On Friday evening Geo. Olds left his tear tanding in front of J. W. Cook's residence we miles south-west of town, tying but on of the horses. By some means they broke oose and took a little run on their own ac-ount. Instead of going home they came to own and crossed the Yamhill river at this slace and ran into F. W. Martin's corral or place and ran into r. w. Martin's corrai on the east side of the river, where they stopped. When found, everything was found to be all right except that one spring of the hack was thrown from its proper place. The brake was still on and the lines were still wrapped around the brake, just as Mr. Olds had left them. This we call a lucky runaway scrape.

LAPAYETTE

Nov. 13, 1883. ith another of our oldest and most respected citizens left for that unknown place, where the weary rest for ever. RUEL OLDS where the weary rest for ever. RUEL OLDS, a pioneer of '44, a man in every way respected by neighbors and friends; loved and reverenced by a large number of children and grand-children, died at the residence of his son, E. Olds, West Chehalem. aged 72 years and 4 months. He was buried yesterday, Nov. 12th, in the Masonic burying ground, on the Johnson farm. His wife, also very aged, survives him. We will all miss "Uncle Ruel" aged, survives him. Ruel."

A sad and serious accident happened las Saturday to Mrs. Chrisman, an aged lady of this place, while on her way home from Portland. She had just taken her seat in the hack at St. Joe, and the driver, J. J. Hembree, was preparing to take his place, when the horses started off. Mr. Hembree got hold of the lines and endeavored to run them into the fence, but they got away and in making a turn on a sidling place, upset the hack with the lady in it, and dragged it several feet before getting free. As soon as assistance could reach her, she was taken out News came into town and a con veyance, properly prepared, was dispatched to bring her in. Drs. Littlefield & Calbreath who were immediately in attendance, exam-ined her injuries and found a bad compound fracture of the right leg, a little above the ankle, and that she was otherwise badly, though not seriously, bruised. The doctors thought it best to amputate, but that course was not approved, so the leg was set, and at last accounts the lady was resting very comfortable.

Last Tuesday evening as Mr. Taylor Moris was helping his little daughter into the nack, to go home, the horses started off on run. Mr. Morris tried to climb into the hind end of the hack, but missing his hold got his arm caught between the spokes of the wheel, and was thrown against the side-walk. The horses ran towards home, with the child, about 7 years old, in the hack, when at the further end of the bridge just east of town the girl either immodel.

Our County Commissioners have "lit' upon a new idea in the line of economy. It not learn what disposition they proposed to make of the body; perhaps they had an idea that it might lie there till it became dust and then be swept into the street. I have no doubt but the gentlemen meant well enough; but there is a big difference between economy and pareimony, and to refuse to pay for a coffin for a convicted felon who died in his cell would be too small even for pareimony; it would be a disgrace to the county. Taxpayers will be very willing to dispence with that kind of economy.

Mrs. J. L. Steward is quite poorly.

) CARLTON. Our blacksmith, Mr. Collins, has been sick, but is better.

Born, Nov. 7, to the wife of A. Blackburn, a Our community was startled Sunday morning on learning of the death of "Uncle Ruei" Olds, after an ilmess of but a few days. He leaves an aged wife, seven children and a multitude of friends to mourn his loss. No better man lived than "Uncle Enel." He was respected by the old and loved by the young. Peace to his ashes.

Yournowers.

AN INTERESTING REMINISCENCE.

Mr George Bangasser, a brother- in-law of Deputy Poormaster Zoll, and an old Buffalonian, is in town on a visit with friends and relatives. He left Buffalo in 1840 when the Queen City of the Lakes gave but slight prom ise of its present importance. He resided for ten years in Illinois and went to Oregon in 1851 with a caravan consisting of one hundred and fifty men and a number of women and children. The journey occupied more than six months. He settled in McMinnville Oregon, and has resided there for the last hirty-two years. On the journey to the farhirty-two years. On the journey to the far-west a singular accident occurred, A young man in the party wounded a young buck be-longing to a tribe of Indians rounting in the vicinity of the camp, by slashing him with a knife across the hips, indicting an uguly wound. The Indians came next day and de-manded that the young man be given up for punishment. The captain of the caravan held a consultation with the members and it was reluctantly agreed for the safty of the party to give him up as the Indians far outnum-bered the whites. The young fellow begged hard to be shot but fear of the redakins pre-vailed and he was delivered to the Indians hard to be shot but fear of the redakins pre-vailed and he was delivered to the Indians alive, who lashed him to a pony and rode off. His fate was never definitely ascertained but it can easily be conjectured that he in all probability experienced that refinement of crucity for which the Indians are noted. The caravan arrived safely at its destination and many of the party, Mr. Bangasser included, prospered, having fine homesteads and large families.—" Buffalo Courier."
