C. A. Cook and Mrs. W. E. Martin have leased the Commercial Hotel for a number of years, and already their management of affairs is felt. Commercial people, one and all, say that the table and kitchen it ever has been and by the way the drummers advertise the house we are sure that the new management is sure of financial success.

The Yamhill Base Ball Association intend to have a game of ball in this city every Saturday. Dates are being arranged with Portland, Spokane Falls, Tacoma and Seattle for exhibition games. The sport is not degrading and the same as the old-fashioned American. The people of Yamhill county should take an interest in the Yamhill county team.

C. W. Thomas, of seventeen miles above Mill City, Linn county, is one of the oldest of Oregon. Having arrived here in 1845. He now has the farm with which the first "shake" was made for use on the first house in Portland; also has the hammer used in driving the first nail in Portland. His brother, Wash. Thomas, drove the first dry team, which was a yoke of oxen; and Frederick Thomas, father of Wash. and C. W., built the first house with a shingle roof in Portland. Mr. Thomas has some mining claims on the Santiam.—Polk County Observer.

Memorial Day.

Memorial Day exercises in this city were well attended and were a success. The managers of the affair deserve credit for the arrangement of the program, etc.

Hundreds of people from all parts of the county were in attendance and the day spent in this city, both at Oak Park and other parts was very pleasant indeed. The societies of the city turned out, and the parade was a good one. The afternoon was spent at the cemetery by a large number of people.

Closing Exercises.

The closing of the McMinnville public school was celebrated at the school by appropriate exercises and at the opera house by an entertainment. The program at both places was excellent in all its parts. Every person taking part in the entertainment deserves praise for the perfect manner in which it was presented to the audience. Lack of space forbids personal mention. The opera house was crowded, in fact more people were there to see the school children than has ever been before.

Round Free-Booters.

The Dalles Free-Mountaineer says: A half-breed by the name of Jackson was arrested Saturday for shooting his wife. After he was in durance vile other charges appeared against him, and Deputy U. S. Marshal Johnson started with him for Portland Sunday morning for selling whisky to Indians. When near Bridal Veil Jackson he got his burly physique through the window of the car, and although Johnson had him by one leg and a passenger by another, jumped to the ground and escaped to the woods with the deputy in full pursuit. The prisoner made good his escape, and Mr. Johnson was rid of his charge. He will turn up somewhere soon when he will suffer the penalty for his crime and sincerely regret his attempts to gain freedom.

As it is Done in Oregon.

Oregon journalism is known throughout the United States as possessing qualities not possessed by any other state. As a specimen we clipped a clipping from the Tillamook Headlight, which is a fair sample of the editorial ability of the paper:

"Every statement that has yet been made by the Democratic Voice, has acted as an emetic upon its twenty or twenty-five readers, who know them to be lies and frauds of the most scurrilous nature."

The managers of that travesty of a newspaper are conceeded by all who are unfortunate enough to be acquainted with them, to be the most colossal liars yet uncaught in this, or any other community."

The stock in trade of these political scavengers is deceit, discord and destruction. They cannot uphold their own candidates, as in doing that they would necessarily have to handle the truth (more or less) which is entirely foreign to the nature of such scabs on humanity, but try to tear down the reputation of men who would not be disgraced by allowing such cars to clean their shoes."

The Headlight owes its many readers an apology for inflicting upon them from time to time write-ups of such scabs, but if they were not brought up all standing with a round-trip, there is no telling where their gall would lead them to."

PENNEY'S WINS.

Thompson Sweated Under by Over 2000 Majority.

The Oregonian of yesterday said: There is no uncertainty this morning regarding the result of the election for governor in this state. Penney is the man by something over 2000 majority.

In fact, he has actually repeated his success of four years ago, which not even the sanguine chairman of the democratic state central committee expected. Notwithstanding the republican gains, as shown by the increased majorities for congressman and secretary of state, Penney has held his own, and it is but fair to say that the same individuals who placed him in the governor's chair four years ago all voted to keep him there. Actual majorities have been received from about half the counties of the state, and estimates from the remainder, which will not vary much from the official returns.

The republicans will have a good working majority in the next legislature. They have made a clean sweep of the state, but have not done as well as two years ago. The last legislature stood: Senate, 21 republicans, 9 democrats; republican majority on joint ballot, 54. The next one will stand: Senate 21 republicans, 7 democrats, doubtful, 2; house 39 republicans, 19 democrats, doubtful 2; republican majority on joint ballot, 34.

This showing is computed from trustworthy estimates from returns made to the republican state central committee. The doubtful senators are Dodson of Baker and Malheur, and George McHaley of Grant, Harney and Morrow.

The committee says both are surely elected. Dodson's opponent is George Chandler, who is a candidate for reelection, and McHaley's is Henry Blackburn. Both are strong men. The committee also think that Theodore Cameron has a fighting show for election against Charles Nickell, but Jackson has given such overwhelming democratic majorities that there seems to be but little hope. The claim is based upon a telegram from Jacksonville stating that the republican legislative ticket had been elected.

The doubtful representatives are W. W. Gardwell, of Grant and Harney, and Wright of Union. Their election is claimed by the republican committee. No definite returns have been received from Coos, but the defeat of J. H. Roberts, the republican candidate, is conceded. He was running for his fourth term. Nothing has been heard from Coos and Curry, but it is believed that Siglin, democratic, will defeat A. H. Crook. Full returns will not come from Klamath and Lake for some days. It is believed that Snider, republican, will be elected. These counties elected a democratic two years ago.

