Thursday, July 6, 1893.

Some of the papers of the state give the credit for the present stringency to the repeal of the mortgage tax law.

Republican financial legislation is a success, judging from the present condition of the country. Four years more and everyone would have gone to the bow-wows.

All the trade papers are speaking of the phenomenal movement of grain to Europe. This means that the flow of gold will start our way and that times will be easier in a very short time.

Republican depression is staring the country in the face. The people who cast their ballot for the democratic party should be glad, and the ones who voted the republican ticket should thank them for saving the country from bankruptcy.

The president has called a special meeting of congress to convene on August 7th. It is now in keeping for the republican press that has been calling for a special session to do away with some of the republican financial legislation to tell the people that it is not necessary.

A Douglas county man, a short time ago, charged a neighbor with stealing a hog valued at $5. The prosecution cost the county $80, of which the loser of the hog got $100 in witness fees and mileage. The accused went free. The same thing has been done many times in every county of the state and still the people prefer to submit to such impositions than to attempt to send money to the legislature who have ability to formulate legislation for their benefit.

A number of farmers in this part of the county have complained that McMinnville does not furnish a market for their productions. A successful city furnishes a market for every pound of produce that can be brought to it. The price is not the objection, we lack buyers. This city should be the hop, fruit and wheat center of the county. Any inducement that brings people to us brings us trade. Local buyers of hops, fruit and grain, not for home consumption, would give us an increased commercial importance.

This depression should teach our farmers that mixed farming will pay better than wheat. If a crop of some kind was being harvested every month in the year times would be easier in Oregon than they are. This is one advantage that the east has over the west. A little in your pockets all the time is better than a large amount once a year. Cash in hand for everything reduces the rate of interest and is the life of trade, without the possibility of failure. With the sale of the wheat crop comes a month or so of prosperity, then extended credit, increase of interest and failures.

The remark made by Bismarck during the Franco-Prussian war, when he found that arms had been shipped to France from the United States, was looked upon at that time as an idle sentence. It was to the effect that Germany would repay the kindness by giving us her socialists. We have them and are willing to be rid of them. Germany, sends us Schwab, Nebe and Fielden; we try them for crimes committed and an American judge sentenced two of them to death, the other to fifteen years imprisonment. The death sentence is commuted to life imprisonment; the people kindly sent as by Bismarck with the help of a few other Americans select as governor another man kindly sent to us by Germany and the result is that the prisoners are free once more. Such men as Altgeld should not be admitted to citizenship, much less elected governor of a state.

So the World's fair is to be opened on Sunday. In the holy name of religion, in honor of the sanctity of the Sabbath we object to the opening of the World's fair at all, because the Sabbath of the Greeks is Monday, of the Persians Tuesday, of the Assyrians Wednesday, of the Egyptians Thursday, of the Turks Friday, of the Jews and Seventh Day Adventists Saturday, and of the large body of Christians Sunday, and as there is some doubt as to the one holding the real bona fide first mortgage on the next world we wish to keep out of it by not monkeying with anybody's Sabbath. -Valley Record.

THE FARMER'S HOPE.

Our elevators are bursting with wheat for which the farmers can command but little more than 60 cents a bushel. There are in Europe alone, if we may credit the statement by the late secretary of agriculture, Mr. Rusk, 150,000,000 people who never eat wheat bread. In the one country there is an immense supply of visible food waiting for buyers. In the other countries are millions who go to bed hungry. Between them ply daily ferryboats with freight charges reduced to a minimum. What prevents an exchange that means benefit to both sides, needed food to the one and needed markets to the other?

Not the sea, for it costs no more to send a bushel of wheat abroad than to send a letter in the mail, but the McKinley bill, which takes from the farmer, or his middleman, one-third or one-half of the commodities for which he might exchange this surplus wheat in foreign markets as a fine for not buying those commodities from some protected home producer.

