"Sunset" Cox as Samuel Sullivan Cox was known to thousands of the American people, received the name "Sunset" from the following gorgeous description of a sunset written by him while editing the Statesman of Columbus, Ohio. This was in 1855. The "Sunset" article reads as follows: "What a storm of sunset was that of last night! How glorious the storm and how splendid the setting of the sun!

Nothing? It is all down at Apperson's—the prices we mean. We are up to the times in having the most complete stock in the county, and new goods are arriving every day.

Gen. Boulanger demands a trial by court martial. He is liable to get it.

The real estate in Washington city belonging to the late Samuel Cox amounted in value to over a million dollars.

The New York Sun, one of the leading republican papers of the East, favors the candidacy of John L. Sullivan for congress.

What would be the effect on the Oregonian if a democratic daily would start in Portland? It would most likely continue on its own erratic course and in a very short time the state would go democratic.

The other day we asked the opinion of a prominent G. A. R. member of this city his opinion of the Tanner removal. He said that he thought that the sensible ones, although few, would soon see the benefits to be derived by the party from the removal, but probably the rank and file would never forget it.

Mayor Cregier, of Chicago, says that his town will raise $8,000,000 in sixty hours after she hears that the site of the world's fair has been given her.

The democratic administration was the promoter of our present fast men-of-war, the Charleston and the Baltimore, the former in her trial trip developed a speed of 18.75 knots per hour and the latter a speed of 20.2 knots per hour.

If the G. A. R., sees anything for the benefit of the nation in the work of Tanner, or of themselves, they have a proper notion of what is best. Tanner has cast upon their heretofore fair name the stigma of being a body of men which can be used as a political force by catering to their wants.

At the recent congress of spiritualists in the northern part of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Cobb, of Ohio, evoked manifestations which brought joy and confirmed faith to true believers.

The cost of the Cronin trial in Chicago promises to be enormous. Little or no progress has yet been made toward securing the ends of justice in the case. It is stated that the expense of the friends of the murdered man in employing counsel aggregates $2500 weekly, to say nothing of other expenditures.
