ANOTHER MORSEL.

The democratic trail may be baited with a palatable morsel in the shape of a union soldier, H. S. Maloney.

In 1862, J. C. Sawyer, the democratic nominee for representative, enlisted in a Vermont regiment, agreeing to stop rebel bullets for the magnificent sum of $13 a month.

He served during the war and was honorably discharged. At the time of his discharge the army regulations required that men of his rank should wear a strap with two silver bars within it, upon each shoulder.

If the government of the United States, in the time of war, could place its straps upon the shoulders of a democrat like Sawyer, of Newberg and lieutenant straps upon the shoulders of a democrat like H. S. Maloney, of Sheridan, the citizens of Yamhill county can rest confident that whatever duty is required of them as representatives of this county in the state legislature will be done and done well.

We think that the republican party failed to put up representative men when they placed J. W. Hobbs and S. Potter upon their ticket.

If the citizens want clean men with the ability to do—as they have demonstrated in the past—they should go to the polls on Monday next and vote for H. S. Maloney and J. C. Sawyer.

THE PRESBYTERIANS.

The trial of Dr. Briggs before the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Portland is creating much interest in the case, and every citizen, like all the newspapers in the city, is full of it.

This is the first time in the history of Presbyterianism that father and son have held this important office.

The new moderator was educated at Center college, and graduated from Danville theological, and was in 1896 licensed to preach. He passed a year with the government troops in New Mexico, under his uncle, General George B. Crittenden.

In 1896 he took charge of a church at Covington, Ky., and three years later went to Europe. On his return he accepted a pastorate at Madison, Ind., and in 1872 took charge of the Fullerton-avenue church in Chicago.

Eight years later he accepted the charge of Central church, Louisville, Ky., and built it up from a membership of sixty-eight to 400. He has been twice president of Danville college, from which he graduated, and of which, thirty years before, his father was president.

Thus the son has closely followed in his father's footsteps all his life.

CANDIDATES AND THE ISSUE.

It is an interesting fact in current political history that the majority of the men who are prominent candidates for the democratic nomination for president are made such by their tariff views or record.

Grover Cleveland's nomination would not now be as strenuously demanded as it is if it were not for his tariff message of 1887.

Nine-tenths of his supporters regard him as the logical candidate of a campaign for tariff reform on account of his action in forcing this issue upon the country.

Other democrats were fighting the tariff-reform battle before he was president or even governor, but his enthusiastic friends regard his message as the starting point of the popular movement which resulted in the wonderful democratic triumph of 1890.

Mr. Carlisle's leadership is due almost entirely to his tariff record. He was a prominent democrat before he spoke on the tariff question. His first great speech in congress was against the use of troops at the polls and the employment of United States deputy marshals for party purposes in election on the tariff and has made it the main issue in every campaign.

The same may be said of Gov. Palmer. If Iowa and Illinois had not been opposed to oppressive tariff taxation no democrat would have carried them. Mr. Morrison has been recently mentioned as having power to at least defeat Palmer's nomination.

He would not be thought of but for his record as a tariff reformer in the house.

In Massachusetts Gov. Russell, outside of state matters, has nested his case on tariff reform, and so doing won in 1890 five congressional districts that had been republican.

Gov. Pattison has not achieved his success on this issue it has not been because his leading supporters have been protectionists.

On the contrary, they have been ardent revenue reformers; but Gov. Pattison himself has been obliged to make his fight on state issues because the republicans of Pennsylvania are vulnerable wherever the question of honest administration is in issue.

The democratic victories of the last eighteen years have been mainly won on the tariff issues, and it is still the power to carry a republican state. He holds the greatest hope of democratic success.—N. Y. World.

J. Durham was quite seriously injured on the morning of the fire by stepping on a nail, which penetrated the foot to a considerable depth.

MCKINLEYISM MUST GO.

No matter from what point of view the high tariff imposed upon the country is regarded with an investigating, unprejudiced eye, the laudable purpose behind it is perceived.

