COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

On motion 100 cords of wood were ordered purchased. On motion the above was reconsidered. On motion 50 cords of wood were ordered purchased of Chas. Greening at $2.50 per cord.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

The next on the ordinance was the rates for consumers of water. This is the most interesting part of the water ordinance to the citizens of this city. The rates were read to the council and the rates for families was discussed at length, and although no rates were adopted, the rates which were put down and the ones which in all probability will be adopted are:

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Families—including bath-tub, sprinkling street in front of residence and all consumption of water in the house, $1.00 per month. Sprinkling lawn of two lots or less, 50 cents per month extra. Barn, not used in house, $1.00 per month.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

The above rates are subject to a change, however, at the will of the council and there is nothing sure of their adoption. If they adopt them there will be more people take water than they raise them. One dollar per month is very reasonable and nearly every house in the city will be supplied with water at that price within six months.

FIVE DOLLAR ORANGES.

Herrmann, the Magician, who opened in Portland yesterday, has just closed a successful engagement at the Bush Street theater, San Francisco. During his stay there he visited, in company with some other gentlemen, the Chinese theater.

FIVE DOLLAR ORANGES.

In the lobby were a lot of Chinese peddlers selling Chinese sweets, oranges and other fruits. Herrmann made a dead set at the orangeman, a thin-faced avaricious looking fellow, who wore a queue about five feet long. Herrmann bought an orange and cut it open. With an exclamation of joy and surprise, his eyes sparkling and his face lit up with smiles, he drew a five dollar gold piece out of the pulp and held it up so the Chinaman could see it.

FIVE DOLLAR ORANGES.

On Friday's edition an account of a San Francisco jeweler having pronounced a curious green stone taken to him to be polished as an emerald worth $2000. It turns out that the gem is the property of a well known lady of this place and was picked up ten years ago on the beach near Crescent city by her daughter, who is now dead. Since the death of her daughter the lady has treasured the pretty stone as a keepsake, not knowing its great value, however, and took it to a jewelry store while in Oakland, Cal. to have it suitably mounted for preservation. It is unnecessary to say that she was amazed on learning from the honest jeweler that it was a valuable gem. This is but another example of the wonderful mineral wealth of this highly favored section of the foot-hill. It is nothing unusual to find nuggets of gold and bright little corallines, rubies and agates in the crops of the turkeys in Southern Oregon and Northern California; but when it comes to picking up emeralds worth a small fortune on the seashore the circumstance is worth relating. Not the least feature about the emerald was that it lay for years with some other pebbles in a glass globe in which some China ladies were growing, as it was only when the water that its pretty tints were shown to the observer before the lapidary removed the rough coating. It was heart shaped in form and as large as an ordinary marble.—Times, Jacksonville.

FIVE DOLLAR ORANGES.

Insectivorous Birds. At its meeting in Portland last week, the State board of horticulture discussed the proposition of importing a car load of insectivorous and song birds to Oregon. It was decided to try the experiment and donations will be solicited for the purpose of providing for their transportation across the continent. The board has no funds at its disposal for procuring these insect destroyers, hence those who care to assist in the enterprise are requested to forward their donations to the member of the board residing in their district. The birds it is desired to secure are known to be the enemy of the fruit pests, such as cat birds, cardinal red birds, mocking birds, whippoorwill, etc. It is estimated that for $1,000 a car load of these friends of the horticulturist can be brought to Oregon and set at liberty. Donations will be received at any time and those in this district wishing to aid the worthy cause will find R. S. Wallace, at Salem, ready to receive their contributions. Oregon has but few song birds and it is to be hoped that these feathered immigrants may be forthcoming. It is certain that once here they will soon multiply and rid the fruit trees of insect pests and fill the air with the melody of their song.

FIVE DOLLAR ORANGES.

The State Fair. The president of the Oregon state board of agriculture, Hon. J. T. Apperson, of Oregon City, is reported as saying that "the recent state fair was one of the best fairs we have ever held. There has been a large increase in attendance at the last two fairs. A year ago we cut down the admission fee one-half, still the receipts have been as much as ever, which proves that the attendance has doubled. This year the receipts were over $18,000, the largest for ten years, and the miscellaneous about $16,000, which includes money spent for improvements, leaving us, inclusive of last year's balance, an actual balance of about $7,000. It is quite likely that additional improvements will be ordered when the board meets in December. We need more stable room and the pavilion should be fixed up."

FIVE DOLLAR ORANGES.

A YOUTHFUL PRISONER.

Will Michael, the Fifteen-Year-Old Murderer of His Sweetheart, in the Pen. Once more there is confined within the walls of Oregon's penitentiary a lad of tender years. It is Will Michael, of Union county, who stands convicted of manslaughter, and who is just entering upon a seven and a half years' term of servitude. He was brought to the prison Friday, together with three other criminals, by Sheriff Hamilton.

A YOUTHFUL PRISONER.

The boy is but fifteen years of age, and quite small for one of his years, weighing but three pounds more than a hundred. He is rather a bright boy, but studiously avoids speaking of his crime. Considering other matters he is talkative, but so soon as conversation turns to the murder for which he has just been tried and convicted he is silent. He is gay, seeming not to realize the enormity of the crime of which he is convicted, yet for all his gaiety no questioning can elicit a word regarding the murder.

A YOUTHFUL PRISONER.

Young Michael is of slender build, with a boyish face. At times he has a mean, sullen look. He says he was born in Kansas. His parents are living in Union county, but took no interest in his case, even refusing to hire an attorney to defend the wayward boy. The murder of which he is convicted is that of his child sweetheart Francis Phillips, aged six years. She was murdered at her home one day when her parents were absent from home, and the only witness to the deed was the murdered girl's little four-year-old brother.

A YOUTHFUL PRISONER.

A few days before the case was called for trial, a couple of able attorneys interested themselves in the boy's case. The young witness was put upon the stand and gave a recital of the story of the murder. His story was admitted as evidence and the jury, after being out a short time, returned a verdict of manslaughter, and the youth was sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of seven and a half years—his youth having saved him from more severe punishment.

A YOUTHFUL PRISONER.

This is the youngest convict in the penitentiary and he will be given some light work suitable to one of his ability. It is probable he will be given an opportunity to learn the shoemaker's trade in the prison workshops. John McAllister was the youngest convict, but of a life sentence he served but nine months when he was pardoned by a Higher Power. McAllister entered the prison October 3, 1888, and died June 20, 1889. He was but fifteen years old.—Statesman.

A YOUTHFUL PRISONER.

Catarah Can't be Cured with local application, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarah is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you have to take internal remedies. Hall's Catarah Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces, but of a life sentence he served but nine months when he was pardoned by a Higher Power. McAllister entered the prison October 3, 1888, and died June 20, 1889. He was but fifteen years old.—Statesman.
