

WIT AND HUMOR.

"Say Sam! When you proposed to Miss Shokola, did you get down on your knee?" "No, old man, I couldn't, she was sitting on them."

"What are Bermuda potatoes?" he asked of a Woodward avenue grocer yesterday.

"Why, potatoes from Bermuda, of course."

"Oh, they are! Then Paris green is green from Paris, is it?"

Teacher—"It seems you are never able to answer any of my questions. How is this, my little boy?"

Little Johnnie—"If I knew the things you asked me, ma'am, dad wouldn't go to the trouble of sending me here."—Harper's Bazar.

Wife—"John, you will be pleased, I am sure, to hear that Uncle Rufus, who was here this afternoon, thinks our Tommy has decided musical talent. He has made him a present of a beautiful fageolet. Tommy can already run the scale on—Where are you going, John?"

Husband (savagely seizing his hat)—"I am going down town to buy a bicycle for Tommy."—Chicago Tribune.

"Absalom," called Mrs. Rambo, in a high pitched voice, as her husband came lumbering up the stairway at 8 o'clock, a. m., "you have been getting drunk again! This is the second time since yesterday morning!"

"Nanshy," mumbled Mr. Rambo, holding tightly to the balustrade, "you're unzburst, m'love. A man can't giddrunk twice in twenty-four hours. I'm—I'm still on the 'riginal drunk, Nanshy!"—Chicago Tribune.

Willie (regretfully)—"I'd like just awfully to kiss you, Gracie, but I s'pect it wouldn't do. You know your mamma said you musn't never kiss the boys."

Gracie—"Yes, that's what she said. That is, it's about what she said. I member just as well. She says to me, she says: 'Gracie, don't you ever let me see you kissin' the boys.' Mamma, she's gone over to Mrs. Bilby's."—Chicago Tribune.

"Mr. President," observed Col. Halford to Mr. Harrison this morning, "have you tried the new puzzle?"

"What puzzle, Elijah?" inquired the president, gently.

"Putting the 'Pigs in the Pen,' Mr. President."

A shade came over the president's face.

"No, Elijah," he said wearily, "I have been so busy trying to keep the hogs out of office that I haven't had time for any other puzzle."

"And how's business in Detroit?" he asked of a gentleman standing next to him in the lower corridor of the city hall.

"I can't complain."

"Must be good, then?"

"I have all I can do."

"In for yourself?"

"That's nice. Mercantile or manufacturing?"

"Neither one. Police court judge."

"Shucks!" growled the stranger as he backed off. "Maybe you are laying for me, but you'll get left. I haven't got enough to get half tight on."—Detroit Free Press.

"Miss Laura," began the youth, with a flushed face and a tremor in his voice, "I came this evening to ask you—"

"One moment, please, Mr. Hankinson. Willie, you are making too much noise with those blocks. You'd better take them in the other room."

"To ask you," resumed the young man, mopping his brow with a trembling hand, "if you—"

"Willie, take those blocks instantly and go."

"If you tried that new headache remedy you said the other evening you were going to take, and if it did you any good, I am nearly wild with the headache-to-night."

"I have forgotten the circumstances to which you allude, Mr. Hankinson," said Miss Kajones, coldly. "Willie, you may remain if you wish."—Chicago Tribune.

While waiting at a station in South Carolina one day I was joined by a man who carried an old-fashioned satchel on his shoulder, and who had evidently walked many miles through the mud. He was fully 60 years of age, scrawny and homely, and he simply nodded to me and sat down on a bale of cotton. In about ten minutes another came a woman in homespun, fully his age and about as homely. She also had a long walk. She nodded to me and sat down on another bale. Not a word was said between us for about ten minutes. Then as the whistle of the train was heard in the distance she said to the man:

"Then, Jim, you ar' gwine off ter jine the Mormons?"

"I am, Hannah," he replied.

"And you won't take me?"

"No."

"And I'm to be left?"

"Yes."

"And it won't do no good to argue?"

