OUR WA-VA.

Our subscribers will notice that the TELEPHONE-REGISTER has increased its size and is now an eight-column paper.

The business men of this city have patronized our columns to such an extent that we have had to do this. Of course we could have crowded all the ads. into a seven-column paper, but that would not be treating our subscribers right.

This paper is now one of the largest papers, both in size and circulation, published in the state.

We return thanks to the business men of this city and county who have patronized us, and say that if the patronage continues to grow as it has since the consolidation they can expect a larger and better paper soon.

We say without pride that the people of this county should be pleased to note the growth of this paper. Say a good word for it, for it is the best, the largest, the best patronized, and the best advertising medium ever published in Yamhill county.

Let everyone know how good it is. Let everyone know how good it is. Let everyone know how good it is.

The article on the first page if read by your readers will show that the new democratic navy is not far behind the times.

Halstead can still wield his pen and will soon have the scalps of Ingalls, Everts, Plumb, and a few others hanging at his belt.

Murat Hal-stayed home. He did not get to Germany, but, to use a vulgar expression, he will get to some of those senator's collars.

It is estimated that 300,000 immigrants will come to this Northwest coast this season. Will McMinnville do something to bring them here?

The business failures in the United States since the first of January, under a republican administration, exceed the failures of a year ago by 468 or 20 per cent.

The New York World remarks that there is one compensation in Murat Halstead's rejection by the senate. He has now an outrage and a bloody shirt of his own and can give the south a rest.

Henry Waterson announces that Gov. Foraker, of Ohio, will be sent as minister to Germany. In this case the American flag will be left in a very exposed situation on this continent.—N. Y. World.

The democratic administration should not have sent the navy to sea and it would not now be at the bottom of the ocean. They should have followed the safe example of Grant's term when Robeson was secretary. The navy was then safely anchored in the back channel at League island.

It is said that Commissioner Tanner started out with the intention of clearing the pension bureau of demerits within six weeks. He had demanded 67 one-hundred resignations before Secretary Noble discovered and stopped it.

Another Washington department has advertised that no removals will be made except for cause. Secretary Noble failed to state what would be considered a sufficient cause, but it is probable that a desire to give the office to another person will answer.

Mrs. Harrison has discharged all the colored help in the White house. Does she forget that it took colored votes to elect her husband to the presidency? If it was not for the negro her husband would not now be president of the United States.

Mr. Darin has returned from Washington and has given to the world the following information that the democratic office in Oregon will be turned out as soon as their successors are named by the Oregon delegation. It will not be long before the republicans will be auctioneering the offices off to the highest bidder in the party. Our delegation is not there for that purpose, they are there to look out for the interests of the people, but they do not do it. There is more money in bestowing offices.

The St. Paul Globe observes that the turnpike road of history is paved with the bones of dead republics whose deaths resulted from the corrupting influences of money in politics. There is no reason why we should escape the same fate if this tendency to corrupt the ballot box is not checked. Our only hope of salvation lies in the ability of the press to awaken the public conscience and to arouse a popular sentiment in opposition to the evil. When the people are once convinced of the danger that threatens the nation they will be stimulated to activity in suppressing the cause. The metropolitan papers, notably the World, have led off in this praiseworthy movement. It now becomes the duty of the entire American press to fall into line, and by their united efforts to bring about the purity of the ballot box from the

THE BIRTH OF DEMOCRACY.

Just 146 years ago on April 24, last Tuesday, Thomas Jefferson, the founder of the democratic party, was born.

When he declared "the will of the majority to be the natural law of every society and the only sure guardian of the rights of man" he did not know that these words would go down the ages as the principles of a great party. To this he added, which contains the most material article of his political creed: "Perhaps even this may sometimes err; but its errors are honest, solitary and short lived. Let us then forever bow down to the general reason of society. We are safe with that even in its deviations, for it soon returns again to the right way."

Can anyone be anything else than a democrat when such principles are at the flagstaff to fight for? Jeffersonian simplicity is a term with which we are all familiar. His simplicity was not his only peculiar trait, but he had one other which has not as yet been noticed in a republican of the present or past. The date of Jefferson's birth was not known until after his death.

