THE OMAHA VISITORS.

They go into Extasy Over the Display and Pretty Girls at the Depot.

Late last Friday evening a dispatch was received from Portland stating that on the following day there would pass through this city a party of visitors from Omaha, and requesting our people to make a display of our products and resources. Accordingly a very creditable supply of grains, grasses, fruits etc., were placed on a long table on the platform at the depot. It required a great deal of haste as the party were expected to come from the north on the 10 a. m. train, and when nearly everything was in readiness another dispatch was received stating that the party had gone south on the east side and would return to Portland on this side about 3 p. m. Then an awning was improvised to keep the noonday sun from wilting the elaborate display of flowers and fruit, and when the train arrived a large concourse of our best men and women were there to greet the party. We think it very fitting that our fair city should have been visited last. Here is what the Oregonian reporter who accompanied the excursionists says of the impressions received at this place:

YAMHILL BEATS THE WORLD.

"When McMinnville was reached there was a general muster of the inhabitants at the station, and such a display of fruits, grains, vegetables and flowers as only Yamhill's produce. All the pretty girls in town were there, and buttonhole bouquets were furnished to all the party. Mr. Dennis was so proud of his that he came near presenting to the donor the handsome gold medal he won at Creedmoor. Olsen fairly went wild, Osthoff nearly fainted and Deputy City Clerk Harry Corseman, required the united efforts of three men to get him aboard the car. Yamhill beats the world, and of course the display was much the largest seen on the trip.

"After the grain, fruit, etc., had been sufficiently admired the visitors were invited to help themselves, and what they could not pack on board was poured or pushed in at the windows till there was hardly room to sit or stand in the car.

Three hearty cheers were given for the Omaha people which were returned with interest as the train pulled out. The steward of the car was kept busy all the way to Portland stowing away the fruits, placing the bouquets in water, hanging up the limbs laden with fruit and clearing decks generally.

"The excursion was a grand success and the visitors have gone away with impressions of the Willamette valley which will never be effaced. Future excursions visiting this city cannot be given a more delightful trip. The party left for Omaha last night with fruit, berries and melons enough to last them all the way there."

Along with the visitors were a number of members of Portland's board of trade. The following are the names of the Omahaites: Daniel H. Wheeler, fire insurance, councilman; Geo. L. Dennis, plumber, superintendent of plumbing; Jas. Flannery, stockman, street commissioner; St. A. D. Balem, capitalist, ex-chairman board of public works; Harry Connean, deputy city clerk; C. L. Chaffee, wholesale lumber, president city council; F. L. Blumer, real estate, councilman; E. P. Davis, novelty iron works, councilman; F. J. Jasper, liquor dealer, councilman; John McFarley, Phoenix foundry, councilman; E. F. Moriarty, lawyer, councilman; H. F. Madsen, contractor, councilman; Henry Osthoff, merchant, councilman; Theo. Olsen, real estate, councilman; Edward O'Connor, liquor dealer, councilman; Wm. G. Shriver, real estate, councilman; A. H. Sander, merchant, councilman.

This cannot fail of being a good advertisement for the whole valley. And it makes one feel more contented when he knows his country can beat the world when she tries. McMinnville is waking up.

A Yamhill Town.

Yamhill has long been noted for its remarkable people and institutions. Now a town is being formed which will make the most model community in the world if the rules governing it are carried out. It will forever be safe from editors, lawyers and mixed elements generally. The laws which every member will have to subscribe are substantially: no quarreling, no improper language, no taking the name of God in vain, no swearing, no evil speaking, lying or slandering. That they regularly attend divine worship in Hope church, and keep holy the whole of the Lord's day. That they abstain from the use of opium in every shape and form. No gambling no lascivious conduct. Nothing tending to drunkenness. No theft of any kind. No trespassing on the property of others. No dancing parties. No theatrical representations. No bathing in the river on Sundays or at any time without having first put on private or decent bathing suit. No intoxicating drinks or tobacco sold or bartered or kept exposed for sale. No horses, cattle swine or poultry to run at large. Pigeons to be confined within wire netting.—Albany Democrat.

Well friend Nutting where did you get that? Yamhill has long been the butt of the whole state, nevertheless we are proud of our country; and if you are looking for a nice clean, moral community in which to cast your lot, come to Yamhill.

Cremery Burned.

