The paid admission at the World's fair is in the neighborhood of 180,000 per day.

"The Writer" employed on the Statesman seems to have a great opinion of his opinion.

Senator Stewart is a greater man than the public thought he was. He would make the greatest cornet player or long distance driver on earth.

The price of wheat is steadily going up. It is making large jumps but at the present rate of travel will make a good price if it keeps on going.

The large cotton mills of the east have resumed work notwithstanding the argument that they were closed until the democratic tariff law was formulated and in force. Thus is another deception exploded.

Free coinage of silver would be all right if the miner would give to the government a dollar's worth of bullion for a stamped silver dollar. This he does not want to do. He wants to take 63 cents worth of silver to the mint and get 100 cents worth of gold in return.

Sixteen banks failed in Oregon during the recent panic and nine have resumed. Fourteen banks failed in Washington and up to date only one of them has resumed. This is a good showing for Oregon and demonstrates the solidity of our money institutions as compared with those of Washington.

It seems to be the general opinion that the revolution in Brazil has for its end the restoration of the monarchy. While liberty is a great thing it is impossible to people that do not understand its worth and are incapable of governing themselves. Fifty years of such an emperor as Don Pedro would have fitted the people of Brazil for self government.

Heretofore in the trial of government warships the contractors have been allowed to have as large a pressure in the boilers as they desired. The navy department has made a ruling that the excess pressure used in future trials shall not exceed 5 per cent of the standard pressure. This will result in either better machinery or a loss of speed in our war vessels.

The final articles for the Corbett-Mitchell fight have been signed and now the great daily papers will be filled with news about the condition of miles they walk each day, and many other important particulars. Some of the readers will not be interested in them both at the equator or some other hot place.

Secretary Carlisle has informed the department of justice that the expense of the deportation of the Chinese will be borne by the treasury to the extent of the money appropriated for that purpose. The Chinese in all parts of the country are aware of the effort being made to get them out of the country and for the first time wear a scared look. They have concluded they must go and are holding councils of war in every washhouse.

Miss Daisy Ainsworth, of Oakland, California, has been selected by Governor Pennoyer to christen the Oregon when she is launched on Oct. 26 at the Union Iron works. Miss Ainsworth is a native Oregon girl and is the daughter of Capt. J. C. Ainsworth, who did so much for the state during its infancy. The Oregon will be the largest of the United States battle ships and is perfectly proper that a genuine web-footed girl should christen her.

The burning of negroes in the south has prompted the Forum to secure for its October number an explanation of the attitude of the southern whites. Bishop Atticus G. Haygood and Major Chas. H. Smith ("Bill Arp") write in protesting that the frightful crimes of negroes need peculiarly swift punishment. The bishop, however, thinks these crimes would diminish if the negroes were better educated, while "Bill Arp" thinks the negroes have already not only too much education, but too much liberty.

Some of our subscribers grow needlessly angry upon the receipt of a notice of their indebtedness to this paper. It is simply impossible for the proprietors of this paper to interview every subscriber and as it is an absolute necessity that we receive pay for what we furnish in order to live.

The sending of notices of indebtedness to every one who is indebted to us is also a necessity. We see no reason why a person should grow angry upon the receipt of a bill. It does not show that faith in the responsibility of the person to whom it is sent is lacking, for business men, as a rule, do not trouble themselves with giving credit to persons who do not pay, and when they do have sense enough to know that the sending of a bill will not bring a response. Unreliable persons are usually forced to pay, if they have anything to pay with, by a process of law. Persons who are angry because of receiving a bill from us have the consolation that 574 others have received the same notice of indebtedness.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure at Drugists.

THE PRESIDENT'S POSITION.

The attempt of the silver senators and their allies to make it appear that President Cleveland has sought to subject the senate to "executive dictation" is without warrant of fact.

The president has not asked of congress any new legislation. He called it together to repeal one clause of a statute that, according to the experience and testimony of the whole business world, was working serious injury and threatening even worse disaster. This law had been abandoned and condemned by the party that passed it. It had been denounced and its repeal promised in the democratic national platform. Its immediate and unconditional repeal was demanded by the representatives of capital and labor, of commerce and of industry throughout the country.

