Lafayette can boast of having the best house for fire apparatus in Yam-bill county; and, by the way they have a good, substantial hook and ladder truck, and they tell us that the fire boys of that town are getting to handling it in good shape. When a young man tries for three

Rev. Mr. Mathews, who has been on he Oregon City circuit of Church, the past year, was transferred to this circuit by the late conference, while Rev. T. L. Jones goes to Oregon City. Mr. Mathews is spoken of as an able and good man by those who are acquainted with him.

Mr W. H. Renfro, of North Yambill was in town on Thursday last, called at the REPORTER office, paid several subscriptions, ordered a lot of job work of various kinds and went on his way rejoicing. Mr. R. said that wheat was turning out splendedly in the North Yamhill section and that farmers were feeling jubilant.

Why don't some of our capitalists build some houses to rent? Hardly a build some houses to rent? Hardly a day passes but that men are enquiring for vacant houses; but there are none. We are not a Solomon, but it appears to us, judging from the way houses rent, that a man could make more than 10 per cent, off his money by putting it into tenement houses. Will some friend second our motion?

Messrs, Claud and John Ferguson, of Lafayette, came up and spent Sunday with—[we came near telling something that was none of our busines.] But the expression of Eddie's face, as one of these young gentlemen passed down the street with one of MeM.'s fair daughters, haunts us, and that's the reason why we border so closely upon personalities.

The Jews departed Monday for Salem. When they were ready to depart quite a number of the young hopefuls of town were on hand ready to give the "merchants" a parting salute, and with the old tin cans, cow-bells, etc.,—Jewhillikins, such a racket! This looked somewhat lawless; but at the same time when we consider what same time when we consider what bilks these traveling roustabouts are, we excuse the boys and say that they treated the fellows just right.

Mr. Mont Stewart, of North Yannill will have one of the largest sales that has ever come off in Yannill county—las ever come off in Yannill county—offering farm machinery in endless to handling type—a form for blank receipts, for instance—they are liable to contain the county of the exget a large "elephant" on their hands, as the young lady who tried the ex-periment in this office, the other day, found out. The mess of "pi" that re-sulted from the thoughtless experiment causes the printer to scowl savagely when he views it.

Marcus Talmage returned home from Tillamook last Saturday, after an absence of a couple of mouths. During most of the time that he was over the mountains he was quite ill, and looked considerably jaded on his return. Marcus says that the salmon run has just begun and that the cannery will open up in full force haften long; that the up in full force before long; that the addition of the cannery, and saw mill that is being built there, has had the effect to raise property very materially—so much so that a man to purchase either farm or town property, must be the possessor of a young bonanza. He also tells us that crops on the prairies of our sister county are badly damag-ed by the drouth, but as a general thing gardens are looking well. But our neighbors are happy.

That "preference" item spoken of by the Dayton correspondent of the Regis-ter—"99"—is a stunner. We do not claim that the REPORTER EXTRA contained a better account of the capture of Smith than did the Register; but when that correspondent states that the Register extra was given that the Register extra was given the preference by the Oregonian for the account of the capture of Smith, it simply shows that he or she is very dull of comprehension, for the account of the capture of Smith as published in the Reporter Extra was given in full in the Oregonian, while a synopsis of the particulars of the murder was taken from the Register. If "93" wishes to rap us over the knuckles he or she should not make such dull-headed blunders as was portrayed in that item. Please excuse us for mentioning the fact.

"Do you see those two men talking over there?" said a gentlemen to a re-

Yes; those two farmers you mean? Exactly. They are father and son.

"Well?"
Well, their families are all mixed up. The son is his father's father."
"How can that be?"
"In this way. The old man's wife died. In their neighborhood there lived a widow and an only daughter. The old man married the daughter and the young man married the widow. The young man's wife is mother to the young man's father. The young man's father is the young man's sou. The young man's father's wife is his mother and his daughter at the same time. Now the old man's children—"
"Jewhilikins, let up! I can't keep all that in my head!" The reporter subsequently learned that this is a fact, and the parties live out on the Nolens-ville turnpike.—Ex. young man married the widow

Amasa Brooks, the irrepressible old pioneer and manipulator of the saw and hammer, had a bit of rough experience last Saturday evening, which gave him a close call for the "other side of Jordan." He was at work on a stable in town and was putting on the finishing touches somewhere up about the top, when the scaffold upon which he was working gave way and he fell to the floor a distance of eighteen feet. He had a hatchet in his hand which struck the floor first, edge upward, and grazed his face as he alighted barely averting a probably fatal wound from this cause. Mr. Joe Draper was at work with him in the building, and thought surely Brooks was killed as he lay prostrate from his fearful downfall. Texas) grass. Mr. McCall says he has had the muskeet grass on his place for eight rears and that he much prefers it to any other grass for pasture. The soil where this grass is growing, on Mr. McCall's farm, is of a loose, red, loamy character. It is much earlier than most other grasses. If unpastured, three different growths will come in one season. It not only grows during the spring, summer and fall, but also in the winter time, the frost not appearing to affect it much, thus making it a better winter pasture than most others. Its butter-makasture than most others. ing qualities have proven most excellent, while for fattening cattle and beef-making qualities it is world-renowned. The beef of cattle fattened on this grass and butchered fresh from the range, is unexcelled by any other in point of juiciness, flavor and apality.

Mr. L. H. Baker, of Dayton, Oregon, is the owner of a very fine three-year-old filly, dubbed Lucky Kay, sired by Kisber; dam, a Gray Eagle mare. The filly is of fine form and dark chestnut in color. Mr. Baker has four fine, full-blood Hamburg chickens, two cocks and two hens, running in his yards. Mr. Baker is the present efficient County Superintendent of Schools for Yamhill county. During the month of July he traveled in his official capacity over the greater part of the county and thinks the crop therein will be about two-thirds average.

On the farm of David Robertson, five miles north of Wheatland, Oregon, are to be seen two red fir stamps, one eighteen inches and the other two feet in diameter. The stumps are both short, the smaller of the two being two feet in height, and is situated between two and three rods from several large fir trees. To the casual observer these stamps appear like any ordinary fir stumps, but close inspection raveals the fact that they are alive and growing. The strangest fact is that the smaller of these stumps has been growing as a stump for about 25 years. fact is that the smaller of these stumps has been growing as a stump for about 25 years, and there is not a single sign of a limb, leaf or sprout having grown on it in all that time. The top of the stump is nearly healed over with a thin growth of wood, covered with live bark. The stump appears to grow in diameter the same as an ordinary tree, but has not grown any in height except as to the healing over of the top.

In 1876 Mr. Samuel Hobson, of Newberg, Yamhill county, Or., brought two families of the Essex breed of hogs from Iowa, where he had made a specialty of that breed for several years. While in Iowa, Mr. H.'s hogs took the first sweepstakes premium against 35 other competitors at an agricultural fair in that State. Mr. H. is the original importer and breeder of the Essex hog in Oregon, with the exception of a "Lord Western" strain imported some years ago.

L. W. Harger and H. Christenson, two farmers residing on the north side of Chehalem valley, were among the fortunate few who had fall-sown wheat that withstood the severe freeze of last winter. The wheat is the Oregon White variety. Mr. Harger has eight acres and Mr. Christenson five to six acres, which was ready for harvesting about July 25th.

July 25th.

Mesors A. D. Runnels and F. D. Stout have found from careful investigation that about 150 acres of fall-sown wheat withstood the severe freeze of last winter in the country round about and making North Yambill its shipping point. Nearly all the early spring-sown grain in the district named will be up to the average yield, while that late sown will fall below.