The cremery at Goshen burned to the ground last Thursday evening. The fire started in the boiler house, while the men were at dinner and gained such a headway as to get beyond control before it was discovered. About 4,000 or 5,000 pounds of cheese and a large amount of butter was destroyed. Mr. Wilson, the proprietor, had $1,000 insurance on his property, which he thinks is about one-fourth of his loss.—Eugene Register.

Leg Broken.

On Monday afternoon a messenger came to this city from Dr. Goucher with information that a young man named Hutchcroft had broken his leg. The unfortunate man was driving a grain wagon along a side hill gathering bundles when a wheel of the wagon broke and he jumped to the ground breaking his leg very badly below the knee. The accident happened on the farm of Mr. Gildred near North Yamhill.

THE OREGON PRESS ASSOCIATION.

The Fourth Annual Session a Success. Yet More Business Might Have Been Done.

The meeting of the Oregon press association, which convened at Portland last Thursday, was one that will be remembered by every newspaper man in attendance. A large majority of the editors and publishers of the state were present, some of them coming long distances; one in particular traveled 165 miles by stage and 400 miles by rail to reach Portland. It has been said that Oregon is a place of magnificent distances.

The routine of business done by the association is not of such a nature as to be of great interest to the general reader, therefore a portion will here be given. The entertainment provided by the citizens of Portland was an honor to the guests and a credit to our hosts. Thursday, the first day, was occupied in riding about the city on the various lines of street cars and in carriages, that an idea of Portland's length and breadth and wealth might be ascertained by actual sight. About six o'clock the carriages were stopped at the quarters of the chambers of commerce where the gentlemen of the party alighted and the ladies were driven to the Hotel Portland at which magnificent hostelry all were made to feel at home. At the chambers a short conference was held with a view of Portland's business and the subject of organizing a state board of trade, such as California has, was discussed. All thought the idea a good one, and our readers will hear more about it at some future time.

The next day an excursion to Multnomah Falls was taken by the larger portion of the association, and was greatly enjoyed. The smaller portion had taken an early morning excursion to Troutdale by special train, which by a misunderstanding ran into a freight train standing on the track. Luckily no one was seriously hurt, but the party could not get back to Portland in time to take the boat up the river.

On Saturday the whole party went by special boat to Oswego and Oregon City. At the former place we saw a cast of pig iron made, the largest ever made in the northwest. Just imagine if you can, a stream of molten metal containing thirty-five tons running through little troughs made in the sand, but by your imagination falls you go and see it. At Oregon city the party were met by citizens and the band, and led to a beautiful grove where a bountiful lunch was spread.

John J. T. Apperson welcomed the guests in a very cordial manner, Judge M. L. Pipes responded. After lunch other members of the association made a few remarks, and then the sight-seeing commenced, which occupied over an hour. During the ride the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

First—It is gratifying to announce that at this, its fourth session, the Oregon press association comprises practically the whole press of Oregon, and thoroughly representative of the publishing interests of the state. From a modest beginning three years ago it has steadily grown and prospered, until now the stamp and seal of its assured stability is placed upon it by the generous appreciation of the great metropolitan city of the state. We pledge ourselves as an association to encourage, not only the business interests, but the publishing fraternity, but to cultivate those social amenities and mutual courtesies in both personal and journalistic intercourse, that dignity and ennoble the profession.

Second—The fine appreciation by the city of Portland of this association is gratefully appreciated. The metropolis of a state is the point of concentration of the energy and intelligence and virtue of the people. It is at once a representative and a leader. Here is our point of contact with the outside world and here we feel the throbs of its mighty heart. In the glory and beauty of this glorious and beautiful city we see the glow of a life and power that has come to it from our distant homes among the hills and vales of fruitful Oregon. Upon the topmost bough of the sturdy tree of our statehood gleams this perfect flower, glowing in the light of its crimson dawn, and fainting in the perfume from its own rich heart. And as it is our tree, so it is our flower. May it bloom forever. (Applause.)

Third—To the committee of arrangements, Mr. Ed Casey, Mr. L. Samuels and Mr. E. W. Allen, we express our appreciation of their untiring zeal in ministering to the comfort and pleasure of the members during this session, and to the people of Portland for supporting their efforts in that regard.

Fourth—The thanks of this association are hereby tendered to the several transportation companies and street railways for the facilities afforded to us, and especially to Mr. E. J. Rogers, for favors shown to the secretary in the discharge of his duties.

Fifth—We thank the proprietors and employees of the hotel Portland for the hospitable attentions to us during our stay here.

Sixth—That the thanks of this association are tendered to our faithful, untiring and energetic secretary, Mr. E. C. Pentland, for his successful work in behalf of the association.

