashes, lime and manure and covering with earth, and then cut away all dead limbs and give the body and limbs a good coat of whitewash. We have seen old peach trees renewed beyond belief by this process.

In some cases a large barnyard might well be divided into two or more smaller ones for different classes of live stock. A fruitful source of loss is the keeping of weak animals with vigorous ones; young with old; horses with cattle, sheep and hogs. By letting one set of animals out of stables or pens at one time and another, it may be possible to get along with a single yard, yet the best plan, when much stock is kept, is to have several yards.