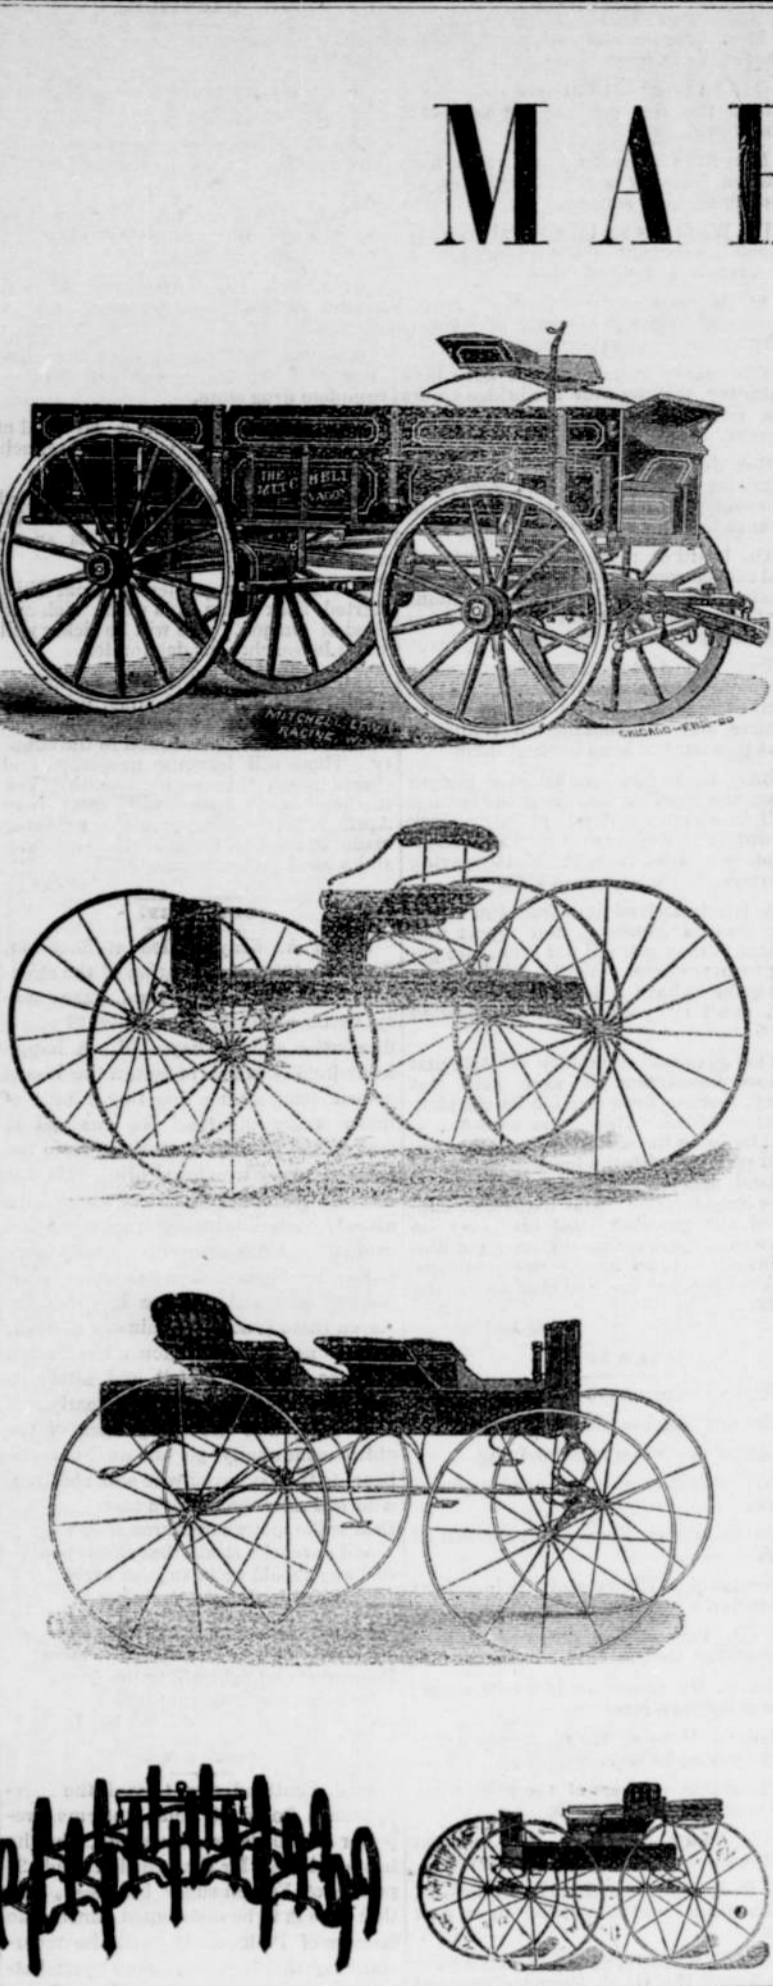

"Not a bit."

"Well, then, good-bye to you."

She started forward with extended arm, but passed his hand and seized the satchel and flung it thirty feet away. Then she grabbed him by the hair and they went off the platform in a mud hole together, and as the train moved away she was on top and jamming his head into the old-gold soil and saying between the jaws:

"Want to jine the Mormons, do you! Want to leave the old wife who's don't lived with you for forty years! Want to jine—jine—jine—you old rabbit, you!"

And fifty passengers gave her three cheers and a tiger as she got a new hold on his patriarchal whiskers.—Detroit Free Press.

Cellulose is a fibrous substance produced in France by a secret mechanical process from coconut husks. When compressed, its specific gravity is far less than that of cork. It is the lightest solid known and therefore invaluable for life-belts and life-mattresses, while in large quantities its buoyancy will make a ship non-sinkable. It is used to fill compartments in a ship's side, and serves to prevent water entering the ship through a hole made by a projectile or rock, because the instant the water enters the cellulose is expanded by it to an impenetrable tightness. It does not decay or emit any odor, and has been packed in ship's compartments without undergoing any change. If a mass of cellulose be penetrated by a projectile, it will not be ignited by the friction.—Hall's Journal of Health.

There are now in course of construction in Roseburg at least 15 new buildings, including ten residences, one warehouse and two elegant brick stores, besides several buildings just completed and numerous others which will be begun soon. She also has a woollen mill ready for operations as soon as the spring clip comes in; a building and loan association with a capital stock of $100,000; a water company with a capital of $20,000 and several other business enterprises, all organized within the past few months.

An Illinois fruit-grower is said to have forwarded the apple production of a young orchard very much by planting only 16 feet apart, requiring four times the usual number of trees. The redundant ones are girdled when large enough to bear; this both checking their growth and hastening fruitfulness, and they give a good return of extra fine specimens before it becomes necessary to remove them out of the way of the large permanent trees, then only beginning to yield.

The dairy interests of the United States represent more than $3,000,000,000. The number of milk cows is estimated at 41,000,000, which give an average milk production of 7,350,000,000 gallons. Four billion gallons are used for butter, 700,000,000 for cheese, and the balance for general purposes. The annual production of butter is 350,000,000 pounds, and 6,500,000 pounds of cheese. This immense herd requires 100,000,000 acres of pasture land to support it.

Harriet Beecher Stowe said to a reporter who called on her a few days ago: "My life seems like a dream. My work is done and I am enjoying the luxury of perfect rest and freedom. I can't remember what I read nor a-day. My mind is a blank. But I am resolved into love. I love everybody, even the dirtiest legger upon the street." What a sweet, golden sunset to a life of good deeds! comments the Chicago Tribune.

It is claimed that southern Oregon has a Chinaman that stands seven feet four inches, in his stock-in-feet, that he is 55 years of age and Ly Fung Su is his name.
