Improvement in Binders. Knapp, Burrell & Co. have just received a carload of the celebrated Deering binders. This machine has many improvements not heretofore used, one of which is the jointed platform. By the removal of two small bolts, the farmer can carry in his vest pocket or in the tool box, the platform can be telescoped to less than half of its working width and this can be accomplished in five minutes by one man unaided. This patented device is owned and controlled by Wm. Deering & Co., and the Deering binder is the only one used in the U. S. Trucks for moving the binder are no longer necessary, as when telescoped, the Deering machine will pass through any ordinary farm gate and travel any wagon road. Farmers do not fail to see this binder and carefully examine this and other exclusive features before buying. We also invite your attention to the new Buffalo Bluffs thrasher on exhibition at our storehouse. E. N. FORD, Manager.

Worse than expected. Martine, of the North Yamhill Bank, Leaves Between Two Days. Deposits Amount to $6000. Thursday morning Sheriff Warren went to North Yamhill to serve an attachment on the Farmers and Traders bank and found that C. A. Martine, the cashier, owner, etc., had left for parts unknown during the night. It was ascertained that he had been driven to Forest Grove, where he took the early morning train for Portland. From there he went north on the Northern Pacific and his whereabouts are unknown. He is probably talking about the gullible people of Yamhill City. The sheriff entered the bank and found a note of money could be found. The books show that about $6,000 was on deposit when the bank closed. Some of this has been paid but it is impossible to find the amount of payments. The Commercial bank of Portland was garnished and answered that the bank held $12,396.70 in notes given to the North Yamhill bank, as collateral to secure a loan of $13,281.17. We understand that some of the givers of these notes hold Martine's receipts of their payment, he not remitting to the Portland bank when the notes were paid. These notes will have to be paid over again. The total loss will be in the neighborhood of $6,000 or over and it looks as if Martine was just the amount of loss ahead.

IN TRAINING. Devine is Training in this City for His Match With Keogh, May 17th. There seems to be no end to the various methods employed by frauds, beats and swindlers to obtain money under false pretenses. When one scheme is publicly exposed, these fellows immediately have recourse to another which is equally successful. In fact there seems to be an exhaustless ingenuity shown in devising new and dishonest schemes to trap the unwary and overconfident. They have invented a new and very smooth dodge which has recently been practiced very successfully in eastern Oregon towns. A number of cases have very lately been reported about LaGrande, Union, Baker City and other points not remote from those named. The mode of operating is as follows: A business man, merchant or banker at one of these places will receive a letter purporting to come from one of the prominent mercantile houses of Portland. The letter is printed on a typewriter, and is thoroughly business-like in appearance and language. It says in substance, that Mr. —, giving some name, "who is representing our firm on the road, expects to visit your town in the course of a few days or weeks. Should he be short of funds while in your city and should call on you, will you please honor his draft to the amount of $30, $40, $50 or $60, etc., and much obliged?" Of course the letter is a forgery, but the firm or person to whom it is addressed does not find that out until too late. A great many such letters, it is said have been sent out. It generally happens that the firm to whom the letter is addressed has dealings with the firm from whom the letter purports to be sent. Of course, not knowing that it is a forgery, the firm can very easily be imposed upon and swindled. Sure enough, Mr. — makes his appearance in the town. He is "just a little short in the cash, you know. Collections have been a little light," etc. He never fails to call on the firm who have already been written. "My firm has written you to make me a little advance if it is convenient," says the smooth operator. Of course he is a very neatly dressed young fellow; looks just like a drummer; has a keen business, bland address, and is a good talker. He is Mr. — the same gentleman mentioned in the letter. To make a long story short, his draft is honored on sight; he pockets the loose change, thanks the cashier with a smile, tips his hat and walks away. He is not seen again. Afterward the firm makes the discovery that the letter is a gross forgery, and that the nice young chap is a swindler of the first water. But he is nowhere to be found. This scheme has been recently worked very successfully and a number of persons victimized. How many confidence men are engaged in this kind of swindling, how many letters written and how many firms are involved are conditions which cannot now be answered. The only way to avoid being victimized is for every firm and person to decline to honor the draft of any and every slick looking fellow who says he is Mr. Blank; that he is a drummer; that he represents such and such a well known firm in Portland or elsewhere, and that he is "just a little short at present." This course will save trouble and—Albany Herald.

IN TRAINING. Devine is Training in this City for His Match With Keogh, May 17th. There seems to be no end to the various methods employed by frauds, beats and swindlers to obtain money under false pretenses. When one scheme is publicly exposed, these fellows immediately have recourse to another which is equally successful. In fact there seems to be an exhaustless ingenuity shown in devising new and dishonest schemes to trap the unwary and overconfident. They have invented a new and very smooth dodge which has recently been practiced very successfully in eastern Oregon towns. A number of cases have very lately been reported about LaGrande, Union, Baker City and other points not remote from those named. The mode of operating is as follows: A business man, merchant or banker at one of these places will receive a letter purporting to come from one of the prominent mercantile houses of Portland. The letter is printed on a typewriter, and is thoroughly business-like in appearance and language. It says in substance, that Mr. —, giving some name, "who is representing our firm on the road, expects to visit your town in the course of a few days or weeks. Should he be short of funds while in your city and should call on you, will you please honor his draft to the amount of $30, $40, $50 or $60, etc., and much obliged?" Of course the letter is a forgery, but the firm or person to whom it is addressed does not find that out until too late. A great many such letters, it is said have been sent out. It generally happens that the firm to whom the letter is addressed has dealings with the firm from whom the letter purports to be sent. Of course, not knowing that it is a forgery, the firm can very easily be imposed upon and swindled. Sure enough, Mr. — makes his appearance in the town. He is "just a little short in the cash, you know. Collections have been a little light," etc. He never fails to call on the firm who have already been written. "My firm has written you to make me a little advance if it is convenient," says the smooth operator. Of course he is a very neatly dressed young fellow; looks just like a drummer; has a keen business, bland address, and is a good talker. He is Mr. — the same gentleman mentioned in the letter. To make a long story short, his draft is honored on sight; he pockets the loose change, thanks the cashier with a smile, tips his hat and walks away. He is not seen again. Afterward the firm makes the discovery that the letter is a gross forgery, and that the nice young chap is a swindler of the first water. But he is nowhere to be found. This scheme has been recently worked very successfully and a number of persons victimized. How many confidence men are engaged in this kind of swindling, how many letters written and how many firms are involved are conditions which cannot now be answered. The only way to avoid being victimized is for every firm and person to decline to honor the draft of any and every slick looking fellow who says he is Mr. Blank; that he is a drummer; that he represents such and such a well known firm in Portland or elsewhere, and that he is "just a little short at present." This course will save trouble and—Albany Herald.

Improvement in Binders. Knapp, Burrell & Co. have just received a carload of the celebrated Deering binders. This machine has many improvements not heretofore used, one of which is the jointed platform. By the removal of two small bolts, the farmer can carry in his vest pocket or in the tool box, the platform can be telescoped to less than half of its working width and this can be accomplished in five minutes by one man unaided. This patented device is owned and controlled by Wm. Deering & Co., and the Deering binder is the only one used in the U. S. Trucks for moving the binder are no longer necessary, as when telescoped, the Deering machine will pass through any ordinary farm gate and travel any wagon road. Farmers do not fail to see this binder and carefully examine this and other exclusive features before buying. We also invite your attention to the new Buffalo Bluffs thrasher on exhibition at our storehouse. E. N. FORD, Manager.
