

The Reporter

McMINNVILLE, OREGON, NOV. 1, 1883.

A neat and newsy little daily paper has sprung into existence at The Dalles-Lang & Marsh are its enterprising publishers, and the sprightly journal bears evidence of good encouragement upon the face of it. Success to the Daily Sun.

They'll do it yet, now you just bet! They're going to bridge the Willamette. Judge Deady's decision is in favor of the project and the N. P. R. will go ahead with its work. This averts a peculiar predicament—so to speak. It would have been a phenomenal sort of an aspect if the Northern Pacific, after having spanned the continent, bridging some of the country's most noted waters without question, to have been brought to a halt at the very threshold of its destination, and that too by those who should be the last to resort to such an obstacle. Portland, it seems has an "enemy within the gates."

The Chinese restriction act, begins to prove a ludicrous piece of botch-work. The provision, allowing "traders" to come to America in unlimited numbers makes an excellent loop-hole through which the unconscionable heathens may crowd themselves in, and they are taking advantage of it by the hundred. Herds of the low-bred off-scourings of the Flowery Kingdom make their way to our shores every few days, and armed as they are with the magic certificate marked "trader," there is none to obstruct their landing. "Melican man" will begin to "take the que" in a farce from the "stupid Chinese" by-and-by.

The paper that seriously insists that rebels and democrats are synonymous terms is either intensely ignorant or willfully malicious.—Weston Leader.

We are not one of the "insiders" business; nor have we the hardihood to intimate that all democrats are or were rebels. But it would be an interesting bit of information to us if our friend the Leader would name a few rebels that were not democrats, or tell us how the election of a democratic President could possibly be hoped for by that party should the rebels all suddenly turn their votes against the Democracy.

CARRION JOURNALISM.

The Register and Reporter of Yamhill county are sitting down heavily upon the Sunday Mercury for its base slandering of Rev. A. J. Hunsaker, of McMinnville. Ministers of the gospel are becoming the subjects of frequent attacks, by blackmailing sheets, merely for the purpose of gratifying the spleen and lust of a low class who countenance such papers and give them support. This matter should be closely looked after by the next legislature, and the law so framed that vile and venal sheets that live off the ofal and garbage of the lowest dregs of society, be debarr'd from assailing the characters of honorable and respectable citizens. Such papers should not be allowed the use of the mails, or be in any wise countenanced by decent people. The father or mother who allows their children to read such vile trash as is published in these sensational, black mailing concerns, will one day sincerely regret it. They had better have vipers and rattlesnakes in their homes than such rough and morbid literature. The young learn immorality fast enough without being brought in contact with it in its most hideous form. Young girls who go astray, for the most part, start on their downward career, influenced by reading the loathsome trash spread before their eyes from week to week in these venal sheets, which the law suffers flaunt in their faces. The press is the most powerful motor on the earth for good or evil. When it works for evil it is a more damnable and deadly poison than the withering syrocco of the Syrian desert. It blasts character, dries up the fountains of morality, and guides the gaunt and venomous hand of slander when it drives the dagger of treacherous revenge into the bosom of innocence and virtue. It's a leprous sore that is unceasingly gnawing at the vitals of respectability, and when it once finds lodgement, be it even round some humble hearthstone, it spreads with a venomous malignity that baffles the bold efforts of justice and truth, and soon engulfs whole neighborhoods in its slimy and fetid embraces. Avoid it as you would the small pox or cholera. Suffer no vile, sensational, black mailing sheet, that pries into the secrets of family affairs, that steps between husband and wife, that wholesales to the world the lust and putrifying sores of unfortunate humanity, to come into your home or your neighborhood if you can help it. Put your foot upon it as upon a venomous viper that was about to bite you or some of your family. Watch your children and give them to understand that if they read such papers they will merit your highest displeasure, and earnestly use your influence for the enactment of such laws as shall blot carrion journalism out of existence, and land its abettor behind the bars of gloomy prison cells.—Albany Herald.

Rules for the success of the Temperance cause.

1. Determine to put aside any hindering cause which has prevented success thus far.

2. Examine yourself as to your disposition and habits of temperance. The sweets of life do not come to the sour.

3. Your methods of study. Whether mixed or crystalline. If mixed you have to fight to expect success.

4. Your strict attention to the cause of temperance. Adopt the best method possible for the end you have in view.

5. Have self assertion. Cultivate faith in your own capacity. Let not your opinions be easily set by what others may say. These thoughts we would have you entertain before we start upon our years work, and our hope is that they may benefit some one.

A general uprising is called for, and expected at our meeting Friday afternoon U. C. T. U. at Mrs. L. Roots. The Good Templars meet Friday evening, instead of Tuesday, as stated in our last.

Mrs. E. X. H.

Miss Francis E. Willard describes a Children's Home at Mishawauke, Ind., established by the W. C. T. U. In that town and vicinity there are many children, cursed by drunken fathers, and their sorrowful condition turned the hearts of the temperance women. With prayer and thought they set about establishing a home for these almost homeless ones. The board of Commissioners, instead of consigning the pauper children to the poor-house, put them in the hands of the W. C. T. U., paying 25 cents per day for each child thus cared for. A house was rented and furnished from their own home, a Matron a Teacher and a Maid were placed in charge of 18 children ranging from 3 months to 12 years of age. A large number of children have no mothers but all have drunken fathers. "Women at work."

Friends, witness my vow And pray for me, that I may live and die as pure as now. Yes looking up for future help—what ere That, to life's latest hour, I'll be an enemy to run.

New To-Day.
