The young Miss Patten has a great fondness for dogs. While waiting upon the wide veranda for the door to open the dogs came all about me, giving the most hearty welcome they knew how to give. There was a leonine St. Bernard and a sleek fox terrier; a brown eved collie and a slender greyhound; a mammoth Newfoundland and a tiny blackand-tan; there were two beautiful hunters and a mottled coach dog. Such an army of dogs leaping upon one all at once seems rather formidable, but they are all good natured, which is fair proof