While he lived his birth was never celebrated, but since his death the day of his birth is celebrated all over the country by many loving followers of his everlasting principles. His birthday was not celebrated not because his party and his millions of admirers and followers were cold and indifferent on the subject, but for the reason that he refused to disclose the date on which he was born.

Repeated attempts were made to find out the day of his nativity. Individuals asked him personally to impart the secret, his officials endeavored to unlock it, public bodies formally waited on him in the hope of extracting it. All their efforts were fruitless. Shortly after his inauguration in 1801 the mayor and corporation of Washington begged that he would let them know the momentous date, but he was obdurate. His reply to them shows the lofty height of his patriotism.

"The only birthday which I recognize," said he, "is that of my country's liberties." Two years later a body of Jeffersonian democrats in Boston were anxious to celebrate the event. They, of course, did not know the time and sought to discover it through Levi Lincoln, who was then in the cabinet of Jefferson as attorney-general. The great patriot wrote from Mexico, from which there these memorable words: "Disapproving myself of transferring the honors and veneration of the great birthday of our republic to any individual, or of dividing them with individuals, I have declined letting my own birthday be known, and have engaged my family not to communicate it. This has been the uniform answer to every application of the kind."

From his first inaugural message in March, 1801, more Jeffersonian democracy can be gleaned. He said: "Equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever state or persuasion, religious or political;—peace, commerce, honest friendship with all nations, extensive alliances with none;—the support of the state governments in all their rights, as the most competent administrations for our domestic concerns and the surest bulwarks against anti-republican tendencies;—the preservation of the general government in its whole constitutional vigor, as the sheet-anchor of our peace at home and safety abroad;—a jealous care of the right of election by the people, a mild and safe corrective of abuses which are lopped by the sword of revolution where peaceable remedies are unprovable;—absolute acquiescence in the decisions of the majority, the vital principle of republics, from which there is no appeal but to force, the vital principle and immediate parent of despotism;—a well-disciplined militia, our best reliance in peace, and for the first moments of war, till regulars may relieve them;—the supremacy of the civil over the military authority;—economy in the public expense, that labor may be lightened;—the honest payment of our debts and sacred preservation of the public faith;—encouragement of agriculture, and of commerce as its handmaid;—the diffusion of information and arrangement of all abuses at the bar of the public reason;—freedom of religion, freedom of the press, and freedom of person under the protection of the habeas corpus, and trial by jury impartially selected. These principles form the bright constellation which has gone before us, and guided our steps through a world of revolution and reformation. The wisdom of our sages and blood of our heroes have been devoted to their attainment. They should be the creed of our political faith, the text of civic instruction, the touchstone by which to try the services of those we trust; and should we wander from them in moments of error or of alarm, let us hasten to retrace our steps and to regain the road which alone leads to peace, liberty and safety."

There are 12,943 persons in Italy who are provided with licenses to beg. There are about 100,000 politicians in Washington who have no licenses, but they manage to do some pretty stalwart begging all the same.

Alphonso Ledine, a half breed, who accompanied Lord Lansdale part of the way to the Arctic regions, says that with funds and material he can reach the north pole. His idea is to go overland by sled. He thinks, with 200 men, a line of communication for supplies for the north and news for the south could be retained without great difficulty. The headquarters would be on the peninsula of Boothia, twelve days by courier from the nearest telegraph line to Winnipeg. Ledine will attempt to interest a number of newspapers and get them to back him. It is possible that government aid will be asked.

It is a matter of comment that only absolutely necessary appointments have been made to fill vacancies in Virginia post-offices. Ex-Senator Mahone served notice upon Assistant Postmaster-General Clarkson that if what he calls a "line" of malcontents in the republican party of Virginia are to be recognized in the distribution of federal patronage he will not lift a finger to put a republican ticket in nomination in Virginia next fall, and, as Mahone controls the organization absolutely, Mr. Clarkson is moving with great deliberation and caution. Everything is not yet serene in the ranks of the republican party. Mahone gets mad frequently and takes the party by the nose and leads it.

CUT WIDE OPEN.

The people of this country can now rest assured that the editor of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, the leading republican paper of Ohio and edited by Halstead, will not keep quiet. It will create a nice little discontent in the republican ranks of that state. Already the records of the republican senators who voted against his confirmation has been opened up by that paper and exposed to the view of admiring democrats.