Seventh—That we wish to express our appreciation of the very cordial and pleasant reception tendered us by the board of trade and citizens of Oregon City.

Eighth—That we believe, from information gathered from all parts of the state that the recent census of Oregon shows a population far short of the actual population, and we respectfully request the department at Washington to order a recount of the whole state.

Ninth—That the rivers and harbors of Oregon are of great importance to commerce, and we therefore earnestly recommend to congress liberal appropriations therefor, and hereby direct the secretary to transmit to our representatives and senators in congress a copy of this resolution.

Tenth—This association earnestly recommends the organization of a state board of trade, and that each town in the state be urged to organize a local board of trade, and the state board be constituted of delegates from the local boards. By the united action of such a state board, the interests of all sections of Oregon will be greatly benefited, and a local matter will thus be advanced by the united action of a central board of trade.

Eleventh—That we do not view with favor the actions of the state and local organizations in advertising Oregon and the Northwest in eastern publications at high rates, believing that such money expended in home publications would serve the purpose better and at the same time encourage the building up of strong and profitable papers in our own state.

Twelfth—That we will earnestly labor in union for the general development of Oregon and the entire Northwest.

Thirteenth—That we deem it but an act of justice to the local newspapers that the citizens in their respective localities should give them an earnest and liberal support, as through this means the interests of the different sections of our state are best served and made known.

Fourteenth—That the thanks of this association are tendered to Managers Friedlander, of the Marquam Grand, and J. F. Corday, of Corday's theatre for favors extended.

These resolutions are given in full because they contain sentiments which should be impressed upon the mind of everyone, and that continually.

L. Samuels, of the West Shore, was elected president of the association; J. C. Pentland re-elected secretary; S. S. Train treasurer; five vice-presidents and the various standing committees were appointed. The next session will be held at Astoria, the time to be selected by the officers of the association.

The Herosim of a Boy.

On a recent morning, near 8 o'clock a little girl of 11 years and her brother, a couple of years her senior, were crossing the railroad bridge over the Abernethy creek, going down. The boy carried an empty basket, they being on the way to a garden patch to fill it with fresh vegetables. Children enjoy crossing a railroad bridge of some height. They had passed over the middle of the bridge when suddenly they heard the rumble and rattle of the Rosburg train ominously near. "Run for your life!" cried the boy to his companion. "She slipped out right running impossible. She ran a step and then fell through between the ties, to which she held up with her hands, but was instantly pulled up by her brother. Again she tried to run, only to fall through a second time. She could not move and gave up all hope. Fright had almost paralyzed her. Would her brother save her from a fearful death? Would he leave her to save himself? She thought of mamma too. The awful train was coming closer, closer. Every moment was infinitely precious. The young hero's heart was as steel. Valiantly he again dragged her out, and putting his slender arms around her, swiftly with the strength given by desperation, pulled her off the bridge ashore. "We couldn't stop!" shouted the engineer as the locomotive sped by them. The little girl relieved her fright with a flood of tears. The boy did not move a muscle, but picked up his sister's hat which the train had run over, and stood silent wondering over the fact that they were saved—Oregon City Courier.

Indians Fight a Sham Battle.

On last Saturday afternoon the Indians of Lemhi agency, with some of their red brethren from Fort Hall, who are visiting them, had a sham battle. The exhibition took place on the flat near the high bridge, and was participated in by about two hundred warriors. They had been preparing for the feat for several days, and appeared in all the glory of paint of every hue, and had their horses decorated in the same manner. Three different battles were fought; in the first two, the charge and the skirmish, the Indians were mounted, while in the last, a fight at close quarters, the warriors were on foot. This fighting was just the same as in real battles in every particular, even to robbing and scalping the dead, an exhibition of which was given that made the blood of the spectators run cold. About seventy-five white people gathered to witness the novel sight, and felt amply repaid for their trip. The Indians were very friendly and went about to the carriages and shook hands with many of the people, and appeared very proud to have such a large and appreciative audience.—Idaho Recorder.

Sensible Talk.

