"ON GREAT WATERS."

The ship has crossed the harbor bar, And, leaving home and triends afar, Sails forth beneath the evening star.

With prayer of watchers left behind, It sails before the springing wind: Strong is the bark, and God is kind.

O baby-souls, sent forth from Heaven, To you the sea is also given-A weary struggle to be striven!

Ye, too, have left the light of home For warring winds and waves-to roam Across a dreary waste of foam;

And what shall be the end for yes Dark shipwreck in the midmost sea? Or triumph to eternity?

Fear not; for if ye brave the blast With God's own colors at the mast, The haven will be sure at last. —Arthur L. Schmon, in Good Words.

Edwin Forrest's Secret. The great tragedian, Forrest, had a secret, which everybody ought to learn and profit by. Said he: "I owe all my success to the fact that everything I have undertaken I have done thoroughly. I never neglect trifles." That's the point-don't neglect trifles. Don't neglect that hacking cough, those night-sweats, that feeble and capricious appetite, and the other symp-toms, trifling in themselves, but awful in their significance.