The history of protection, illustrates the readiness with which the people habitate themselves to the weight of a new burden, and how custom tends to familiarize them with it that they are apt in time to bear the load with the patient unconsciousness of pack animals, to which saddles and bales no doubt seem in the order of nature.

The beneficiaries of the tariff are for the most part that portion of the community least in need of "protection," since they are quite clever enough to look out for themselves, and find time besides to divert the money of others into their own tills.

They understand perfectly the superiority of indirect over direct taxation as a means of extracting money from the average man.

The necessity for revenue to carry on the war was the excuse for increasing duties on imports, the public being assured that when this necessity ceased to exist the duties would be removed.

The willingness of the people to suffer any taxation for the sake of the republic's preservation was worked like a mine. The war ceased, but the duties in place of being removed had steadily risen and finally, with an audacity admirable in its impudence, the people are asked to believe that duties, instead of being a means are themselves an end—that heavy taxes are preferable to light taxes; that cheapness and that the more the trade the country will have.

No one of intelligence can read the history of the tariff's growth without seeing that it is the result of a continuing conspiracy to fleece the many for the benefit of the few.

The political party which has made itself the champion of this scheme of progressive extortion has gone unreservedly into partnership with the aggregated capitalists of the country, and the condition for mutual help are simple.

The republican party uses the vast power of the Federal government to further enrich the already wealthy at the expense of the masses, in return for money and influence wherewith to carry elections.

Meanwhile the press of the party busies itself in assuring the workman that the prime purpose of the tariff is to keep up his wages—though free trade in labor is maintained, the tariff, that condition for employment which enables employers to purchase labor at its lowest cost.

The McKinley law, levying monstrous duties for which no pretext of public need is offered, so frankly was it framed to serve private interests, rests on the confidence of its framers in the stupidity of the masses, and on the assumption that they can be made to believe anything, however preposterous, if it is only repeated often enough.

For example, it is now received republican doctrine that high duties induce cheapness—as if it were not self-evident that the motive for levying a protective tariff on foreign goods is so to increase their price that the people will be deterred from purchasing them and forced to buy home made goods at prices beyond their real worth, but still a little lower than similar articles offered from abroad.

Thus it is that the princes of "home industries" was content and submit with more or less willingness, to have "the fat fried out of them" when a corporation fund is needed to organize "floaters" in doubtful states into "blocks of fire," in order that the party of protection may be retained in power.

No such elaborate system of robbery can long be tolerated in a country whose government rests upon manhood suffrage.

McKinley is the most efficient educator of the people that has arisen during the decade. His hands have raised the extra story on the already tottering Eiffel tower of protection, which must send it crashing to the ground when the breath of reason strikes it.

His party by committing itself to his bill has raised the breeze of tariff reform to a gale, as the party learned to its ruin in the house of representatives at the last congressional elections.

The coming presidential ticket will leave it only the senate as its last ditch.

McKinley must go.—Examiner.

THE OFFICE OF COUNTY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT IS NOT A POLITICAL ONE.

and should be filled with a person having the ability to perform the duties of the office and he should be a teacher as well.

Leroy Lewis has all these qualifications, having taught first class schools in all parts of the county.

J. B. Stillwell has taught nothing but minor district schools and with his long residence in the county has had the opportunity to mount the ladder of fame.

But the qualifications were lacking. His own precinct declares him not qualified, and there is no reason why the other precincts should set aside this verdict.

Do you duty and vote for L. R. Lewis on Monday next.

The Dalles Times-Mountaineer, lapsing suddenly from its usual fairness, remarks: "The Portland papers feel very jealous because the Baltimore and Charleston came up the Willamette to Portland without touching bottom, and this may demonstrate the fact that there is no necessity for the Lower Willamette having any place in the river and harbor bill.

It is well to consider in this connection, that the river has been dredged for years to make it navigable, and also that there has been a rise from six to nine feet within the past few days." Since there are more sandbars in the Lower Willamette than in the Lower Willamette, and since a clear thirty-foot channel to the sea is of as much importance to Eastern Oregon as to the Willamette valley, it seems proper to remark that it is an unclear bird that befools its own nest.

Lionel's Native Modesty.