So far as can be judged, the personnel of the next legislature will be as follows: [Republicans in Roman; democrats in italics; names of senators marked with an * are hold-overs.]

SENATE.—Baker and Malheur—M Dodson, Benton—C B Croson, Clackamas—E L Eastham, Clatsop—C W Fulton, Columbia, Washington and Tillamook—F A Moore, Coos, Curry and Josephine—Walter Sinclair, Crook, Lake and Klamath—C J Cogswell, Douglas—J C Fullerton, Gilliam and Wasco—Charles Hilton, Grant, Harney and Morrow—George W McHaley, Jackson—Chas Nickell, Lane—S B Eakin Jr, R M Veach, Linn—J K Weatherford, Jeff Meigs, Marion—Edward Hirsch, J B Loony, Multnomah—J C Carson, * Joseph Simon, * Donald Mackay, J K Wait, P L Willis, Polk—E T Hatch, Umatilla—W F Matlock, Umatilla and Union—J H Raley, Union and Wallowa—J W Norval, Wasco—George Watkins, Washington—Thomas H Tongue, Yamhill—P P Gates.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

The McMinnville College Graduates a Large Class This Year.

The commencement exercises of McMinnville college began with the baccalaureate sermon by the president on Sunday morning. President Brownson chose for his text, LXX: 15; "He is a chosen vessel unto me," and from this drew as a theme the indebtedness of culture to the Christian religion.

While all Christian workers have not been chosen from those of the highest culture, yet it is a fact that the great work of the world in the line of Christian advance has been done by those who have received a thorough training. Even the first disciples were men of extraordinary natural abilities and were under the personal instruction of the greatest Teacher who ever lived, for the period of three years; so that this which is quite frequently pressed as exceptional, is seen to be not an exception. The following is the analysis of the discourse.

I. Christ has the same claim upon the cultured as upon the uncultured. The church has made great provision for preaching to the uncultured, while it has in large part taken it for granted that the cultured can get along very well without the gospel. This is a great mistake. Christ claims the allegiance of the cultured also.

II. Christ has special claims upon the cultured.

First, because Christianity has founded higher institutions of learning. Directly and indirectly all the higher institutions of learning are due to Christianity.

Second, Christianity has furnished many of the themes of the great authors. This is seen everywhere in all the great literary works of the ages.

Third, Christianity has been largely instrumental in developing the inborn powers of the cultured.

Fourth, Christianity has preceded and produced the great intellectual epochs.

These brief statements were clothed with living power and all must agree that this was one of the greatest most powerful sermons President Brownson has ever preached in McMinnville. The evening was devoted to a sermon by Rev. Robt. Whitaker of Salem. The text was II Samuel, VIII: 9-11. Everything in nature has some wise part to perform; so the unpromising portions of scripture have an important part to perform in the economy of God's grace. These facts lead us to note,

First, the relation of Hadezer to David and Tol suggests the relation of ignorance to the church and state. Ignorance is the common enemy of church and state.

Second, Tol's recognition and appreciation of David's services against their common enemy indicates the proper attitude of the state toward the church in view of the services of the church in the work of education.

Third, David's use of the fruits of Tol's friendship illustrates the way in which the church should use whatever benefits she may gain from the friendship of the state.

The sermon was of a very practical and inspiring nature.

Monday evening the college chapel was crowded with the friends of the college to witness the third annual exhibition of the Philergian society. The following program was presented:

Chorus—Why a Farmer Should be Educated.—Arthur McPhillips Declaration—Ralph Sisson, Land of Peim Solo—Happy Thoughts—Lena Shelton, Address—J. F. Clark, Quartette—Dreamland Faces—Nina Latourette, Myrtle Henderson History and Program of Graduates.—Ella Cary, Instrumental Solo—Myrtle Henderson IV Act from Merchant of Venice Solo—Etta Stetson.

This program was admirably presented and was received by the crowded house with great enthusiasm. Of special interest was the declamation by Ralph Storey, and the History and Program of the Graduates, by Miss Cary. This last was filled with interesting incidents of the students' lives since they have been in the college, and imaginative sketches of their future career. It is safe to say there is no feature of the Commencement that is of greater interest to the public than this exhibition of the Philergian Society.

Tuesday evening the annual address was delivered in the college chapel. First came a piano solo by Miss Julia Barrett. Prayer by Rev. John Gordon, D. of Portland. Visitation by Miss Anna Matthews. Then Rev. A. B. Banks, of Tacoma, the speaker, chose for his subject "The Relation and Higher Education." The relation which Baptists should hold toward higher education if they expect to hold their own with other forces and move on in the conflict.

I. Impartation of knowledge. The state has no right to educate farther than needful to make good citizens.

II. The producing of a power of mind to compare fact with fact and form a theory. Here comes in the place for the denominational school. The soul can never be developed by a bare study of facts for the sake of facts. All education tends outward to God or inward toward the soul.

III. The fashioning and forming of the character of the individual for the endless life before him. Here is where the denominational institutions are of the greatest benefit. They stimulate and develop the character to its highest. The educational institutions of higher learning of Baptists have been founded in struggles and conflicts.

Then what attitude shall Baptists of the North West assume toward institutions of higher learning? Within this century Baptists have founded 130 institutions of higher learning, involving an expenditure of $20,000,000.

It is impossible to give a brief report of this address, which will give any idea of the vigor and power of this address. The meeting closed with a piano solo by Miss Nellie Latourette.