The purchase of silver is furthermore purely an administrative act. It may also be called strictly a business operation. The secretary of the treasury, to whom is intrusted the management of the nation's finances, reported to the president that these purchases and the issue of treasury notes therefor resemble in gold had reached the danger point. They had drained the treasury of its free gold and treasured on the reserve. They were forcing the government toward a single and depreciated silver standard. This danger had not only menaced the treasury, but it had stricken business with the paralysis of fear.

As the chief executive officer, therefore, the president had a right and it was his duty strenuously to urge the repeal of this law. He had a right to go further and say that he will not be a party to any compromise which would help the country out of the frying-pan only to drop it into the fire. The president's responsibility for legislation is equal to that of congress.

But beyond this the president is the chief of a party. As such he is charged with the duty of doing all that he properly can to carry out its policy and to embody its principles in law. It was not the practice of the earlier presidents to send their recommendations to congress and give themselves no further concern about them. That was not Jefferson's way. It was not Jackson's. It was not Lincoln's. These and all other presidents who made any mark in history for their administration or their party sought by the stress of personal and political influence to carry out their ideas. President Cleveland would fall short of his duty and would prove his incapacity for the leadership intrusted to him should he omit any legitimate effort to give effect to democratic policies.

The talk of "dictation" is absurd. Mr. Cleveland puts his foot down squarely as to what he will or won't do, but he is not addicted to telling other men what they must do or shall do. He is a firm man. He may even be called obstinate. But his firmness has been displayed in defense of what he believed to be right. His obstinacy, in this case at least, is in resistance to suggestions or demands which the people disapprove. He deserves the support, not only of his own party, but of all patriotic men. The republicans are proving themselves patriotic in supporting him. It is a severe reflection upon the fidelity and governing capacity of democratic senators that a majority of them refuse their support to their own chosen leader in a policy to which the people are pledged and which a great majority of the people uphold.—New York World.

AVERSION TO FARM LABOR.

There is something radically wrong when, in the same papers in which we read of bread riots in the cities, we are told that the farmers have difficulty in finding sufficient help to harvest their crops. The growing aversion to farm labor and the ever-increasing tendency of all classes to flock to the cities is far from being a hopeful sign. This old familiar complaint is more than ever unaccountable this year. While a million of idle men are hanging about the cities waiting for something to turn up, there is remunerative work in the adjoining country spilling to be done. It would seem at first blush that the troubles lie in lack of communication between the vacant job and the idle man. No doubt in many cases this is the fact. For such a general burst of information of the sort suggested by the Knights of Labor would be a boon.

But on the close inspection this excuse will not hold good for the aggregations that are ostentatiously parading the streets. These men, in their peregrinations from one city to another, could find work in the harvest fields through which they pass, if they really desired employment on farms. It is true that many of those out of work are factory operatives who are not fitted by training for harvest field work, and are detained by families from wandering over the country in search of employment. They feel, too, that they may be better off on their job in their own cities waiting for something to turn up, than if they leave the city. And so the tendency is to keep the evil contentedly aggravated and to starve in a pimple.

But there are thousands upon thousands to whom these excuses do not apply. Take the miners who have been thrown out of work. They are well fitted for farm work, yet they come flocking straight to the city, where there is no more mining than farming to be done. Another class, the most troublesome and complaining of all—the unskilled laborers—could do manual farm work as well as dig ditches if they were willing to leave the cities. The sort of idle aggregation that is assembled in Chicago and New York just now presents one of the gravest questions of modern civilization.

The trouble is that farm labor no longer attracts the masses. There is no sudden wealth on the farm, and the world has gotten the notion that there is this in the city. And there is no eight-hour rule on the farm. The work on a farm in this country is not excessive, and a healthy man who is really willing to work need be in no danger of starvation if he will once get out of his head this fallacious notion that the city is the only place in which to make a living.—Chicago Journal.

RELIGIONS INVENTED.