It is clear, then, that whatever direct benefits may come to classes from release of taxes on the necessities they consume or on materials with which they work, the great general good to be sought in tariff revision is a healthy expansion of foreign commerce. This was the result of the Walker tariff in 1846. During the twenty-five years previous our foreign trade had not doubled. In 1822 it was $141,000,000, in 1846 it had grown to $227,000,000, an increase of but 60 per cent.

Under the low revenue tariff enacted in that year it swelled by 1890 to $687,000,000, a growth of more than 200 per cent in fourteen years. More significant and instructive still was the increase in the tonnage of the American shipping engaged in the foreign trade. For thirty years prior to 1846 it had been nearly stationary. In that year it was only 943,397 tons, almost 40,000 less than in 1810. By 1890 it reached 2,380,336 tons.

These figures speak volumes, but their chief encouragement is for those who produce the surplus products that must have other markets besides our own for remunerative sales.

The tariff of 1846 made a vent for our surplus products by opening a market for the things which, and which alone, other peoples had to exchange for them. Yet this rapid expansion of imports brought no distress to home manufacturers. On the contrary, after eleven years' experience of that tariff they assented, almost unanimously, to its further decrease of 20 per cent.

The party of low tariff and revenue duties is not about to try a new and dangerous experiment. It has no new fangled theory which it wishes to test upon the body politic. It has not only the support of reason but this solid justification of experience in the reform it proposes to make by purging our laws of the duties that smelt of monopoly and rearing the sovereign power of taxation from private control. -N. Y. World.

GOLD AND SILVER.

Financial matters between nations are narrowing down to a fight for gold. There is no hope of bimetallism between nations by international agreement or otherwise. The end of the use of silver as a money for the settlement of balances between countries is here and the metal will not hereafter be used except for subsidiary coinage in small amounts to meet the necessities of local trade within the countries issuing it.

The countries of the world have declared that silver is a commodity and is not to be used at a fixed value. The fluctuation of its price, at all times below the fixed value placed upon it by the United States, shows very plainly that it is useless to us as a money when its price as a commodity is so much determined by the nations who do not use it as a standard. The United States should, in the special session of congress, recognize the necessity of silver and establish the currency of the country on a gold basis, thus preparing the country against future panics, caused by the operation of foreign financiers in the silver market.

The United States might as well attempt to turn aside the wrath of God as to attempt to make gold and silver equal in purchasing power in the face of all the gold standard countries of the world and the silver dollar worth 60 cents as a commodity. Its value could be held up as long as we had gold to do it with, but the moment that the gold was not forthcoming that moment would we be with silver as our standard and the value of the silver dollar would simply be equal to its price as a commodity. In other words the foreigner who had taken our gold could buy from us with what we had given him, just twice as much as we could from each other. This loss is something we cannot stand and we must enter the fight for gold with energy as we are sure that we can get as much of it as any country on the face of the earth.

It is, or should be, evident now that every dollar kept at home adds to our prosperity. McMinnville people should patronize McMinnville business men and the business men should patronize the McMinnville people.

THE PENSION ROLL.

The agitation for a reduced expenditure in the pension bureau and the publication of the pension roll is beginning to bear fruit. The circumstances of men in public life who are drawing pensions have been enquired into, and it is found that men enjoying positions high in the gift of the people, with a large salary attached and with an income of their own, do not have an objection to drawing $12 or $30 more from the government through the pension bureau. Pensions have been granted to men who lost their hair; to men who have fallen from horses while drunk and sustained an injury of no consequence; to men who deserted from the confederate army 14 days before the close of the war, and to thousands of other men for injuries as trivial. Men who deserve a pension have not received one because of the claims of men who have a slight injury and a great pull. Following is a list of prominent persons who draw pensions:

Congressman Henry F. Thomas of Michigan is a new member who draws $12 a month pension for rheumatism and debility from hard service, especially in Kilpatrick's raid on Richmond when he was sergeant of Company D of the Seventh Michigan cavalry. Mr. Thomas has led an active life and has been a prominent figure in Michigan politics.