Apparently Judge Webster of the Ashland district has not scored so many points by imposing fine and imprisonment upon the editor of the VALLEY RECORD for contempt of his court in having the temerity to offer an unfavorable criticism.

About every paper in the state outside his imperial jurisdiction has had a word to say, and not in terms always complimentary. A judge will generally do well to keep order in his court and see that his functions are well oiled and in running shape.

If his native modesty doesn't restrain him from attempting to sit as judge and jury in seeking redress of his own grievances, he can learn a good deal of wisdom by sitting down on a pin.

Judge (Lionel) Webster. (Portland Daily Dispatch, May 19, 1892.) E. Kaiser of the Valley Record of Ashland is in the city. Kaiser is the editor whom the really, callow and alleged judge, Webster (who is running on the Republican ticket against the able and just George Chamberlains for attorney general), put in jail for fifteen days and pay a fine of $50.

Kaiser's "crime" was that he dared point out in his weekly newspaper some of the faults of the court. For this presumption, Webster, with the air of a Russian czar, summoned the editor before him and ordered him to jail. But Kaiser was not inclined that way and appealed to the Oregon supreme court, which tribunal reversed the outrageous and wanton decision of this Jackson county tyrant.

Webster is a consummate excrement of ignorance, imbecility, tyranny and gall, and his nomination by the Republicans on the ticket is an insult to the freedom of the press, one of the bulwarks of our liberty. Webster has become so unpopular in Jackson county by his display of tyranny, ignorance and vicious and imbecile decisions that over half the Republicans will vote against him. He is unpopular where he is best known and will be snowed under so deeply at the June election that he will probably emigrate to Russia or some other clime more congenial to his tyrannical notions.

"Lionel Webster." (Marshfield Sun.) Lionel Webster, the judge who fined and tried to send the editor of the VALLEY RECORD to prison for contempt of court, recently had the honor of being attorney general. He is unfit for anything.

It Seems So. (Portland O. U. W. Reporter.) Some bottled lawyer down in southern Oregon, who got to be judge by accident, recently had the honor of being the Ashland Record arrested and fined for contempt of court simply because the Record insinuated that said judge was a dishonest nitwit, who would not be able to do anything but to muddle for telling what it believes to be the truth?

Unit to Be a Judge. (Sales Daily Statesman, May 2.) There was a decision of the supreme court on Thursday on an appeal from Jackson county from a decision by Webster which has attracted much attention in southern Oregon and throughout the state.

E. J. Kaiser of the Ashland Record, referred to the conduct and actions of Judge Webster in an uncompromising manner, whereupon Webster hauled him up for "contempt" of court. Webster sat with autocratic power in a case to redress his own grievances. He convicted Kaiser of contempt, the "contempt" consisting in telling the truth about the judge. Of course the decision was reversed.

Justice Taylor rendered an able opinion, of which the syllabus appeared in yesterday's Statesman. Judge Webster's foolish action in this case would indicate that he is unfit for his high position.

Judge Webster's Mistake. (Daily Oregonian.) E. S. Kaiser, editor of the Ashland Record, is feeling very good over the action of the supreme court, which reversed the decision of Judge Webster of Jackson county, who fined the editor $50 and fifteen days imprisonment for criticizing the doings of the circuit court over which he presided.

Webster is a young man and made a mistake as to the extent of his power to punish uncomplimentary newspaper criticism.

"Puzzled The Doctors." MOST of the cases cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla have been given up by the regular practice. Physicians are recommending this medicine more than ever, and with satisfactory results.

E. M. Sargent, Lowell, Mass., says:—"Several years ago, my daughter broke out with large sores on her hands, face, and other parts of her body. The case puzzled the doctors. My daughter used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and it resulted in a complete cure. Her blood seems to have been thoroughly purified, as she has never had another such a pimply disease taking this medicine."

"This is to certify that after having been sick for twelve years with kidney disease and general debility, and having been treated by several physicians without relief, I am now feeling better than I have in many years, and I attribute my recovery to the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla."—Maria Ludwigson, Albert Lea, Minn.