John Robinson's circus drew the largest gathering in the city Monday that was ever inside the city limits. All portions of the county were represented also representatives from Del Norte county. Cal. The Courier carries whether it is a circus, a 4th of July celebration, a campmeeting or a horse race, anything that will draw a crowd from all parts of a county together is beneficial to that county. Old friends meet here last Monday, shook hands and exchanged a few words, who had not met before for years. Pleasant memories were revived, and men and women who had not smiled for years actually laughed on that day. They forgot their cares and responsibilities for a few hours as is always the case when such a grand reunion takes place. Unless something unusual comes to wake people up the world over, they become chronic, imagining the world, and all in it was against them. But when they get out, meet their neighbors, and look the world square in the face they see that they are as well off in every way as the rest of the citizens, they brace up, feel more patriotic and remember the occasion for months and even years.—Grants Pass Courier.

WEATHER-CROP BULLETIN.

For the Week Ending Saturday, August 9, 1890.—U. S. Signal Service.

The temperature has been above the average for the week. On 13th, temperatures of 90 degrees are reported from every section of the state. On 14th, an occasional sprinkle of rain fell. On same date a severe sandstorm, having a velocity of 25 miles an hour was experienced in the Walla Walla valley, no damage reported. The nights have been as usual cool, the days have been generally cloudless. Smoke from the forest fires has begun to fill the atmosphere.

The weather conditions, except on 13th, when it was warm have been favorable to harvesting and threshing operations, which continue to progress. Fall and winter wheat is generally harvested and considerable of it is threshed. Spring wheat is now being harvested. Reports indicate that wheat and oats are turning out better than was expected. The wheat is generally much cleaner than usual, the berry large and plump. No section reports generally poor crops, though in localities the crop is not up to the average. This is more especially true in regard to Umatilla county to the west of Pendleton, and in Douglas and Jackson counties. In Umatilla as a rule, the wheat is above the average. Douglas and other southern counties had unusually heavy rains up to April 15th, since then it has been very dry and crops are not so good. The peach crop in southern Oregon was almost destroyed by the late frosts; but other fruit is plentiful.

Hay is plentiful through the stock country. Bottom and irrigated land in the south eastern part of the state has very large crops. The wheat output, it is estimated, will be larger than ever before in Oregon. The codlin moth did considerable damage to apples. Plums and prunes are very plentiful and the weather has been favorable to the curing of them. In the neighborhood of Heils, Umatilla county, a disease resembling distemper accompanied by a hacking cough is among the horses; but so far no fatal results are reported.

Wonderful Snake River.

The Snake is one of the most wonderful rivers of the west. Its source is in Wyoming and entering Idaho at an elevation of nearly 6,000 feet above the sea level, it crosses the state from east to west and flows north forming nearly one-half its western boundary, and leaves the state at an elevation of only 680 feet. This stream runs nearly 1000 miles in its sinuous winding before it reaches the Columbia and forms some grand and beautiful canyons in its descent, the most noted of which are Shoshone falls, which have heretofore been described in the West Shore. They are 210 feet in height and surpass the noted Niagara in beauty if not in volume. Just above are the Twin falls which are ninety feet high and may be considered a part of this mighty cataract. Within this short distance are found 300 of the 5,300 feet of the river's fall in Idaho. The remaining 5,000 feet are distributed more or less gradually from the eastern boundary of the state to where it enters Washington, near Lewiston. When Major Powell, director of the geological survey, saw this mighty river, he remarked: "I can put this water on 2,000,000 acres of land for twenty-five cents per acre." He might have added that he could as easily furnish the power to drive the machinery of the world. The matter of using this vast water supply for irrigation purposes is being discussed, and promises to be a reality in the near future. It has, in fact, already been used to some extent, and ere long will doubtless be the means of converting the vast Snake river bottoms into growing fields and productive orchards. An extensive field is here offered for the ingenuity of man to make this section, heretofore worthless, one of the garden spots of the west.

THE QUESTION SETTLED.

This is a faithful picture of the well known establishment of Thomas J. Wilson & Son, at 121 Sacramento street, S. F. As the leading chemists of the west, they were asked to settle the question as to what sarsaparilla were best purely vegetable. We present their report.

We have made careful chemical analyses of several well known kinds of sarsaparilla, and have found them all with the single exception of J. C. Wilson's Sarsaparilla. As the result are embodied in prospectus J. C. Wilson's is the only purely vegetable sarsaparilla in the market, which has come under our observation.

Modern medicine has proven that all ordinary eruptions are not caused by diseased blood, but by indigestion and sluggish circulation, which call for vegetable alternatives, instead of mineral blood purifiers like Iodide of Potassium. J. C. Wilson's Sarsaparilla fits the case. As the first to discard the old notions and proceed under the modern theory. Its cures attest the soundness of the theory. It is the alk of the house.