Congressman William McKelighan of Nebraska, draws $12 a month for general debility, to service in the army. He was a private in Company B, Eleventh Illinois volunteer cavalry. Mr. McKelighan is an active member of the house, and those who have tackled him in debate have failed to ever discover any general debility in his constitution.

Congressman William H. Enoch of Ohio, receives a pension of $30 a month for a gunshot wound in the head at the battle of Winchester, Va., in September, 1862. Mr. Enoch is a good soldier. When the war ended he was colonel of the Fifth West Virginia volunteers. He is one of the most energetic members of the Ohio delegation in the house, and has been in congress several terms.

Congressman Phillip Sidney Post, of Illinois, ex-consul-general to Vienna, receives a pension of $30 a month. He was colonel of the Fifty-ninth Illinois volunteer infantry, and received a gunshot wound in the right arm at the battle of Pea Ridge, Ark. He was also wounded in the left side by a grape shot at the battle of Nashville. Mr. Post has been in congress for several terms.

Congressman William Cogswell, of Massachusetts, draws a pension of $15 for a gunshot wound in the left arm received at Chancellorsville, Va. He was lieutenant-colonel of the Second Massachusetts volunteers, and saw a good deal of service. He is one of the most intelligent members of the republican side of the house, and his activity does not appear to have been seriously impaired from any cause.

Congressman Mariott Brosius of Pennsylvania, draws a pension of $36 a month for a gunshot wound of the right shoulder, received at Bermuda Hundred, Va., in May, 1864. He was then sergeant of company K, Ninety-seventh Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry.

Mr. Brosius is a hardworking lawyer in comfortable circumstances. He will be remembered as a member of a committee appointed to investigate pension frauds perpetrated under Commissioner Taft.

Congressman David B. Henderson, of Iowa, draws a pension of $30 a month for the loss of his left foot from wounds received at the battle of Corinth, Miss., Oct. 4, 1862. He was then first lieutenant of Company C, Twelfth Iowa infantry. Mr. Henderson has been a member of the house for the past twelve years and is rated as one of the strongest as well as one of the most active members of the republican side. He is in comfortable circumstances.

Congressman William F. Thomas of Michigan is a new member who draws $12 a month pension for rheumatism and debility from hard service, especially in Kilpatrick's raid on Richmond when he was sergeant of Company D of the Seventh Michigan cavalry. 000 a year. This money is obtained by depositing the state funds in banks that are willing to divide the profit on this money with the treasurer.

Public office in this state is not considered a public trust and it is time that the people of the state talk this matter over and by agitation cause a change in several of the state offices. Every dollar of money received by the state treasurer increases the tax to the people and in these hard times a seven mill state and nineteen mill county tax are things that cut down the profit on farm products considerably. We should do like the people of Wisconsin, who directed of this same system, and institute proceedings against a few extortioners and gather back into the treasury some of the funds that rightly belong there.

Judgment has been taken against the ex-state treasurer for $100,000 appropriated while in office. Should such proceedings be instituted in this state we surmise that several prominent, wealthy and influential citizens would be very nervous about their financial matters.

WAR IN EUROPE.

The dispatches of yesterday announced that a revolution had occurred in Greece, that King George had abdicated and a republic had been declared. The cause of the revolution, or the instigator of it, is undoubtedly Russia, as this power has, for a long time, been at work in all the small kingdoms of the east, creating distrust and disturbance. Russia would like to place under her protecting arms all the small countries near Turkey, to make the result of a descent upon the Ottoman empire a victory for Russia. The fact that King George of Greece was placed upon the throne by England increases the probability of a war in Europe, providing the revolution was the result of Russian intrigues.

Russia and England are not friends and a war between the two countries would be extended over a great part of the civilized world, as they have holdings abutting each other in Asia that are filled with troops. In case war should be declared the sands of many countries would soak up the life blood of Russian and English soldiers. The roar of battle would be first heard in the English channel, then the Dardanelles and the Indus would give back an echo.