The New York Sun, in speaking of the "Congress of All Religions" that was held in Chicago a week ago, says: "At the 'Congress of All Religions' that is to be convened next Monday in Chicago, nine of the old religions of the world will be represented; and at least three times as many newly invented religions will be put on exhibition. We have examined the designs of a number of the novelties, as drawn by their inventors. Some of them are entertaining, and others are nauseating. Some are brand new and look very good. Some are made up of scraps of exploded religions clumsily stuck together and varnished. We have seen one with a grin on its face, one that looks fierce as the Chinese joss in Mott street, and others that are loose in all their joints, or crippled in both legs, or blind in one eye, or utterly hebetudinous, or wearing a serio-comic expression, or resembling the devil, or smiling like Buddha under the Ho tree, or vexed with rheumatism, or carrying the head in the wrong place. We certainly should not like to see them all put on exhibition in New York at once. There is one of them, a German invention, that is very fat and has a full beard; there is one, patented by a Chicago man, who says it comprises all the merits of the whole of the others, besides enjoying exclusive and peculiar qualities of soul and sense known only to the initiated. That's the thing for him. It is surprising that men of reason and self faith should be willing to enter into association with the cranks who are to put their wild inventions on exhibition in the Chicago Congress of All Religions.

The number of men that can be mobilized for war in Europe is appalling. France, a country smaller than the state of Texas by nearly 60,000 square miles, with a population of 37,500,000, has 2,500,000 men ready to fall into battle line at the call to arms. This is one soldier to every 15 persons in the country. The people of the United States do not comprehend the militarism of the Old World. Basing our population at 60,000,000, the same ratio of soldiers to civilians would give the United States an army in time of war of 4,266,624 soldiers. It costs the nations of Europe about $300 per annum for each soldier in active service and should the United States require the army, based on the ratio of France, our expenditure for keeping it would amount to $1,279,987,200 per year. Can you comprehend the figures?

Some very severe reflections were cast upon the business men of this city on Sunday night last by the ministers, who, in their wisdom have created a rupture between the business and church elements. The body of people recognize the church as one of the institutions allowed to exist in this land of liberty but fall to recognize it as a law enforcing power. If the business men of this city are law breakers let the ministers act as citizens, make complaint and compel them to obey the law. Former ministers confined themselves strictly to their own business, preached the gospel, not civil law, and won the respect of the community. The late importations from the east seem to desire notoriety and are gaining it by sensational, ingenuitously and unchristian devices.

Prof. Edward S. Holden, director of Lick Observatory, has prepared for the October Forum an absorbing account of the wonderful new star discovered in 1862. This star, which resembles our sun, blazed up to an astonishing brilliancy within a few days of its discovery, then gradually disappeared, and subsequently reappeared as a nebula. The changes of light and heat it developed, if repeated in the case of our own sun, would mean a quick end of the human race and the immediate extinction of all life upon this earth! This is the most unaccountable phenomenon with which astronomers have startled us since the spring comet was expected to hit the earth.

The senate gives the country an illustration of its caliber when it talks of impeaching the president in order to delay a vote on the silver bill. The efforts of this body to defeat the will of the people savors more and more of the aristocratic house of lords of England, as the years roll by. The American people are not in favor of an aristocracy of birth or election but honor an aristocracy of brains. This last qualification a number of the senators do not possess and the people are receiving knowledge of this through their efforts in delaying a vote on this matter that is important to every worker in this republic.

Sudden Death.—That Startling News Heading.

The public is becoming accustomed to the above heading, but nevertheless receives a shock. Sudden death in a vast majority of cases results from heart disease, manifested by one or several of the following symptoms: Short breath, palpitation, irregular pulse, wind in the stomach, pain in side, shoulder or arm, under left shoulder blade, between shoulders or in lower chest, oppression or intermittent pulse, oppressed feeling in chest, choking sensation, weak or hungry spells, difficult breathing, swelling of feet or ankles, dizziness. Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure speedily remedies all these. Sold by Rogers Bros. on a guarantee, who will give you his elegant new book free.

Another Fruit Pest.

Mr. George Doughty has found another orchard pest to annoy him. For a month he noticed that the tender new growth on his young prune and plum trees are losing their leaves and shriveling up. This he laid to dry weather, but a critical inspection revealed a caterpillar lying on the limb from two and a half to three inches long, of a color identical with the worm for the limb itself. The worm is doing much harm in Mr. Doughty's young orchard.—Hillsboro Independent.

A Bright Lad.

Ten years of age, but who declines to give his name to the public, makes this authorized, confidential statement to us:
 "When I was one year old, my mamma died of consumption. The doctor said that I, too, would soon die, and all our neighbors were sure to die. I was very weak, and never able to walk, because I was so weak and puny. A gathering formed and broke up, and I was left by myself. I gathered and turned out pieces of bone. I had myself so as to break the skin. It was sure to become a running sore. I had to take lots of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It cured me, and I am now strong."