Of Senator Everts it says that as secretary of state he "threatened the Diaz government in Mexico with non-recognition at the hands of the United States unless Gen. Diaz would agree that certain railroad grants had been made by the Juarez government to railroad friends of Mr. Everts in New York would be confirmed to them." It further charges that "the knowledge of the methods by which the republican caucus in New York was said to have been purchased to support Mr. Everts' election to the senate was held over his head by coal oil democrats to compel him to vote, as he did, in opposition to an investigation of the Payne corruption."

Senator Plumb is confronted with an extract from a report of a committee of the Forty-third congress implicating him, when a provost marshal in the army, in the "robbery" of a citizen of Missouri of live stock, billed at $650, but for which he was only to receive $150, and actually received nothing. Senator Ingalls' hostile vote is attributed to the fact that "a fellow-feeling makes us wondrous kind," his own election having been "tainted by bribery and corruption," with the same defense as Senator Payne's—that "he didn't know it."

Senator Teller is charged with having signed and issued in the closing hours of his term as secretary of the interior "patents for an enormous quantity of unearned railroad land," with reinstating swindling pension attorneys and with holding as senator "relations to the lobby."

Senator Daves escapes with a revival of his alleged connection with the Credit Mobilier scandal. These charges are not "democratic mud-throwing." They are republican accusations of republicans.

THE CRAWLACT. The Albany Herald is now doing the crawl act. In an editorial it states that "reports come from the East that the twine trust is tightening the screws upon the farmers, and slowly but surely tightening its coils about the grain producer. Already the effect of it is seen in Minneapolis, where most of the twine in stock has been bought up for the trust and is now in a Minneapolis warehouse and where the price has already advanced materially."

The above mentioned paper was a red hot protection organ during the campaign, but did not serve the people of this United States when it advocated the protective tariff and it was aware of the fact at that time, but it owed allegiance to the republican party and it gave its support willingly. Now it attempts to excuse itself and the pampered idol of the republican party (the trust) by saying as follows: "Fortunately on this coast the situation is different. There are large quantities of twine which the trust has been unable to control, and it is not likely that the price of twine will be much higher than it was last season. This trust business is being piled so hard against the producing interests of the country that it is likely to prove a veritable boomerang and result in the complete overthrow of this gigantic and nefarious trust operation."

Allow us to give you a pointer. The trust business will not be overthrown until the republican party is supplanted by honest democrats, or until the republican party begins to work for the best interests of the people at large instead of the few monopolists who furnish the means to keep the republican party in power and who charge the money so expended as "expense" to carry on their nefarious business.

THE SITUATION IN FRANCE. The situation in France is peculiar. Boulanger, the most conspicuous Frenchman alive and the leader of a vast number of people, has been ordered arrested by the senate of the French republic. Before this could be done Boulanger retreated to Brussels, where he holds communications with his friends by means of the telephone. His trial, notwithstanding his absence, is progressing and instead of subduing the discontented classes makes Boulanger the head and rallying point of them all. He has gained his popularity by being agnostic to the present regime and all dissatisfied persons have rallied to him until his power is felt. This last severe measure of the French government against him is the one thing which will precipitate war if it is not. All in all the future outlook of the French republic is not peace.

BUILD US A HOTEL. Beginning with Portland the different towns have raised a cry for a new hotel and all have received it. McMinnville needs a new hotel at present as bad as she does watersheds, and, by the way, the city councilmen were elected on that issue, but as yet have made very little progress toward that much desired end. The hotels in this city are full to overflowing every night and traveling men are making a row about their accommodations. Let the men of means in this city sit themselves and see what can be done. One of our prominent men remarked the other day that he would give $100 to the person who would start a hotel. The vacant burnt block on the corner of Third and D streets would be a very suitable place.

HERE WE ARE. Here is your much bragged of civil service Harrison. Look at him! President Harrison kept the senate in session exactly as long as did Mr. Cleveland. From March 4 to April 2 President Cleveland sent in 171 nominations, of which 156 were confirmed, 12 were not acted upon, two were withdrawn and one was rejected. In the same length of time Harrison has made 374 nominations. Of these nearly all have been confirmed. Three were withdrawn and two rejected.