Under present conditions it seems impossible that the clash between England and Russia would not bring into the fight Austria, Germany, Italy and France.

If the declaration of war should bring on a general one, the present map of Europe would be changed. The United States would have to at least show friendship to some of the powers engaged in the struggle and these powers would be Russia and France, between whom there exists, an agreement to help each other in case of war. While the United States would not participate in the war, her friendliness toward any one of the contestants would have the effect of the favored party. If necessary the United States would no doubt make the same showing for Russia that Russia made for us in the war of the rebellion. The labor of the Marquis de Lafayette for the infant American republic is still so fresh with the the American people that their sympathies would be for the French in case France was drawn into the war with England.

With the dissensions in Austria it would be a hard matter to consolidate her people against Russia, providing Russia would guarantee a government of its own to Hungary. Roumania, Bulgaria and Servia are very nearly allied to the present enemies of the United States and no doubt would enroll themselves with Russia.

The present moment is an auspicious one for Russia, and the revolution in Greece may be the first move on the part of that country to gain new territory and settle that old grudge against England, coming from the Crimean war.

"This exposition is 10,000 university extensions and Chautauquus concentrated in its educational advantage. No man or woman can visit it, go into it, go through it, stay in it and stay with it without becoming bigger and broader for the rest of his or her life. Its effects will be seen through our artisans and manufacturers, through our farmers and our agriculture, through our artists in their sphere and through our educators in the schools. It is at once a kindergarten, a common school, a technological and manual training school and a university."

A writer in the North American Review states that "we shall have on the rolls twenty widows and two daughters of the revolution, the last two survivors of the war having died in 1860, aged respectively 105 and 106. There are 165 survivors and 6,657 widows of the war of 1812, and 15,215 survivors and 7,282 widows of the Mexican war. This leaves 687,862 survivors and 138,083 dependent relatives of the war of the rebellion, with 438,898 claimants for pensions for this and earlier wars on the list for consideration at the date of the last report, October 12, 1892, besides 381,663 claimants for increase of pensions."

The Amity Poppin like all of the populist organs, is brave as a lion in showing up corruption. It even has its own territory and comes over into Polk for material to work on, stating that Commissioner Byerly was absent at the January and February terms of court, but drew his pay for the same. The records show that the populist organ lied, point blank, and without cause or provocation. Just attend to your own court, neighbor; but keep truth on your side. -Transcript. This breaks the camel's back. Not being contented with lying about our court, the Whetling goes for the Polk county court.

Kentucky Frog Farms.

Among the many toothsome luxuries now coming into market to satisfy the cravings of our epicures, are large green frogs. They are received here in coops covered with netted wire tops, and are sold just like live poultry. These frogs have become articles of stock in the large produce houses of late, and are shipped principally from southern Kentucky, where there are several frog farms in successful operation. One enterprising gentleman, a Mr. Ford, who lives near Radley Hill, Ky., on the line of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, is the owner of two large ponds, in which he cultivates the green frog to perfection. They are fed principally on corn meal, flies and worms and are taken when quite young and fattened until they attain an enormous size. There are many other shippers of this delicacy to the city, and some of them send their frogs all dressed and ready for cooking. They are excellent eating and command good prices in the markets.

Only the Scars Remain.

"Among the many testimonials which I see in regard to certain medicines performing cures, cleansing the blood, etc.," writes HENRY HUDSON, of the James Smith Woollen Machinery Co., Philadelphia, Pa., "none more than my own case. Twenty years ago, at the age of 18 years, I had swellings come on my legs, which broke and became running sores. My family physician could do me no good, and it was feared that the bones would be affected. At last, my good old mother sent me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took three bottles, the sores healed, and I have not been troubled since. Only the scars remain, and the memory of the past, to remind me of the good I received from the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have been on the road for the past twelve years, have noticed Ayer's Sarsaparilla advertised in all parts of the United States, and always take pleasure in telling what good it did for me."
